Convict Attempts to Commit Suicide

SALEM, Or., Dec. 2.—Another chapter in the troubles involving Dan Goodan and an 18-year-old girl whom he alleged was his wife at the time they were received at the pententiary here last July, was enacted within the walls of the prison early today, when Goodan swallowed some non-poisonous fluid with I ntent to end his life.

A fellow convict, who detected Goodan as he drank the fluid, notified the penitentiary officials and a physician was summoned. Antidotes were administered and the patient suffered no ill-effects as the result of his act.

Goodan's attempt to take his life followed the confession of Mabel Goodan, whose true name is unknown to prison officials, in which she denied that she was married to Goodan.

It was admitted by the girl, however, that she and the convict had traveled together extensively, and had visited many sections of the Pacific coast.

In Goodan's cell, following his at-tempt to commit suicide in the prison officials found a note in which he said he was ready to die. The note

"As I am ready to die and have nothing to live for, I will take my life and have it over. The woman was the cause of it all. As the old saying goes, 'I was warned but did not heed.'

"A second note addressed to David McCardell, alias Elvin Bushby, said:
"Take good care of the girl."

The girl's confession to prison officials was made Tuesday afternoon.

The girl's contession to prison of-ficials was made Tuesday afternoon, after which she returned to her cell in the woman's department of the prison and swallowed bichloride of mercury tablets with suicidal intent. Prompt action on the part of the prison physician saved her life.

Luncheon for Four

"It's better to turn down the page and close the book," said Mamie figuratively as I started to explain.
"But Mr. Halsey needs me."
"You don't have to give him the go-by altogether. Of course you will do what you think is right, but I'm thinking of what is best for you."
"Well I'm going to take your advice, Mamie. I've always found it good."

Just then the door beli rang and vice, Mamie. I've always found it good."

Just then the door beli rang and I hurried into a negliger to greet Jimmie.

"Ken's out of danger," were his first words. "He's been told he's a married man and to our surprise he didn't have a relapse, coliapse, or whatever you want to call it. At the present moment the bride and groom are presumably having a loving tetea-tete. I drove Grace over just before coming here. She is quite angry because none of the papers referred to her as a beauty and only one of them used her picture.

"Mr. Halsey, Sr., tells me he hopes you're going to work in his office. I didn't say anything about that because I want you to do whatever you think is best."

"I'm going to stick to my contract with you Immite."

"Jerry insists that we shall be hi

"Jerry insists that we shall be his guests," said Jimmie grinning. "That hoy has a sense of the dramatic, as well as a good business head," Mamie rushed off to put on her street clothes and I excused myself to get ready for lunch. When I came back I found Mamie looking a perfect picture and Jimmie stared at

"What's the matter, Jimmie, haven't you ever seen Mamie be-fore?" I bantered him.

"Never saw her in anything but the black uniform at the restaurant or a checkered apron hero," he said.
"But I want to say to you, Miss Riley, if looks will turn the trick, you'll be a musical comedy star be-fore the year is out." fore the year is out.

"You understand, of course," exclaimed the agent, "the lower is why do they all prefer the lower?" I broke in.

"On account of its convenience," he replied. "Most persons don't like the upper, although its lower, on account of it being higher, and because when you occupy an upper you have to get up to go to bed and then get down when you get up. I would advise you to take the lower, although it's higher than the upper, for the reason I have stated, that the upper is lower than the lower because it is higher. You can have the lower if you pay higher; but if you are willing to go higher it will be lower."

Mince Pies May be Seized by Police

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—What is considered to be the last word in the prohibition enforcement law was made public today when the bureau of internal revenue issued a state-ment alleging that flavoring the home made Christmas plum pudding, mincement and brandled cherries and peaches with alcoholic spirits is in violation of the Volstead act, and that all such foods so spiced are liable to seizure by the officers.
