THE WATCHFUL LEGION.

The American Legion will do all it can to see that officials at Washington are held to strict accountability for liberal construction of present laws and such new ones as may be passed for the benefit of disabled soldiers, and for prompt and effective administration of relief under these laws.

A committee from the Legion has been in conference with the heads of the three bureaus now in charge of the affairs of the disabled men, and an outline has been made for consolidating these bureaus and for further legislation.

A survey made by the Legion recently shows that three avenues of relief for the disabled are sadly in arrears. They are sufficient hospital and medical treatment, proper compensation for disability, and fair opportunity for vocational training.

It is not surprising that measures even for so pressing a thing as relief for the disabled has fallen short in many instances. The country was as little prepared for this contingency as for the many others arising from the war, or for the war itself.

FARM LABOR.

A hundred years ago, says the secretary of agriculture, 87 per cent of all American labor was employed on the farms. In 1890 the percentage had dropped to 29. Now it is not more than 20, perhaps less.

These figures have an obvious bearing on the immigration question. Farn labor is not needed in such volume as it used to be. The use of machinery has made labor a smaller factor in agriculture. Still, machinery will never make labor unnecessary. There are always men needed to run the machines.

The farm labor supply has been lamentably short in the last three or four years, and there is little promise of relief. Any easing of the situation that might come with industrial depression will be lost again as soon as the mills and factories resume work and the men drift back to the cities.

The suggestion is made that after the proposed year's prohibition of immigration, immigrants should be welcomed particularly from the agricultural countries of northern Europe, and that when they arrive the government should see that they go to the farms where they belong.

Keeping young by going to school with the younger generation grows in favor with the mothers of today. Just recently a story has been printed concerning a grandmother who is attending a southern university.

Among the thousand or more investors with the defunct bond house of Morris Bros. Inc., Portland, we have failed, so far, to note the name of a single newspaperman in the state who has made any investment with them.

Efficient and contented employees mean good service. It is their due and our desire that their compensation be equal to that paid in other lines of business activity.

Adequate service is dependent upon adequate rates.

Since the Hungarian throne has been offered to Prince Axel, of course Hungary's fate turns on him.

Will it take more government employees to do the work of eliminating the unnecessary employees?

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

MR. MOEN THINKS VANDERHOFF'S PAPER IS O. K.

106 N. Parrott St., Roseburg, Ore., Dec. 29, 1920.

To the Editor, News-Review: In your issue of Dec. 28th appeared an item, also an editorial, in which you have endeavored to expose the scheme of one Mr. Vanderhoff in securing advertisements and subscriptions from the business men and people of Roseburg, one thing that has heretofore been foremost in retarding the best interests of any community.

I wish to say that I, personally, cannot accept the information of your issue of the 28th as true, until such time as I am given evidence from our state labor bodies, to whom I am writing for information.

I feel that these men, both members of the International Association of Machinists, were earnestly trying to bring about a better feeling between the working men and business men of Roseburg, one thing that has heretofore been foremost in retarding the best interests of any community.

This, like a number of other working men's papers, give news of the true conditions of the working men than do any of the so-called association papers, which will make the business men to obtain a better understanding of the working men's conditions.

As to the "moral" of your editorial, I would like to ask if most of the business men of Roseburg have not patronized your paper as much as can be expected? Don't you think it fair that they should also advertise in a paper that is circulated all along the coast? I believe that this will be a boost to Roseburg, and as for the paper, let us wait till it goes to the wall before we draw conclusions.

As to the character of the men, all that I have heard thru men who are personally acquainted with them, is that they are conservative, respectful and persistent workers.

Being neither a writer nor an orator, I do not wish to go further with this article, but as I was personally involved in the credentials mentioned, I have done my best and hope all who read this will understand how I feel about it.

Yours sincerely, W. L. MOEN. (Editor's Note—The News-Review would like to ask Mr. Moen to kindly furnish this office with a copy of the answer to his communication sent to state labor headquarters, that it may be given publication).

Wm. Pollman May Be Commissioner

SALEM, Oregon, December 30.—The name of William Pollman of Baker, one of Eastern Oregon's most prominent bankers and stockmen, is prominently mentioned in state house circles in connection with an appointment to fill the vacancy on the state highway commission caused by the death of E. E. Kiddle at his home in Island City Tuesday morning.

Douglas County Sends 12 Students

CORVALLIS, Dec. 30.—Douglas county has 12 agricultural students in the college during the first term of this school year. They are: Sam W. Armstrong, of Gardiner, a senior; Raymond E. McCormack, of Roseburg, a junior; Lester J. Bartholomew of Drain and Allan F. Tuthill, of Sutherlin, sophomores; Sommer W. Brown, of Yoncalla; George A. Binder of Elkton; William J. Curtis, Jr. of Comstock; and Robert L. Irvine, of Wilbur, freshmen; Clifford N. Lilly, of Dixonville; Jean C. Miller of Riddle and A. J. Townsend of Oakland, sophomores; and Charles Roemer of Riddle and Marcus W. Barnes of Elkton, vocationalists.

All of the Oregon counties are represented in the school of agriculture with the exception of Curry, Harney and Jefferson. Benton county leads in the enrollment of agricultural students in the college with a total of 65, or two more than Multnomah county.

Twenty-six of the Oregon counties have 79 of the 154 federal rehabilitation men enrolled for agricultural training in the college. Multnomah has 15 men, Benton and Marion, 8 each, Lane 6, Umatilla 4, Baker, Clackamas, Douglas, Linn, Union and Washington, 3 each, Klamath, Lincoln, Polk, Morrow and Yamhill 2 each, Columbia, Crook, Deschutes, Hood River, Jackson, Lake, Malheur, Wallowa and Wasco, 1 each.

In addition to the federal rehabilitation men enrolled at the college the state has 11 industrial rehabilitation men enrolled at the college which these men were sent here to school was passed by the special session of the legislature in 1920. The act itself is an extension of the Workmen's Compensation Act, enacted in 1913.

Telephone Rates and the Decline in Prices!

The Telephone Company has asked its patrons in Oregon to pay more for their telephone service. It has placed the facts and figures of the situation before the Public Service Commission for their investigation and verification. The increases will not amount to much to individual subscribers, but the aggregate will permit the Company to properly maintain and develop its service.

We have shown the Commission that we are operating at a loss. Our expenses are greater than our earnings. The owners of the property are receiving nothing for their Oregon investment and the interest due on debts which should properly be borne by the Oregon properties are not being paid from Oregon receipts.

At the hearing before the Public Service Commission not a fact or figure presented by the Company was disputed or disproved. The only material contention made was that increases were perhaps inopportune in view of the apparent decline in general commodity prices.

The Company is asking for a reasonable return upon its existing investment, without regard to the uncertainties of the future. The Company files periodical reports of its operations with public authorities and its future investments will be the subject of constant consideration and future adjustments, if necessary.

Salaries and wages make up 72 per cent of our current expenses. We hope they will not be reduced and do not think they should be.

In the five years 1916-1920, inclusive, we have increased the wages of our plant people $307,000.00. Our traffic (operating) employees $681,000.00, commercial employees, $98,000.00, a total of $1,086,000.00 per annum.

Efficient and contented employees mean good service. It is their due and our desire that their compensation be equal to that paid in other lines of business activity.

Adequate service is dependent upon adequate rates.
