"His Majesty, the American," is the new Douglas Fairbanks picture, and the first release of the United Artists corporation—the so-called "Big Four"—and will be featured on the screen of the Antlers theatre on Tuesday.

The production demanded not only very unusual and elaborate settings, which were provided without reckoning the cost, but also called for an exceedingly strong cast to support "Doug" in his journeyings through the picture.

As in the case of the settings, Mr. Fairbanks gave his director, Joseph Henabery, carte blanche in order to secure the best talent available, regardless of the expense.

The feminine lead is played by Marjorie Daw, who has now appeared opposite Mr. Fairbanks in six of his best productions. When it is remembered that "Doug" uses rather heroic measures to rescue damsels from distress, it will be understood that it requires some experience to play opposite him. In his new picture, Doug performs numberless miraculous stunts for the sake of the girl and so splendidly she carried out her part in the picture that stardom will shortly be her reward.

Frank Campeau, probably the best known and most capably equipped of all the screen villains has been entrusted with a very important role, which he carries off with all the ability which has made him so well and favorably known.

Major Robert Warwick, who is the star in the latest Paramount-Artcraft picture, "In Missouri," to be shown at the Majestic theatre tonight, believes that his experience in the A. E. F. in France has helped him considerably as an actor.

"Though I never thought of my screen career from the moment I enlisted until I was again on the American soil," said Major Warwick recently, "while overseas I saw life from every possible angle. I learned how men act and feel under all sorts of experiences. I met more different kinds of men there in a week than I could in a lifetime in peace. The greater the actor, the more true to life, his interpretations. By showing me life, the war has helped me considerably in my chosen profession."

Major Warwick plays the role of red-blooded Jim Haddock in "In Missouri," which is a screen play of Augustus Thomas' famous play. Eileen Percy is the leading woman and the production was directed by a master director, Hugh Ford.

TIMELY FARM HINTS.

Soils—Twice as much nitrate is contained in ground which has been worked well as in ground that has not been worked properly. This was proven by an experiment conducted by the Sherman county branch station which ended on September 1. The test was had with land in summer fallow, and it was found that all vegetation must be kept down to get the best results.

Farm Crops—Grey winter oats will stand later planting than wheat or barley, and on fields where planting is considerably delayed better results will be obtained from grey oats than from any other cereal.

Farm Mechanics—Radiators may freeze even in early fall weather and cause much trouble and delay. The safest way is to drain the radiator in the evening and in the morning fill it up with warm water to help in starting.

Plant Pathology—Late blight rot of potatoes is prevalent in the coast counties. Much of this damage might have been prevented by spraying with Bordeaux mixture at the proper time.

Bacteriology—Many samples of contaminated drinking water from wells in the state are being received by this department. See that the wells are in such a place that they are not subject to any seepage from the barn or outhouses. Play safe by sending a sample of the water to the nearest laboratory station to have tested for bacteria. This may save a large doctor bill.

Not All Blind.

Two charming sisters are engaged to two brothers, and their neighbors have been interested in this dual love affair. The young girls live in the second flat of a house on the south side of the street, and the other day the elder sister was stopped in the street by the young scion of the family who occupies the second flat in the house just opposite.

"Oh, Miss Miggs," said the boy, "my papa said last night that someone ought to tell you to pull down the blinds, 'cause if love is blind, the neighbors are not!"—London Tit-Bits.

From Ear to Ear.

Willie was away from home for the first time, staying with some friends. He was allowed to "sit up" for dinner. The servant came round with a plate of slices of melon, and the hostess noticed Willie hesitate about helping himself. "Don't you like melon?" asked his hostess encouragingly. "Very much, thank you," replied Willie, "only they make your ears so wet."

How to Be Happy Though Married

Are husbands always happy? Husbands enjoy all the comforts of a good home and incidentally learn to take as well as give in little family quarrels. Bachelors miss the scripping privileges accorded benedicts. But, they both enjoy the wise and witty quips about hubby, shown in the popular film subject, "Topics of the Day." How true to life the situations are, you may judge from the following "topic" selections, made by the News-Review for its readers.

Say, Joe, you ought to buck up and show your wife who is running things at your house. Henpeck (saddy). "It isn't necessary, she knows."

—London Answers.

Husband—"Didn't I telegraph you not to bring your mother with you?"

Wife—"That's what she wants to see you about."—Saskatoon Telegram.

"Cheer up, old man. Why don't you drown your sorrow?"

"She's bigger than I am, and besides it would be murder."—London (Eng.) Tid Bits.

She, (during the quarrel)—"You never deserved a wife like me."

He—"And I never deserved the rheumatism, but I got it just the same."—Toronto (Canada) World.

Officer—"Why are you rushing along with that bundle?"

"It's my wife's hat, and I'm afraid the style will change."—Women's Wear, N. Y.

"So you are going to send your wife away to the country for a rest?"

"Yes, I need it badly."—The Crow's Nest.

"You haven't much on the menu. Still, it doesn't matter—my wife is easily satisfied."

Walter—"If she's your wife, she must be."—Mogendorfer Blaetter.

Sum Needed to Run the State

SALFEM, Nov. 8—Tentative budgets of estimated expenditures of the various departments of the state government, exclusive of all the institutions under the jurisdiction of the board of control with the exception of the state hospital, aggregating $9,267,606.77 have been submitted to Secretary of State Sam Koser for consideration of the legislature, which will convene here next January. These proposed expenditures cover the biennium of 1921 and 1922 and in almost every instance show an increase when compared with the budgets for the present two year period.

The tentative budget for the state hospital involved more money than requested by any of the other departments. It called for $1,119,216. Dr. R. E. Lee Steiner, superintendent of the hospital, said that while there might be a slight reduction in some of the commodities used at the institution, he did not believe that the cost of labor would decrease nor that fuel could be purchased during the next two years at any material reduction under present prices.

Mrs. Maude McCormick arrived in Roseburg this morning from Sunfield, Michigan, and will make an extended visit on South Deer creek with her brother, A. E. McCormick.

REVERE'S BELL PRESERVED

In the bell of King's Chapel, built when Boston was in its infancy, still hangs a bell which was cast by Paul Revere. It was his 161st bell. Besides being a bell caster, Revere was also an engraver, a goldsmith and a dentist. Rising above the modest houses in the Italian district on Hull street is the old North church, from which Revere received his signal previous to his famous midnight ride.

Christ church, the Second Episcopal church of Boston, is situated in the north end, and is an offshoot of King's Chapel. Its spire, designed and built in 1723, has served as a landmark to guide ships into the harbor.

In 1804 this spire was blown down by a great gale, and was shortened by sixteen feet. The chime of bells, now silent, which hangs in the tower, was made in 1774 in the foundry of Abel Rudhall, of Gloucester, England. Each bell has engraved upon it an inscription denoting its history. The bells were supposed to possess the power to dispel evil spirits.—Detroit News.

Legion Adjutants To Have Conference

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 9—A conference of the adjutants of the forty-nine departments of the American Legion in this country was held in this city on November 5 and 6. Chief among the things to be considered was the offer of the Knights of Columbus of $5,000,000 to the Legion for the erection of a memorial building in Washington.

A plan is to be worked out whereby the 20,000 veterans in hospitals will be aided. Action will probably be taken on various Americanization ideas. The conference will be addressed by F. W. Galbraith, Jr., National commander of the Legion.
