Movie Closeups

Charles Ray dons overalls and carries a dinner pail in his new picture, "Red Hot Dollars" which will be the attraction at the Antlers theatre for Saturday only.

The youthful star has the role of Tod Burke, a machinist in a small town iron foundry. Peter Garton, owner of the foundry is cold and selfish and has been the means of driving to the wall, Angus Muir, his business associate. Muir, and his financial daughter, Janet, live in poor financial straits in a humble cottage. Tod picks up an acquaintance with them.

Later, his quick wit enables him to save his employer's life when a heavy timber falls, though Tod himself is hurt. Old Garton is affected by the boy's sacrifice and taking him to his mansion looks after him while he regains his strength, and then decides to adopt him. Tod tells Muir of his good fortune, innocent of the strong enmity between them, and drives him from his house. Thereupon Tod gets Janet a position in the Garton offices and the two evolve a clever and successful scheme to bring about a reconciliation between Muir and Garton.

"Red Hot Dollars" is said to provide Charles Ray with a characteristic role. The supporting company is headed by Gladys George. It is a Paramount-Artcraft production.

Hobart Bosworth is the star in "Below the Surface" coming to the Majestic theatre for four days commencing today.

The picture is declared to be a powerful dramatically and artistically produced picture as Mr. Bosworth's previous Thomas H. Ince vehicle, "Behind the Door."

The story centers around Martin Flint, played by the star, and his son Luther, deep sea diver, living in a small New England village. Martin's rescue of the crew of a submarine by means of a record dive, brings him to the attention of an unscrupulous promoter, James Arnold, who approaches the diver with a proposition to salvage the treasure of an old wreck. Martin denounces the proposition as foolhardy, but Luther, lured on by Edna Gordon, an underworld character, who accompanies Gordon, agrees to make the dive. As a reward Edna marries Luther, despite Martin's objections.

Luther collapses in his attempt to reach the treasure. Edna deserts him. Martin traces the girl to Boston, bundles her on the steamer and starts back with her. Gordon secretly hides himself and follows them back in the same boat. The steamer is wrecked and Arnold and Edna are drowned together. Martin escapes, but insists upon diving for his wife's body, and, doing so, discovers her perfidy. The boy's air line becomes fouled, Martin saves him from death.

A notable cast supports Mr. Bosworth, including Grace Darmond, Lloyd Hughes, Gladys George and George Webb.

Mary Roberts Reinhart, eminent American author, has again done something individual and original. She has admitted that "It's a Great Life," a pen child of hers, is better as a moving picture than it is as a story. Following closely upon the impressions of several well known authors whose novels have been filmed at great cost by picture studios and who were "surprised" "displeased" of "indifferent" over the results, this frank enthusiasm by one of the country's most popular humorists is decidedly refreshing.

"Empire Builders" called "It's a Great Life" in the serial version as a Saturday Evening Post story, over by thousands. It is in the writer's keenest style, and every line is alive with effervescent humor. The story of a boy's prep school, its spirit of youth and adventure, is delightful to both old and young. No parent can fail to appreciate, and every boy and girl will feel that indissoluble bond—the affinity of youth for the romance of youth, when Stoddard and the Wop, the young heroes embark to their "Imaginary Isle" of their dreams.

A romantic tale of moonlight and pearls, white elephants, and Grand Vizors, it is also a picture of every day boy life crammed with humorous situations.

I hoped to find that the spirit of the picture had been maintained, and I was amazed to find that E. Mason Hopper, its director, had not only does this, but has developed possibilities I did not know existed. I am delighted also to find that the picture is excellent from an artistic standpoint. It is one of the most beautiful films I have ever seen" declared the author, who traveled from Chicago to the Goldwyn studios in Los Angeles, to perfectly cut and subtitle "It's a Great Life."

This remarkable photoplay will be seen at the Antlers theatre Sunday only, matinee and evening.

A COLD SAPS VITALITY

The fever-acting inflammation and other disagreeable features always present with your head and throat colds, lessen your working ability and efficiency.

If a cold is not treated when the first symptoms show themselves, it will frequently develop into more serious complications. Besides this, colds are unnecessary. Their duration will be greatly shortened by the use of Rexall Laxative Aspirin, (U. D. C.) Cold Tablets. They contain Aspirin, Acetaminol, Aloin and Capsicum.

These ingredients are most valuable in relieving pain, reducing fever, drying up coryza, lessening inflammation, eliminating poisonous secretions, warming up the stomach and shortening the duration of the disease.

Get a box of these cold tablets of us today. Take them according to the directions the moment the first symptoms appear and you will obtain real relief.

We guarantee them.

MOSTLY OF INDIAN ORIGIN

Twenty-Five of the Forty-Eight States of the Country Have Practically Native Names.

Of our 48 states we find that 25 bear names of Indian origin, while 12 are English, six Spanish and three French. Two states may be said to have American names. The first is Washington, named after the Father of our Country, and the second Indiana, so called on account of the purchase and subsequent settlement by various Indian tribes of large tracts of land north of the Ohio river and within the present boundaries of the state.

When we review Indian state names, we must remember that there was no one Indian tongue. Instead, there were several separate and distinct languages, and each of these was divided into many dialects. Hence the wide variance in Indian names in different sections.

Wisconsin, written by early French explorers of the region as Ouisconsin and named for its chief stream, is thought to have come from a Sac Indian word translated as Wild Rush Channel, and also as having reference to holes in the banks of streams where birds nest. However, neither of these interpretations can be confirmed. — National Geographic Magazine.

Artificial Wool

The artificial wool which has been under test at Leeds (Eng.) university is produced from cotton waste. Its basis being cellulose acetate. It is claimed that the product is an even better insulator against heat and cold than wool, that it takes dyes successfully, and that it will wear well. In the experiments made, it has been satisfactorily converted into fabrics. Equal parts of artificial wool and natural wool gave a cloth resembling tweed, and the head of the university's textile department has suggested that this should be useful for men or women fancying homespun effects in clothing. Cheapness and possible wearing qualities constitute the special appeal of the material. Its defects are said to include inelasticity and liability to break, and these unfit it for yarns of the worsted type, requiring a combing length of two inches or more, though it may serve well for yarn and cloth where short fibers are suitable.

New Aircraft Rises Vertically

Stimulated by recent offers of large money prizes a number of French aeronautical engineers are busy with the construction of vertically rising, heavier-than-air machines. The largest of these is a helicopter, characterized by its unusually large size and substantial construction, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The wings resemble in plan the leaves of a four-leaf clover, and are carried on metal tubes which radiate from a central upright. This upright is mounted on the middle of the metal fuselage and is revolved by a nine-cylinder radial engine.

Had a Home-Made Lock

A few years ago we were enjoying a vacation trip in a little car of ancient vintage. This little car had been built originally without a windshield; later we had improvised one, using a bent wood frame. One day while I was waiting for my wife another motorist walked up to me and said: "Do you know that car of yours doesn't look so bad until one sees the wind shield, and then any one can tell you made the whole thing yourself." — Exchange.

HER DAUGHTER AND HIS SON.

BY IDAH MCGLONE GIBSON

One Woman's Philosophy.

"Yes, she has," said Mamie in answer to my question about Grace and Sellers, "but I can't understand it at all. He seems to have some peculiar fascination for her. I think perhaps it is because he impresses her with his utter lack of moral sense, and she likes to think that perhaps she may have some influence over him for good. Some women are like that you know. At least they make that excuse to themselves."

"Poor Kenneth! A woman who would be attracted by sellers would never be interested long in Ken's general ways."

I must have expressed some of my weariness in my face, for Mamie came over and put her arms about me, saying: "Ann, you would have me tell you all this. I did not intend to tire you. Let's have something to eat, and then, if you like, we will take a drive. If not, I will go away and leave you alone so that you can rest."

"I do not feel the slightest hunger, but perhaps if we had a cup of chocolate and a chicken sandwich it would do us both good."

"After that you may take me to the theater, Ann. I had all but forgotten that we have a rehearsal this afternoon, and I am sure that it will be better for you to go out into the open air by yourself afterward."

"Yes, and I will take my nurse home. I don't need her any more after today. By the way, Mamie, wouldn't you like to come to this hotel and live with me? I would like to repay you for the long time that you had me with you and your family in your apartment."

Mamie looked about and gave a sigh. "Oh, I would love to come, Ann. I would love to come, but I could not leave mother, you know. She worked so hard and helped me so much to get the little musical education that I have, and she is proud of everything that I do now that I couldn't take from her the joy she gets of seeing me daily. Sometimes, Ann, said Mamie with a little twinkle in her eye, "I manufacture little theatrical triumphs of mine for her benefit."

"Your dear girl," I said. "Your friendship, Mamie, is worth all the unhappiness I had those first years after my mother died. After all, nothing is ever lost and whatever comes helps us to something better. If I had not lost my money and wandered into the restaurant and been threatened by Sellers, I would never have known you, and knowing you as I do is one of the great achievements of my life. If, when my father comes back, I find I have as much money as they say that I will have, you shall have a company of your own and your name in electric lights in front of the theater."

"Oh, my dear, to hear you say that makes me very happy, but I don't want anything that I have not earned."

"You have earned it many times over, and if I should give it to you I would still be your debtor. I would never have known you, and knowing you as I do is one of the great achievements of my life. If, when my father comes back, I find I have as much money as they say that I will have, you shall have a company of your own and your name in electric lights in front of the theater."

don't think that Jerry Hathaway is that kind of a man, do you?"

"My dear, Jerry Hathaway is all things to all women. He hasn't paid enough attention to me, however, for me to judge." Mamie closed her eyes a moment and then said, "Yes, I have known one man, one man that I would follow to the ends of the earth," and then she stopped short. She had forgotten that I was there.

MOTHER EARTH CHOSE WELL

Old Lady's Decision on Green for Coloring Much More Than Accidental.

Why did Mother Earth choose a dress in green? The earth was not always green. Scientists say that once it was as naked as the moon; but there came a day when the weather grew cool enough to demand clothing and at that time, no doubt, this maternal planet began to look about to choose a color scheme for her dress. Why she chose green is not on record, but that she chose it with her whole heart every pleasant place of creation testifies.

Scientists explain that this is merely a natural phenomenon, the color being chlorophyll pigment, turned green by action of the sun. But why it did not turn blue or red or black, no scientist knows. About all they can say is that Mother Earth wanted a green dress, and she got it.

Green is a restful color. Oculists say that of all colors green is the most friendly to the optic nerve. In lands where eternal snows or eternal white sands flash up their glaring reflections, men have to shade their eyes or go blind. But green never bothers the eye. One can stare a forest in the face all day with impunity. Nature's greens never get on your nerves, and they never quarrel with any other of nature's colors and tints.

The professional mixer of paints knows that the color discord can easily be created by a misplacing of green. But nature never misplaces it. Even blue stands without trying, cheek by cheek with nature's greens. Larkspurs and lobelias go quietly arm in arm with their respective foliage. A rose of any tint or color's best set off by a green rose leaf. Every spring or fall color, pale or florid, will shade pleasantly into green on the very same leaf.

Imagine the grass of the field and the leaves of the forest created blue, or magenta, or scarlet, instead of green! Some speculative scientists think the foliage of the planet Mars is red, and that the people there are seeing red continually.—Louisville Courier-Journal.
