Ethel Clayton's new picture, "More Deadly Than the Male" is said to have all the earmarks of a grim melodrama until just before the male when a few revelations turn abruptly into a delightful comedy drama.

prove him mistaken. All sorts of hair-raising incidents in a mountain camp follow. The conservatory has been transformed into an African jungle, he fights a fatal duel with the girl's supposed husband, a dam bursts with nearly disastrous results, and finally there is a rip-snorting set-to with the harrased hero is brought to, informed of the real state of affairs, and agrees to stay close to the family fireside thereafter.

is a Paramount Arterraft picture directed by Robert G. Vignola. A photoplay alive with action is "From Now On" the William Fox feature which comes to the Liberty Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday.

tion in marketing agricultural products will be the principal subject before the nation wide conference of agricultural representatives at St. Louis, December 16, 17, 18, according to Charles S. Barrett, president of the National Farmers Union, which requested the National Board of Farm Organizations to call the meeting.

Mr. Barrett describes the conference as a getting together of the supervisors of the many farmers' cooperative agencies now in existence. "It will not be another one of the thousands of conferences which have met in the past only to result in a discussion of plans and nothing more," says he.

"The cooperative meeting," says Mr. Barrett, "is for the purpose of counseling together and maturing and carrying out plans for a business enterprise which will adequately meet the agricultural situation and in part free agriculture from its bondage. I urge the Farmers' Union people, especially those who are in charge of our cooperative business enterprises, to attend this meeting in large numbers. I hope that cooperatives in other farmers' business organizations also will attend and that all of us can join together in one great movement."

"Several years lie behind us of the greatest agricultural effort in the face of the greatest obstacles ever encountered by American farmers. And now suddenly at the end of the crop producing season with costs of labor, seeds, feeds, fertilizers and interest rates higher than before, a deflation policy has been put in motion that has caused wheat to sell at the country buying stations for only a little over a dollar a bushel and upland midland cotton to sell for only a trifle over fifteen cents a pound.

"At Washington I find that practically everyone whose business it is to keep informed as to public affairs is now beginning to sense the fact that agriculture is in the midst of a great crisis the outcome of which is uncertain and which if not properly met, will involve the welfare not only of farmers, but many others as well. Real alarm is being expressed by some of the very people who I am convinced are in part responsible for the crucifixion of farm prices, that the gigantic losses to farmers will pyramid into still greater losses to the capitalists. A juggernaut is bearing down on its creators.

"The farmers of this nation have the grit and brawn to defeat the sinister designs of those who are responsible for setting in motion such a deflation in the values of agricultural products as this country has never experienced before.

How many miles have you driven your car?

HOW many miles—with- out changing engine oil? Dirt accumulates in the oil of every engine—carbon, road dust, fine particles of metal, and gasoline that has escaped past the pistons. This dirty, diluted oil circulating through your engine causes unnecessary wear on bearing surfaces.
