SPEECHES AND LISTENERS.

A political speaker, in an address at Chicago recently, deplored "the hurling of charges and counter-charges between republicans and democrats," and begged that the attempt be made "to solve the problems confronting the country rather than that political opponents devote their time to backbiting, pulling and hauling."

The speaker urged that those engaged in working for either party remember what serious problems confront the nation, and help the electorate and the voters to think and act intelligently on them.

The advice is timely. If those attempting to sway public opinion will not confine themselves to clear and unimpassioned presentation of the policies of their parties, then the public must learn to listen with cunning ears—to recognize mere vituperation for exactly what it is—a campaign trick and nothing more.

There is no merit or educative value in high-sounding charges which will die a lingering death in the proving, long after the election is over and done, nor in the sly insinuation which nobody ever intends to prove or could prove, and which is the yellow streak in campaign oratory. Let the voter cast all this chaff aside, keeping mind and ears open for whatever the speaker has to offer in the way of constructive outline and definite promise for the future in regard to the great problems. When the voter learns to listen after this fashion, he will know what he is voting for, no matter how lurid the efforts to divert his attention from the main issue.

"The corn is calling," sings a nature writer. "Go walk in a big corn field. Let the mystery of it seep in. Stray aimlessly in the whispering aisles." And if you do, very likely the farmer will get after you with a corn knife or a pitchfork.

A good old-fashioned debate might be started on the question whether the recent scarcity of flies is due more to the swatters or the oil trust.

The men are very busy teaching the women how to vote. And when the instruction is finished, we wonder how they'll vote.

Hereafter the boy who wants to be president will probably apply for a job as cub reporter.

The hard coal miners should be allowed to take this "vacation" at their own expense.

Why not go to Russia for a paper supply? You can buy 1,000,000 rubles for $25.

Good morning, children! Good morning, teacher! They're off!

HER DAUGHTER AND HIS SON

A great married life story by IDAH McGLONE GIBSON.

ANN WHITSON'S STORY.

I do not know who invented the phrase "The Eternal Triangle" but whoever it was put into clever words an age old fact, as I, Ann Whitson, know only too well.

Ever since the time of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, when Satan contrived to become that "tertium quid," which always makes trouble, there has always been a "third person" present to disarrange the personal lives of men and women.

But I have learned from experience that the influence of this person is always counterbalanced by the education, temperament and environment of the other two.

As I think back over my life, and I am still young, I find it a sad commentary that we must pay not only for our sins but for the sins of others. The Bible prophecy that the sins of the fathers shall descend even upon the children, even unto the third and fourth generations, is not only true, but the mistakes of the mothers must be compensated for by the children in the same way. There seems to be something unfair in so burdening the innocent, but the fact is unalterable.

As I was passing through the office the other day I heard a man remark to another: "There's goes a stunning looking girl." And the other answered: "Whad-di-ye mean, girl. She's twenty five if she's a minute."

I smiled to myself, for even my detractor had paid me a compliment. The day before I had celebrated my twenty-eighth birthday, and, as the years go now, with men, that means youth. And yet I have spent long years in the steady grind which must be the lot of every woman who would make a success in the business world.

The remarks of the men also proved to me the truth of that age old axiom, that 'beauty is only skin deep.' men or women into different channels all at once, or that I can change immediately a "man's way with a for the years have, I am sure, placed wrinkles on my soul, and only the other day I said to myself, "My heart is broken."

I wonder if I shall ever feel happy again. I wonder if life will look to me worth living. Is this thing in life they call "love", all of life, or is there a something else that will prove a balm to this heart of mine, whose every beat now makes a dull reverberating echo in my mind and shuts out everything.

Has my life been a success, I do not know, and I am going to tell you my story and let you decide. You will probably call it the story of a triangle, and yet to me, it seems to be a story which illustrates the finality of the law of compensation and the futility of thinking that you can possibly get out of paying for what you take from others or from life.

The story which I am going to tell is not the usual kind in which the "Eternal Triangle" figures, although it is about one man and two women. And yet, as I see it, each of these people makes his or her own trouble as well as his or her own happiness. The man surely paid for the sins of his father, and the girls again and again have had demands made upon them which they could not satisfy, because of the mistakes of their mothers.

One of these girls, perhaps, does not yet know that she has paid over and over again for the mistakes of her mother. And the other—well, I am the other girl—and I'm going to tell this story, not in the belief that I'm going to turn the thoughts of maid" or a "maid's way with a man." But I am going to try and illustrate by recounting the events which made for happiness and unhappiness in the lives of Kenneth Halsey, of Grace Cameron and me.

These events or the forces and causes underlying them, lie much deeper than the world of the unthinking might realize. And so I'm going to go back to our childhood days to find the beginning of things.

Tomorrow—Grace Cameron's Youth

IMPERIALISM IS KILLING SOVIETS

Consequences of the Bolshevik Offensive Has Been Disastrous.

ESTHONIANS ARE READY

Frontier is Now Closed by Troops and Invasion of the Russian Red Forces Would Mean Ruin for Them.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Just as imperialism killed czarism so will imperialism be the death of Russian sovietism, is the prediction made to the Associated Press correspondent by M. Pilp, the Esthonian foreign minister in London, in analyzing the consequences of the bolshevik offensive in Poland.

While foreign minister last year M. Pilp pitted his wits against the bolsheviki at Dorpat and he is regarded as one of the best authorities in Europe on Russian political and economical conditions.

In common with representatives here of other Russian border states, M. Pilp is watching with profound concern the developments in Poland.

"The Bolsheviki are fighting Poland with the allies' ammunition which they captured from Denikine and Kolchak," he said. "This is now almost exhausted and Russia cannot renew it."

Discussing the possibility of an attack by the bolsheviki on Esthonia, M. Pilp said:

"We are ready for them. The Esthonian frontier is now closed by our troops except the gates through which we are trading with Russia. The soviet government must know if it succeeds in obtaining a foothold in Esthonia the allies would instantly cut off Russia from the vitally needed supplies it is now receiving through us. We might perish but soviet Russia would go down with us."

M. Pilp asserted that Russia's economic condition was rapidly getting worse because this season's crop was a failure. He said it was not unlikely that the cities will soon be wholly depopulated.

"The soviet government dare not reduce its enormous army," he concluded. "Food shortage is now a critical problem throughout the whole of Russia and if the men who as soldiers are comparatively well cared for, were thrown on their own resources a revolution would result. The chief force which the soviet rulers have to face is peace and demobilization."

KINDERGARTEN AND PHYSICAL EDUCATION.

The kindergarten classes of the Heinline-Moore Conservatory begin Monday, Sept. 13th, and since it is important that the babies begin their work together, parents are urged to enter them on Monday morning. Please phone the studio if you wish the car to call for your child.

The Physical Education classes begin Monday also, and Mrs. Turner would like to meet all pupils of the grades and high school at 4 o'clock. The ladies' classes will start at 7 o'clock Monday evening and both old and new members are asked to come so that they may be grouped properly.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

May Pass the Critical Period Safely and Comfortably by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Summit, N. J.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during Change of Life and I think it is a good remedy in such a condition. I could not digest my food and had much pain and burning in my stomach after meals. I could not sleep, had backache, and worst of all were the hot flashes. I saw in the papers about Vegetable Compound so I tried it. Now I feel all right and can work better. You have my permission to publish this letter."—VICTORIA KOPPL, 21 Oak Ridge Ave., Summit, N. J.

If you have warning symptoms such as a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backache, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness, inquietude, and dizziness, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin taking the medicine at once. We know it will help you as it did Mrs. Koppl.

MAKES MORE CHARGES

BELLINGHAM, Sept. 11.—Further information on republican contributions in Washington were presented here today by Governor Cox on his arrival from Walla Walla. He read a copy of a letter purporting to be from H. F. Alexander, chairman of the finance committee of the republican party, reporting an over-subscription of allotments in some counties and requesting contributions in others. The letter, Cox said, was additional evidence to support the charges of the republican "corruption fund."

Tuition Laws Are Misunderstood

There has been some trouble and misunderstanding occasioned among out of town students concerning the tuition laws for out of town students and Supt. O. C. Brown is very desirous of having these made clear so that no student will stay away from school on account of a misunderstanding of that kind. Any grade pupil coming to Roseburg to school will have to pay tuition if he comes here from a district in which there is a school. If there is no school in the place in which he lives, then his tuition will be paid in the Roseburg schools. Any high school student coming to Roseburg to school from a district in which there is a standard four year high school will be called upon to pay tuition, and if there is no standard four year high school then no tuition will be asked.

Auto Laws to Undergo Change

SALEM, Ore. Sept. 10—Radical changes in the present automobile tax laws will be undertaken at the next session of the legislature, according to Robert E. Wagner, representing the Oregon Automotive Dealers Association, who passed today in Salem conferring with Sam A. Kozer, secretary of state and Attorney General Brown.

Under a legal opinion given by Attorney General Brown, Frank Lovett, state tax commissioner was advised that all automobiles in the hands of dealers on March 1 were subject to being placed on the tax rolls. Subsequently if a dealer sells a car before October 1, it then becomes the duty and is incumbent upon the purchaser to pay one fourth of the regular license fee in lieu of the property tax. Officers of the Automotive Dealers Association allege that this is double taxation and that the law should be amended at the first opportunity.

In a conference with the secretary of state Mr. Wagner admitted that the use of dealer's license plates was being violated in some instances and that it was the intention of the Automotive Dealers Association to stand behind the officials in the enforcement of the law. He said, however, that many of the dealers were unacquainted with the provisions of the act and that a campaign of education would have the effect of returning to the state, thousands of dollars now lost through unintentional evasion of the statutes.

St. Louis Monday.

HEL-LO-o-o-o PETE:

In two more shakes of a lamb's tail I'd have been between the sheets—but I got taken with another large idea for Camel Cigarette ads that's so bright you can phone 'em to cut the current because you just had your lamps lit!

Tell you, it's a whale of a stunt! Everybody right quiet—and hats off! NOW—far as I know or ever heard, there never has been one of those zippy slogans under that big display name "Camel". I'VE GOT ONE—get me? Put both your ears close to the ground and get the rumble of a broadside like this:

Camel
Once a sneeze an animal—now a Cigarette!

Wow, Pete! I'll testify that's a stoneless peach! Spread it like I've doped it in here—and you've uncorked an eyeful! Suppose you'll want to call me old Mr. Hammer because I hit the nail on the head!

And, bet real money that if this slogan stuff keeps me awake the rest of the night, I'll wire and offer it to R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. before you hit the deck! And I'll be spending some of the proceeds for next Saturday's "long-wage" of Jiggers Jones of Joplin—you tell 'em old yacht, you've got the sales spirit!

Blowing out of St. Louis at 10.12 tomorrow with a bundle of business. Off for Ohio. Got something on me mind!

Till I get it off—

Shorty.

EX-TRY! EX-TRY!
Just got a wire. I sold 'em that slogan! Pete, Eat on me! S.
