"You may be Sure"

says the Good Judge

That you are getting full value for your money when you use this class of tobacco.

The good, rich, real tobacco taste lasts so long, you don't need a fresh chew nearly as often—nor do you need so big a chew as you did with the ordinary kind.

Any man who has used the Real Tobacco Chew will tell you that.

NEGRO LYNCHED BY MOB

JONESBORO, Ark., Dec. 26—Wade Thomas, a negro, who last night shot and killed Patrolman Ragland during a raid on a dice game, was taken from the jail tonight by a mob of about 400 citizens, and after being paraded through the business streets was hanged to a telephone pole near the scene of his crime.

The body was then riddled with bullets.

Thomas was arrested early today at Hoxie, Ark., and brought here. Arrangements had been made to call a special session of the grand jury tomorrow.

The mob worked quietly. Leaders demanding admission from the jailer, who, after urging that the law be allowed to take its course, turned over the keys. Thomas was taken from his cell and with a rope around his neck, was paraded through the town, the mob following. The rope was thrown over a telephone pole, and after the negro was apparently dead, the body was riddled with bullets.

Other negroes in the jail in connection with the shooting were not molested.

Before being taken from the cell, Thomas admitted shooting the policeman, but claimed self defense.

HER DAUGHTER AND HIS SON.

BY IDAH McGLONE GIBSON

Ken is Worried.

I grew steadily better and was anxious to get out. At the beginning of the third week the doctor told me I could go down to the office for a little while on the first of the month.

"For at least two weeks, young lady," he said, "you must not in any way stretch your office hours over two hours."

I telephoned Mr. Halsey, and it warmed my heart to hear the feeling and joy that entered his voice when he recognized mine.

"Don't come downtown. Let me come up and visit you instead."

"The doctor says a little work will be good for me. He made such a queer remark this morning and although I never thought of it before, I believe he is right. He said: "Do you know, Miss Ann, it is almost harder to make people believe that they have gotten well after an illness than it is to make them believe they are sick in the first place?"

"I am sure I am well, and can come down and hear all the news about the business."

"All right my dear child, No one will be more welcome in this office than you.

"I don't believe you have been sick at all." Mr. Halsey smilingly said when he came for me one morning. "You are looking in radiant health and perfectly beautiful."

"Hush, dear Ken's dad." I said playfully, using the old childish name "I expect you are trying for the post of flatterer I spoke of the night before I was taken sick?"

"Nothing of the kind, dear, but I wish you could persuade Grace to take your rest cure. She is looking very badly lately, and yet she never rests from her social duties a minute." Mr. Halsey frowned as he said this, It was the first time that I had heard Grace's name mentioned since I had been sick, and I felt the urge of curiosity as I asked: "So Ken and Grace have been very gay since I have been ill?"

"Very" was his troubled response. "I don't think there is a night that they are not out somewhere. They never dine at home without having a crowd to eat or dance or play cards with them. Ken is almost a shadow. No man can stay up all night and work the regulation office hours. I will say this for him, however, he certainly keeps at his work, which I suspect is not going as well as he would like it, although he has said nothing to me about it."

I said nothing, but when we got to the office, Mr. Halsey said to me:

"Ann, I do not want you to work harder than is necessary, but there is one thing that I am all mixed up on and that is my personal account. My monthly statement came in yesterday and I glanced over it quickly and for the life of me I cannot account for a thousand dollars. I did not go over my checks. I had intended to do it today, but you know how I dislike that kind of detail work.

"I'll be very glad to do that, Mr. Halsey."

I seated myself at my desk, rather disappointed that Ken had not come over from his office to welcome me. I began to go over the cancelled checks and verifying his bank statement. Suddenly I came upon a check for a thousand dollars, the exact amount Mr. Halsey said he was short. My heart stopped beating. The check was made payable to cash, a thing he had never done since I had been handling his personal account, and the name signed to it, I was sure was a forgery.

True the signature was almost perfect, plenty good enough to pass muster unless the cashier suspected the person who presented it; and yet I was absolutely sure, after what Mr. Halsey said to me, and after again and again going through his check book stubs that he had never drawn that check. Who had drawn it and who had presented it.

I had the checks and statements scattered all over my desk in little piles when Ken came in. I was shocked at his appearance. He smiled and held out both his hands. While I could not mistake the gladness in his face, I noted the weary eyes and the compressed mouth.

"Welcome to our city, Ann. You will never know just how much I have missed you, but I guess it is just as well you were not here, because I am afraid I would have burdened you with my troubles. I could not talk them over with dad. He would think I was asking for help, when I only want advice and encouragement. As it was, I have talked a lot with Jimmy Callahan. He is a prince, Ann, and I am ashamed of my ignorance of business methods, when he would unravel a tangle for me without any trouble at all. By the way, where is father I want to see him immediately.

Tomorrow—A Forgery.

Sleeps Any Old Way Now

"I am 50 years old and never was sick until 8 years ago when I got stomach trouble. I have spent a fortune for medicine that did not cure. I kept on suffering and getting worse. A fellow worker told me about Mayrs Wonderful Remedy. After taking three doses I felt like a different man; before taking it I could not lie on my back or right side. Now I can sleep any old way." It is a simple harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailment, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Druggists everywhere.

All who ride motorcycles or who are interested, or may some day be interested, in this greatest of outdoor sports, are invited to attend this entertainment and general get-together party of local motorcycle fans and meet Otto Walker, holder of 100 mile National Championship.

Racing Film Will Be Shown Here

Local motorcycle fans and race enthusiasts who were unable to actually witness the big International 200 mile Road Race, held at Marion, O., will not be robbed entirely of the thrills of this motorcycle classic. An intensely interesting motion picture of the event was obtained by the Harley Davidson Motor Co., of Milwaukee, and will be shown at the Maccabee hall in this city Wednesday evening, December 29th.

Otto Walker, internationally famed racer will personally be here with the exhibition of the film and will give some interesting sidelights on the race and his experiences on the speedway. Walker has been a familiar character and consistent winner in the country's biggest events for a number of years. He first came into prominence by coming home the victor in the 300 mile race held at Venice, Calif in 1914. The following year he won the 300 mile race at Dodge City, Kansas. His most recent performance of note was the setting of a new world record for 50 miles on a 1-mile dirt track at Hanford, California. He also won the 100 mile National Championship event at Los Angeles during the 1920 season.

In addition to the Marion, Ohio, film, pictures of the 300 mile National championship race held at Dodge City, Kansas, and movies of other interesting motorcycle racers will be shown.

All who are interested in motorcycles are invited to attend.
