WORK FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

In most communities the problem of unemployment has entered to some extent, and there is general agitation for the starting of all possible public projects to provide jobs for men who need them. There is no objection to such effort, but in the public interest the work which is undertaken should be carefully determined.

It is better, since building materials are high, that extensive building programs should proceed slowly. But there are many small jobs, repairs on buildings, along highways and bridges which can be handled to advantage even under adverse weather conditions. When new construction is undertaken, the more vital need should be supplied first. School houses, for instance, are more necessary than expensive jails, or buildings designed for pleasure or for show. It is a fine time to get things done. Men who want work usually work with enthusiasm, and the skilled hand is idle just now as well as the one unaccustomed to particular jobs. The private citizen can co-operate with the public authorities in finding small matters for the man with sense enough to prefer any honest occupation to idleness. With a little careful planning as to kinds of work essential and desirable to be done at this time, the unemployment problem can be handled to the mutual benefit of the public and the men whose ordinary jobs are temporarily denied them.

FRIENDS SEE CHANGE IN THIS OAKLAND MAN

A. G. Fuller Says Tanlac Has Restored His Health And He Has Gained Thirty-Five Pounds in Weight.

"My friends all seem astonished at the wonderful change that has taken place in my condition in so short a time," said A. G. Fuller, an expert accountant of 1871 62nd Ave., Oakland, Cal.

"Following an attack of the 'flu' in 1919, I found myself in an awful rundown condition. My stomach, which had troubled me for three years, became very much worse and for two months I suffered frightfully. I rarely ate at all during that time and fell off thirty pounds in two weeks.

"I was also suffering from loss of energy and general weakness, and this, as well as the stomach trouble, became much worse. Gas would form on my stomach, causing awful pains and a feeling of suffocation. I was badly constipated and in such misery that I would often roll and toss all night long in my bed. I was so weak and nervous that I was only with great effort that I could do my work.

"My mother persuaded me to try Tanlac and my weight increased was thirty-five pounds a gain of five pounds above my usual weight—in thirty days. I can eat anything now without a sign of indigestion, my nerves are back to old-time form and I am enjoying life and good health as I have not before in years."

Tanlac is sold in Roseburg by W. F. Chapman; in Dixonville by Theo. Hatfield and by leading druggists everywhere.

DEPRECIATED CONGRESSMEN

Congressmen, like dollars, depreciate in value when they are multiplied. That is the chief argument against enlarging the membership of the house. The recent census has offered an opportunity and a temptation, and as usual, the lawmakers do not seem strong enough to resist it. Though knowing, even better than the public, how crowded their quarters are already, and how their legislative work is hampered by large numbers and the inferior quality that numbers bring, they are planning nevertheless to add nearly 50 members, bringing the total close to 599.

This is unwise, unfortunate and unnecessary. It is temporary, and being in the realm of professional politics rather than statesmanship and business sense, it would cause some hard feelings, unquestionably, if the House is held to its present membership, by raising the population unit of representation enough to balance the census increase, and as a result, eliminating a congressman or two in some states that have not grown so rapidly as the rest of the country. The states so affected might consider that they were discriminated against and there would be personal bitterness on the part of a few congressmen thus eliminated. Yet would it not be worth while, for the sake of national benefit? The grievances would soon be forgotten, and there would be no real injustice done. One representative more or less, seldom matters to a state.

If this congressional increase is to continue indefinitely, with the large growth of population, a session of the house may eventually resemble a town meeting, rather than an organization of professional law-makers.

The average congressman in admitted less capable than he used to be, when the house was smaller. Nobody, even in the house, wants the free and unlimited cologne of congressmen. Why debate the issue any farther?

MARINES VINDICATED.

There is satisfaction and relief in the report of the naval court of inquiry appointed to sift the charges of criminal misconduct on the part of American marines in Haiti. It was hard to believe in the first place that the charges were true, and that American lads had acted like Hunns, indulging in "practically indiscriminate killing of natives." The accusation was made, however, with such vigor that it was credited in some quarters. Now a group of investigators headed by Admiral Mayo declare that the record of the marines who have been polishing Haiti during the last five years is in fact extremely creditable.

The court reports that the crimes of violence known to have been committed against natives in that time have amounted to only 16 altogether, including two homicides, and that in every case the offender was tried by court-martial and given appropriate punishment. Few American consuls of any size have a better record than that.

The marines are said to have done a difficult job of policing well, as usual, making Haiti more peaceful and orderly than it had been for a century. The character of the marines has not changed. There is nothing to show that the boys doing the thankless work of suppressing brigandage and restoring order in lawless Haiti were different in character and conduct from those who won the world's admiration at Cantigny and Chateau Thierry. Their vindication is a vindication of American honor.

Legion Says Bonus Cost Misleading

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(Special Telegrams.)—The House of Representatives, before the senate finance committee yesterday, playing the cost of carrying out the pending adjusted compensation or soldier bonus bill at $2,500,000,000 was characterized by F. W. Gallbreath, national commander of the American Legion as a "scandalous estimate" which would cost the government $1,425,000,000.

"Secretary Houston's whole presentation of the matter," said the National Legion commander, "was misleading and designed to frighten the country into a repudiation of its obligation to ex-service men. The general impression was conveyed by his testimony that the passage of the compensation bill would entail the immediate appropriation of billions of dollars by the government and seriously cripple the financial condition of the treasury at present."

The facts are that appropriations necessary to carry out all the features of the bill except that the cash compensation would be negligible for this year, and for several years to come, and that appropriations for the cash compensation are not asked until July, 1921, and are to be spread over two years."

Myrtle Creek Is Scene Of Wedding

On the evening of the 27th, it being the occasion of joint installation of officers of the local lodges of the Masons and Eastern Stars in the Masonic hall in Myrtle creek, there was consummated a unique wedding when Mrs. Ida L. Harris became the bride of Mr. Henry Wood.

At the conclusion of the installation ceremonies, Mr. G. R. Bates, installing officer, announced that Mrs. Bates would play an instrumental selection, after which Rev. Wood, pastor of the Methodist church would speak a few words.

At a given signal Mrs. Bates began playing the wedding march, at which time the minister took his place at the altar, and the local party, preceded by a little girl, who acted as ring bearer, marched in from the ante-room, and the beautiful ring ceremony was pronounced.

The wedding had been arranged by a few friends of the contracting parties and was a complete surprise to the one hundred or more guests who were present.

The bridegroom, Mr. Henry Wood, is a prosperous farmer of Sheridan, Yamhill county, while the bride is the retiring matron of Valentine, Ind. O. E. S., of Myrtle Creek, where she is esteemed and loved by her many friends. X X X

CHEERFUL WORDS

For Many a Roseburg Household
To have the pain and ache of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying dangerous urinary diseases—is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who suffered will prove helpful to hundreds of Roseburg readers.

Mrs. W. R. Conlee, 319 W. Washington street, Roseburg, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills for some time and have found them very beneficial. My kidneys were weak, and I often had dull headaches, I felt dull and languid, and my kidneys acted irregularly. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and used them as directed. They helped me by relieving the backache and other signs of the trouble. I gladly recommend Doan's to anyone in need of a kidney remedy."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for Kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Conlee had. Foster-McMillan Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Fish Eggs Had A Stormy Trip

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 29.—Two million salmon eggs collected for the Rogue river by the state fish and game commission recently, hatched on the way, according to report in the commission. The eggs were on board the steamer Trump, and as the vessel reached Coos Bay began showing signs of life. Severe storms along the coast had delayed the vessel beyond the expected time of arrival. The fish children were sent to a hatchery close to Coos Bay.

War Veteran Goes Back to Soil

ROOD RIVER, Ore., Dec. 28.—Albert Dean, world war veteran, still suffering from the effects of 15 wounds, has purchased from C. R. Bous a ten-acre tract near Roseburg, in the upper valley. He expects to develop the tract to strawberries and peaches. Dean has just arrived here from a military hospital. He suffered serious wounds from a high explosive shell which penetrated his abdomen, and also was wounded in the spine.
