Fleet to hunt sponges.
The enormous rise in prices of sponges has induced Italian ship owners to construct many new craft for sponge gathering, the fleet setting forth from Stax, the sponge market, numbers some 60 vessels this year. In contrast to 30 in previous campaigns, writes United States Consul Cookingham of Tunis. The sponges gathered during the summer campaign now in progress will, it is expected, bring at least 50 francs per kilo to the Stax market.

The Bavarian breweries are to resume the production of beer with an alcoholic content of eight per cent, according to a statement made on August 5 by the Bavarian minister of agriculture, following his return from a meeting in Berlin, where the general food situation of the nation had been discussed and certain plans for the future agreed on between the national and state authorities. He also said that the daily bread ration was to be raised from 200 grams to 300 grams per capita and that the state control of the egg market was to be dropped in October.

Hunting positively prohibited on the lands of the Curry Estate.

SOLDIER'S VIEW OF LEAGUE.

(By Captain Eddie Rickenbacker.)
For a soldier, the league of nations has just one meaning—war. It is a contract to fight. If we join the league, we agree to fight when called in to do so.

International lawyers and diplomats may argue this point. Some say that we may sign the league covenant and still not fight unless we want. They argue that after our allies call on us, we are still at liberty to go in or stay out.

The soldier does not look at the league covenant in this way. He does not bother with the law or diplomacy. We sign a contract, we must keep it. We give a promise, we must redeem it. He does not even think about whether it is morals or law that binds us. He only knows that if we give a pledge we are going to stand by it.

Take for instance article X, the war article of the league. The soldier reads there that the members of the league "undertake to respect and preserve against external aggression" the territory and independence of other members. That is the language of the covenant. The soldier translates that language in his mind into United States. He then would put the pledge, if signed by the United States, in about this form:

"The United States undertakes to respect and preserve against external aggression" the territory of all members of the league. Add to this that to the soldier "external aggression" is merely a polite name for war, and you have article X as he sees it. Everything else is to him just camouflage. We give our word to stand ready to fight, on call, for any other nation in the league that is suffering from a case of "external aggression." Once given we have to keep it.

The trouble might come in China, or Slam, Greece, India or Egypt. We might be called to fight to keep 36,000,000 Chinese in Shanghai under Japanese rule, or to hold India in the British empire. We might not like the job, we might even sympathize with the Chinese, or Hindus, but we should have given our word in a plain contract and we should have to keep it.

That is the way a plain soldier looks at the league contract, and 95 in 100 soldiers do not like it. They have seen foreign nations and know they are foreign to us. They know that every foreign, in war as in peace, acts first and last for itself. If a foreign nation gets into war while acting in its own interest, they do not see why they should be shipped to Europe or Asia to help it. They do not understand why American blood should be shed to build up any foreign nation. Therefore they are against taking the pledge, they are against article X, they are against the covenant.

To fight in war is the most solemn business on earth. Those who have fought know this better than anybody else and they are against fighting for any country except the United States.

HER DAUGHTER AND HIS SON.

BY IDA' McGLONE GIBSON

Mrs. Cameron intrudes.
"Oh, I beg your pardon. I thought you were alone, Ann."

"Evidently, Mrs. Cameron, you have not seen me," said Mr. Halsey, who had been standing out of her line of vision.

"I confess that I had not," she answered with asperity. "And if you were not here I would not have deemed it possible that you could allow Kenneth to express his sympathy in this manner."

"My dear Mrs. Cameron," said Mr. Halsey suavely, "a short time ago you intimated that my son was a gentleman. Now I am going to say to you that of all the young women I have met, Ann seems to me to be the sweetest and most womanly."

"Oh, Mr. Halsey, I did not mean to insinuate anything. Of course, I know that Kenneth and Ann have been like brother and sister all their lives. I was only attempting a little pleasantry."

"This hardly seems the time for pleasantries, Mrs. Cameron," and then thinking he had been too haughty, Mr. Halsey added:

"Kenneth was promising to always be a brother to Ann, just as I would like to stand in the place of her father."

I had drawn away from Kenneth as Mrs. Cameron came in and I now asked:

"Did you want anything in particular, Mrs. Cameron?"

"I came over, my dear, to ask you to spend a week or two with me, until your affairs are settled."

I felt a cold shudder run down my spine. I could conceive of nothing worse than being under the baleful eye of Mrs. Cameron for the next two weeks and having to listen to her honey insinuations and veiled suggestions in regard to my friendship with Kenneth. So I answered quickly.

"I am not going to remain in town. I am extremely anxious to get to work."

"And what are you going to work at?" she asked. I could see that she was relieved at my intention of leaving the town, yet I thought there was still a little anxiety on her part as to whether I would remain away.

Then, before I could reply, she continued:

"I am glad to know that your mother has left you enough money so that you can take up some profession." I simply bowed by head in acknowledgement of her interest. I would not for the world let her know what I was going to do.

For a moment after this there was an uncomfortable silence. I had not asked Mrs. Cameron to be seated, but she evidently was determined to know what was going on.

Finally Mr. Halsey said: "I am sure you will pardon me, Mrs. Cameron, but Ann has some important business to talk over with me before she leaves."

"O-h, I didn't mean to interrupt," Kenneth's lips straightened across his teeth.

"I didn't intend to interrupt," she repeated, "I only wanted to be of service. I only wanted to make Ann understand that under the circumstances perhaps it would be better if she had a woman with her at this time."

"Thank you very much, Mrs. Cameron, but I shall have to depend upon myself largely, and I may as well begin at once."

"Then I'll take Kenneth with me," said she, "and leave you with Mr. Halsey."

A Prominent Druggist Testifies

Redondo Beach, Calif.—"I wish to call attention to my experience in the sale of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. I have never sold an article that has given such universal satisfaction. It seems that every bottle sold sells another. I am very much inclined, like most druggists of today, to sell the 'long shot' stuff at a greater profit, or something just as good, but in suggesting Anuric for uric acid and rheumatism I consider I have not only created business along that line but have gained the confidence of the public and suggestion, together with the satisfaction I get from having an article that I can place with perfect confidence. Nothing would please me more than to be able to introduce Anuric to the world for the benefit of all mankind. However, I have to content myself by simply calling attention to the satisfactory results that follow as reported to me by the individuals, extending their thanks."—C. D. KNOX.

Many of Your Neighbors Can Say the Same

Tuolumne, Calif.—"My back gave me considerable trouble, which I thought was due to kidney disease. After taking four packages of Dr. Pierce's Anuric (anti-uric-acid) Tablets I was fully recovered. I consider it a wonderful medicine. I also use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets whenever I am bilious, and they give immediate relief."—W. H. BOSCH.
