

Declares Filipinos All Want Independence

Former Illinois Congressman, Back From Philippines, Gives Interesting Views on Island Affairs.

By FORMER CONGRESSMAN CLYDE H. TAVENNER.

Clyde H. Tavenner.

The 10,500,000 inhabitants of the Philippines are practically unanimous in their desire for independence.

This is the strongest impression that I have brought back with me after touring the islands from one end to the other, and after having come in contact with all classes of the people.

I found, however, that the viewpoint of Americans in the Philippines, and Americans in the United States, on the subject of independence, is not the same.

The attitude of the American government, and the great mass of the people of the United States, is to consider the Philippine question from the selfish viewpoint of what is best for the Filipino people.

The unfortunate feature of the situation is that the opponents of independence, in order to convince the people of the United States that the Filipinos should not be granted their independence, find it necessary to label an entire race.

At the present time, however, the masses of the Filipino people still have absolute confidence in the good faith of America.

Previous to 1916 the Philippine-American relationship is declared to have been not of the best.

LIEUTENANT HINCKLEY

Lieutenant Hinckley, formerly of the British air forces, who started to fly alone from England to Australia, via Paris, Rome and Egypt.

The Passion for Haste. A Japanese baron visited the University of California, and on leaving was put aboard a partly filled local car.

At the junction the party transferred to a much-crowded through car. Japanese courtesy weathered the test so far as manners went, but the baron could not resist the question: "Why did we leave the comfortable car for this one, which is so crowded?"

He was told: "Oh, we save two minutes getting into San Francisco."

"Ah, said he, "and what will we do with the two minutes?"

Wasn't Open. A rather green countryman had just returned from his first visit to New York.

"Well, Si," said the postmaster, "what did you think of the metropolis?"

"Wat say?" gawked the other, stumped by so big a word.

"I asked how did you like the metropolis?"

"Oh, that—'twan't open," said Si.—Boston Transcript.

Many Visitors To Sunny France

PARIS, Nov. 1.—The enthusiastically predicted 1,000,000 American tourists did not come to France this year, but the hotel keepers, their association officials say, are satisfied.

Instead, there were on record 200,000 police permits issued to tourists intending to remain more than 15 days.

One ill wind that blew well in France was the high exchange rate of the Swiss franc so that travelers gave the preference to this country where their money went about twice as far as in the Alps.
