Official Republican Statement

By Douglas County Republican Central Committee.

WARREN G. HARDING

was over.

Representative Edward E. Denison of Illinois has made an exhaustive investigation of war expenditures and he has made the following statement:

Orgy of Waste and Extravagance.

"There has been an orgy of waste and extravagance in the disbursements of these billions taken by taxes and borrowed from the people that not only surpasses anything ever recorded in connection with the government, but exceeds the wildest imagination.

Boiled down the statements of proven expenditures made by representative Denison follow:

1—The war cost approximately $34,000,000,000.

2—Reports of chairmen of investigating committees show that of the $18,000,000,000 expended by the War Department alone, practically $9,000,000,000 has been lost wasted or spent on projects that were foolish, that are useless now, and were totally ineffective in prosecuting the war.

Millions for Port Terminals.

3—There was spent at Charleston, Norfolk, Boston and other places $150,000,000 for port terminals from which no ship, during the war, ever sailed.

4—A port terminal was begun in a bog swamp ten miles up the river from Charleston and after $20,000,000 had been expended in construction, it was found that ships could not reach the terminal until the river had been dredged for that purpose.

5—For nitrate plants that never produced a pound of nitrate some $120,000,000 was spent in this visionary scheme. Practically $100,000,000 of this sum was sunk at Mussel Shoals, Alabama, and the War Department now asks for additional millions to turn the abortive nitrate plants into fertilizer producers, about the feasibility of which experts differ.

6—For powder plants $160,000,000 was spent and not a pound was made in them. The one at Nitro, West Virginia, cost $70,000,000 and was sold recently for $8,000,000 with the prospect that the government will never get very much of the eight million.

7—There was $1,000,000,000 spent on shells and only 17,000 of American shells were fired by the American forces in the war. We fired as many as 500,000 in a single barrage on a single morning—which we had to buy or beg from our allies.

Billions Spent—No Aeroplanes.

8—We spent $1,051,000,000 preparing to manufacture aeroplanes; we did not produce one fighting plane. We did make a purely bombing plane—a few of them. All we made and sent to the front in France was 213 observation planes and they were dangerous and defective.

9—For tanks we spent $100,000,000. The first American tank did not reach France until after the armistice had been signed and the war was over.

10—There was $116,000,000 expended for the manufacture of gas.

There was never a pound of gas fired on the battle front in American shells.

11—Guns cost us (to make in this country) $478,000,000. We only succeeded in getting 48 of the 4.7 inch guns and 24 of the 8 inch howitzers—a total of 72 guns—to where our boys in battle could use them.

Such is the story of extravagance and inefficiency of the war department.

The same is true to some extent of the Navy department.

The War and Navy departments together spent within a radius of 25 miles of Norfolk, Va., $250,000,000 for the construction of cantonments, warehouses and training stations, where it has been found impossible to get a supply of water sufficient for their needs.

Training Camp Located in Swamp.

The Navy department put one of the training camps in a swamp near Norfolk at a cost of $7,000,000, and every dollar of it, as is now disclosed, will be lost.

"These facts and figures show," said representative Denison, "that the waste and ineffective investments of such a considerable part of the $34,000,000,000 war expenditures has been due largely to the autocratic and dictatorial enunciation by the president on the constitutional privileges of congress and the servile submission of the democratic majority in the house, which together prevented the appointment of a joint committee to supervise the war expenditures, thereby opposing and ending any action taken at the beginning to prevent, or at least to lessen the probability of such waste."

ANNOUNCEMENT

Having purchased the jewelry interests of the A. S. Huey Co., I wish to solicit the continuance of the old patrons of the store, and hope to merit the addition of many new.

The same policy will prevail as heretofore, handling goods of the highest quality at the lowest possible price.

All unfinished business, guarantees on goods, etc., sold by the old firm shall be made good by the new.

The working force shall remain as before. Mr. A. S. Huey having retained the optical business, shall conduct same on a larger scale.

Mr. F. D. Reynolds, who has been with the firm over three years, will have charge of the repair and sales department.

Trusting I may enjoy a continuance of the same pleasant relations accorded Mr. Huey. Respectfully yours,

W. H. TURICK.

Movie Closeups

The "race track" atmosphere is a large and successful part in the play "Checkers" which will come to the Antlers theatre tonight. "Checkers" is essentially a "hard luck" story, and no one who sees the picture will deny the whimsical lovable-ness of "Checkers" himself. The story is imbued with race track lore and color, and will interest every one who sees it. "Checkers" has an all star cast, and the scenes are lavish to the extreme.

The feature picture at the Liberty theatre tonight breathes air of old Louisiana. Few pictures have been made which so convincingly carry the atmosphere of its locale. The exteriors are perfect, because the producer evidently went into the very heart of the country and shot his scenes direct from the original. The interiors show a fine appreciation of old Southern homes.

The story is absorbing and moves with increasing speed as the action reaches its climax. It has to do with the struggle for possession of a tumble down house, believed by the superstitious natives of the vicinity to harbor "spooks" and the atmosphere of mystery and superstition is closely interwoven into the theme of the story and convincingly exploited in the picture.

May McAvoy is splendid in the role of a poor southern girl and Bruce Gordon is a considerate and manly hero. Several striking characters are introduced by other members of the all star cast in support of the star. "The House of the Telling Bell" should attract to the Liberty all of you who are searching for "something new" in photoplay features. It is worth while from every point of view.

The most recent Eminent Authors production is "Out of the Storm," written by the famous woman author Gertrude Atherton. This picture may be seen at the Maestric theatre tonight. Sidney Alinsworth plays the role of Albert Levering in the picture, and although he plays the part known technically as "heavy" his portrayal commands a certain amount of sympathy.

As Albert Levering he becomes the son-in-law of a poor girl, Margaret Hill, played by Barbara Castleton. He recognizes in her the possibilities of a great singer, and for two years puts her under the scholarship of a well known professor. At the end of this period Levering is arrested as an embezzler, leaving Margaret alone.

After struggling against hard circumstances for a long time, she eventually arrived in England as a well known singer. At one of her concerts she met a young English lord and later an attachment formed between them which grew into love. Soon after her marriage, Levering is released from prison and comes to find Margaret. He loves her and when he finds her happy, and settled, he goes away, making the supreme sacrifice, leaving her to happiness rather than assert the claim he has over her.

FOR COUNTY CLERK.

To the Voters of Douglas County, Oregon:

I am the candidate on the republican ticket at the November election for the office of County Clerk. If elected I will exercise the most rigid economy, consistent with good service, in the conduct of the office, and will use my best endeavors to see that all persons having business with the office receive just and courteous treatment. Your vote is respectfully solicited. (Ed. Adv.) H. A. HIDDLE
