

At last! Mars has spoken!

YOUNG HIRAM Jinks.
HAD TRIED for weeks,
TO TALK to Mars,
BY WIRELESS.
HE'D POUNDED his key,
CALLING "MARS. Hello, Mars."
UNTIL HIS right biceps.
WAS THE village pride.
HE HARDLY dared to sleep,
LEST HE miss the call.
AND SAID! One evening,
HE GOT an answering buzz.
"YEP, THIS is Mars."
AND HIRAM shook all over.
AND STUTTERED back in Morse.
"HAVE YOU any word.
FOR US on Earth?"
QUICK CAME the answer.
"YOU CAN tell the world."

THEY SATISFY!" Then silence,
HIRAM RAN to the corner store,
AND SHOUTED in triumph,
"A MESSAGE from Mars!
YOU CAN tell the world.
THEY SATISFY."
BUT THE village elders,
MERELY SNORTED "Shucks, KNOWN THAT for years."
WHILE OUT in the army camp,
THE RADIO man,
WHO'D BEEN kidding Hiram,
THREW AWAY his butt,
AND LAUGHED himself to sleep.

B-U-Z-Z-Z. Listen to this one!
Chesterfields "satisfy" and yet they're mild. With body enough to "satisfy" even a cigar smoker.
Chesterfields are mild enough to suit even the most finicky cigarette smoker. That's some combination!
—and this unique blend can't be copied.

HER DAUGHTER AND HIS SON.

BY IDA H. MCGLONE GIBSON

Opening a Bank Account.

"Jerry, you have a unique way of paying compliments," I said as Jerry assured me that I would have a hard time keeping the boys away from me.

"Well, haven't you found it so?" And then as to change the subject, he said:

"Before you go I'll write you out a check and we can stop at the bank on our way to luncheon and you can open your account."

I looked at the check which he held out to me in dismay. Woman-like, I had expected that the money he would put in my hands would be the same old bills that I had lost. I could not make this check seem mine at all, especially as it was for a few more dollars than the original thousand.

I thrust it back. "Jerry, this money is not mine at all. I only lost a thousand dollars and if you picked it up this much money does not belong to me, any part of it."

"Why, you foolish child, don't you understand that the rest of the money is the interest your money has earned as it lay in the bank?"

"But I don't want that Jerry," I said somewhat mollified.

"Why, of course you do. That's business," he answered. "You didn't have your money to use and you should have the interest it earned. Don't be silly." And Jerry took out his handkerchief and mopped his brow as if he too were worrying about something. Then as if he had determined to make a clean breast of it he said:

"Of course, I might have brought you the cash, but you see, Ann, I wanted to give you a check so that when it is returned to me with the statement of my account at the end of the month, I can always keep it in remembrance of how luck favored me in allowing me to give you the money you had lost. I mean," he added hastily, as he saw my questioning look, "that luck permitted me to find and return to you the money you had lost."

We went directly to the bank, and Jerry helped me to open my account, introduced me to the cashier, and asked if his father were in. We found that Mr. Hathaway, senior, had just gone out to luncheon.

As we stood near the window as the teller was giving me a very dainty little check book, in which he had entered the amount that I had just placed in the bank, I felt a little chill, and looked up to find Grace Cameron's eyes upon me.

"Hello Ann," she said as nonchalantly as though we had parted only yesterday the best of friends. Before I thought I answered: "I am just opening an account."

For the flicker of an eyelid it seemed to me that Grace Cameron had a look of triumph on her face. I did not understand the reason, then, but alas, I was to know later.

"Well," she said, "I hope you will not find as I do that your account is overdrawn, just when you need money most."

Then turning to Jerry, she said with a smile that was a mixture of honey and gall: "I am afraid that I have not opened my account in the right way. I should have brought you along with me Jerry."

"I am a little piqued, Jerry," she added smiling, "because you never offered to help me open an account."

"You are well known in the city, Grace, and Ann needed someone to identify her."

"Oh, a friend in need," she murmured.

"I hope so," said Jerry gravely.

"To me or to Ann," Grace pursued.

"To you both," was his unsmiling answer.

"Cat! Spiteful little tiger cat!" said Jerry as we left the bank. "It is astonishing that a girl as beautiful as she is should be pointedly rude in her treatment of an old friend like you."

"You don't know her mother; I answered wearily. "Grace Cameron is the true daughter of her mother and the product of her mother's teachings."

Tomorrow—Luncheon with Jerry Hathaway.

BEING FAT IS REAL TRAGEDY

To Modern Woman It is a Worry That Frequently Leads to Ruined Health and Insanity.

A fat man is usually a jolly sort of an individual who accepts the world as the same sort of a joke as the world considers him. Girth, says the New York Sun, may worry a man occasionally because it is an annoyance, but with the modern woman it verges upon tragedy. As physicians—if they would talk freely—can tell you, it is a worry to them that frequently leads to ruined health, insanity or the grave.

It is possible for a man to grow fat gracefully. At least he can subdue his habits, stop running for trains, give up his golf and spend most of his time in ponderous poses. His tailor can easily arrange his clothing into well-known and accepted lines.

The case of the woman is different. Fashion binds her as with a chain. There are no stylish frocks for stout women. The fashion of today calls for slim figures and trim ankles. Waists and hips are taboo. There are no sleeves capable of concealing over-fleshed arms. Man can adapt his clothes to his figure, but woman must adapt her figure to the clothes, or else shamelessly admit that she cannot wear what is fashionable.

It was not always so. In another generation the stout woman had a well defined place—the "dowager type." It was sometimes called "The woman who made the best biscuits and cooked the most savory chicken was always a rotund sort of person who never minded it when people came unexpectedly around dinner time. She was the one children looked to for sympathy and the one who seemed to make the world brighter wherever she went.

FORKS FIRST USED IN 1574

Occasion Was Dinner Given by Henry III of France—Account Given by Royal Guest.

It is hard to believe the sensation produced when forks first came into use. It was in 1574, at a dinner given by Henry III of France. Here is an account by a royal lady guest, the Ladies' Home Journal recalls: "The guests never touched the meat with their fingers, but with forks, which they carried to their mouths, bending their necks and bodies over their plates."

There were several salads. These they ate with forks, for it is not considered proper to touch the food with the fingers. However difficult it may be to manage it, it is thought better to put the little instrument in the mouth than the fingers.

"Then artichokes, asparagus, peas and beans were brought. It was a pleasure to watch them try to eat these with their forks, for some, who were less adroit than the others, dropped as many on their plates and on the way to the mouth as they were able to get to their mouths."

"Afterward a great silver basin and a pitcher of water were brought and the guests washed their hands, though it seems as if there would not be much scent of meat and grease on them, for they had touched their food only with those forked instruments."

Too Much Candor

My traveling companion had been carrying an old black bag which barely held together. I had told her that she would have to carry a different piece of baggage if she were going to travel with me, but it made no impression.

One early morning we sat down in a small waiting room in a branch line station in central Oregon. Next to me was an old black bag with which I began to fumble. Finally I put my finger through a rip in the side and began to pull out some wearing apparel and at the same time turned to my friend and said: "Pauline, you certainly ought to be ashamed of yourself to carry such a ramshackle contraption as this bag is."

"I beg your pardon," said a woman seated on the other side of me, "but that is my bag."

Brazil's Big Snake Nursery

There are said to be more snakes in Brazil than in any other country of the western hemisphere, an exchange remarks. At Batantun, near Sao Paulo, there is a great snake garden where scientists are studying the mysteries of snake biology. The original reason for the establishment of the garden, which is a huge nursery for snakes, was to obtain serum enough for those bitten by snakes throughout Brazil. The garden is 600 acres in extent and divided into three departments, two of which are devoted to cobras, coral snakes and bothrops, the most poisonous snakes known; while the third department is given to the nonpoisonous snakes.
