Sutherland News Items of Interest

SUTHERLIN, Jan 3.—At the regular monthly meeting of the city council this week, bills aggregating $1,118.74 were paid. Over six hundred dollars of this amount was for interest on city water bonds. The equipment for the new water system has arrived and will be installed as rapidly as possible.

Mrs. George P. Trites is confined to her home on Third avenue by illness. Miss Vesta Kruse of the S. D. A. Office force is also ill at her home. During the past three or four weeks there have been several cases of the scarlet fever in town, two or three of which were of a serious nature. All however, are now recovering, and quarantine regulations have been lifted on most of the homes where the cases occurred.

The Fair Oaks Literary society will be organized at their school house on Saturday evening of this week. Sheriff Sam Starmer has appointed C. A. Stark deputy for Sutherland. Mr. Stark served as deputy for several years under ex-sheriff Geo. Quine and made a most competent and efficient official.

At a meeting of the city council this week, the council went on record as favoring the installation of water meters, water users to put in the meters at their own expense, approximately $13 each. It is probable that those property owners who are gardens during the summer would prefer to pay 50 or 75 cents extra per month this summer rather than go to the expense of installing a meter. If the city marshal has evidence of "water hogs" or careless waste he should cut off the supply, as provided by the ordinance. A similar provision is made for those who fail to pay water bills when due.

The Ladies of the Presbyterian church are arranging for an entertainment, to be presented at the Gem theatre on Tuesday evening, January 18. The title of the play to be presented is "The Old Maid's Convention."

A. F. McIntyre and family depart today for Portland where Mr. McIntyre has accepted a position and where the family will make their future home.

R. H. Penland, of Scotts, Saskatchewan, Canada, arrived here last week with his family and will make their future home on their orchard tract east of town, where Mr. Penland will build a modern home in the spring.

Mark N. Tisdale, who had the affair in charge, reports that Sutherland has raised its quota of $100 for the relief of Europe's starving children.

NAPOLÉON'S ONE BIG QUALITY

Great Frenchman's Fascination Lay in His Directness, That's All, Says H. G. Wells.

The world has largely recovered from the mischief that Napoleon did; perhaps that amount of mischief had to be done by some agency; perhaps his career, or some such career, was a necessary consequence of the world's mental unpreparedness for the crisis of the revolution. But that his peculiar personality should dominate the imaginations of great numbers of people, throws a light upon factors of enduring significance in our human problem.

Marat was a far more noble, persistent, subtle and pathetic figure; Talleyrand a greater statesman and a much more amusing personality; Moreau and Hoch able leaders of armies; his rival, Cesar Alexander, an egotistical, more successful, more emotional, and with a finer imagination. Are men dazzled simply by the scale of his floundering, by the mere vastness of his notoriety?

No doubt scale has something to do with the matter; he was a "record," the record plunger; but there is something more in it than that. There is an appeal in Napoleon to something deeper and more fundamental in human nature than mere astonishment at his deeds. His very deficiencies bring out starkly certain qualities that lurk suppressed and hidden in us all. He was unhampered. He had never a gleam of religion, or affection, or the sense of duty.

Directness was his distinctive and immortalizing quality. He had no brains to waste in secondary considerations. He flung his armies across Europe straight at their mark, there never were such marches before; he fought to win; when he struck, he struck with all his might. And what he wanted, he wanted simply and completely and got—if he could.

There lies his fascination.—From "The Outline of History," by H. G. Wells.

HOTEL MEN NOT ALL BAD

Wayne B. Wheeler Tells Good Story to Prove the Truth of Assertion He Makes.

Wayne B. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon league said in San Francisco:

"I think we're unjust to hotel men as a rule. We are too ready to accuse them of robbery. As a matter of fact, they are a very fine lot.

"I once knew an engineer who was traveling in Nevada. He had a good deal of money with him, and one night he put up at a very primitive hotel in the wilds. The landlord of this hotel looked like a brigand, and the engineer could hardly sleep for fear.

"Nothing, however, happened, and the next morning he set off with a relieved heart. The mountain trail was a lonely one, and on toward noon, in a wild and desolate spot, three desperadoes fell on him, emptied his valise and pockets, and made off.

"The engineer was convinced that the landlord was at the bottom of this holdup. Accordingly he turned back to notify the authorities. But he had only gone a mile or so when he met a mounted messenger, who handed him a small packet. Pinned to the packet was a note from the villainous landlord that said:

"I inclose your pocketbook containing $850, which you left under your pillow last night. Please send receipt by bearer."

Have You Euphoria?
It takes a doctor to give a high-sounding name to a well-known phenomenon. "Euphoria" means "feeling fit." It is as much a physiological fact as scarlet fever.

Nature makes it worth while to be alive simply through euphoria. The joy of making a good tennis stroke, the delight that a woodsman gets in the open air, the artist's rhapsody—all are due to euphoria. Why do we drink alcohol—when we can get it—or smoke tobacco? To effect euphoria. When a lunatic thinks that he is Napoleon and demands the homage due an emperor, he has euphoria in its worst form.

Too little is known about euphoria. Since it can be effected by drugs and chemicals, who knows but it may have its seat in some gland?—Popular Science Monthly.

Aerial Photography in Sales.

Aerial photography has entered the real estate field. Now, if you wish to buy a suburban residence, a downtown property or a country house, you can go to a broker's office and examine, probably with a reading glass, a most interesting and detailed aerial photograph of the neighborhood that you have in mind. The aerial picture very quickly brings the customer to a decision, either to see the property or to look elsewhere. It saves time and the expense of long and often futile trips.—Youth's Companion.

Plan to Keep the Raisin Busy.

There is an unprecedented demand for raisins at the present time because of their use in the manufacture of house brews, but it is anticipated that this will be changed in the course of a few years because the interest in the preparations will decline and in view of that the Agricultural department is at work in discovering new uses for raisins so that the industry will not be wrecked. When the raisin-growers' product shows signs of a drop the government will step in with some valuable suggestions for its continuance.

FORDSON

TRADE MARK

Farm Tractor!

More than 100,000 Fordson tractors have been sold to farmers in the United States. They are helping those farmers do more and better work in less time and at less cost. North, East, South, West—everywhere the Fordson has proven itself a money-maker and a real necessity to the farmer. Besides it is helping mightily to solve the labor problem.

These one hundred thousand and more practical farmers have affirmed the economy—the exceptionally low fuel and operating cost—of the Fordson; its time and labor-saving qualities and its ability to increase production; it is compact and devoid of excessive weight. And it is built of the same strong iron and steel as is the Ford car.

Winter or bad weather does not hinder the Fordson's usefulness. Day or night—twenty-four hours a day if you choose—you can utilize the Fordson.

Only so many Fordsons are allotted this territory. Orders are being filled in sequence—first come first served. Let us have yours now.

There's a practical use for the Fordson every day of the year. Let's tell you. Come in and have a tractor talk. Give us the chance to make a demonstration on your own farm.
