HIS TIME ALL TOO SHORT

Dying Profiteer Could Not Make Complete Confession of Iniquity in One Brief Day.

Armin W. Riley, head of the "flying squadron" that hunts down profiteers for the department of justice, told a profiteer story at a Washington reception.

"A sick profiteer," he said, "was told by his physician that he had only a short time to live. Accordingly, he expressed a desire to confess his sins, and a divine was sent for."

"The divine entered the dying profiteer's chamber and the door was closed. An hour, two hours, three hours passed. Nothing was to be heard by the attendant nurses and physicians outside in the corridor save the steady, monotonous flow of the profiteer's confession, punctuated at brief intervals by exclamations of horror and indignation on the part of the divine."

"Lunch was sent into the sickroom, and the confession went on. The afternoon waned. The sun set. Night fell. The divine's dinner was carried to him. And still the profiteer continued to confess."

"Haggard and unstrung, the divine at last tottered forth at daybreak. 'Our unfortunate friend,' he said, 'is no more. He worked very, very hard; but at the time he passed away he had only carried his confession through the first year of the war.'"

Styles have had queer origins, and none more unique than the fontange, a style of hair dressing popular in the early part of the eighteenth century. The dressing consisted largely of doing the hair high and binding it in place with a jeweled fillet or ribbon. At one time it was worn by every lady in the court of Louis XIV, and from there it spread to all parts of the civilized world where fashion reigned. The manner of its origin is this:

The king went for a ride one morning with Mlle. de Fontagne, a lovely girl with whom the king was madly in love, and who was not cold to his advances. In fact she shortly took her place as his favorite. As they rode, her hair came tumbling down, and there is reason to believe the little comedy that followed had been staged in advance, even to the loosening of the pins that allowed her beautiful tresses to escape. At any rate, the lady slipped from her horse, and with a laugh lifted her skirts and took off a jeweled garter which she bound around her hastily repined hair. The king was delighted with the by-play, and upon arriving at the palace announced the mode the most becoming in the world. Within 24 hours every coquette and matron in the court had adopted the fashion.

This Portland Woman Gained 15 Pounds by Use of Tanlac.

"It is simply wonderful the way Tanlac has built me up, for I not only feel fine, but have gained 15 pounds in weight," declared Mrs. A. J. Turner, of 129 1-2 Russell street, Portland, Ore.

"Before taking Tanlac, I had no appetite to speak of and what little I did eat didn't digest properly. I was so nervous the least little unusual noise would startle me, and I was so restless and worried about myself that I couldn't sleep nights. In this weakened and run down condition, I caught cold very easily, no sooner getting rid of one than I had caught another. I had been suffering in this way for eight months following an operation and an illness of several years. Not one of the medicines I took did me the least bit of good and I was mighty badly discouraged."

"But it is a fact I commenced to get better before I finished half of my first bottle of Tanlac. My appetite improved and I picked right up in weight and strength. I have just finished my third bottle, and as I have said before, I have actually gained fifteen pounds in weight. I am no longer nervous, and I sleep like a child every night. Tanlac certainly built me up and I will always recommend it, and I hope my statement will help others to get the same relief from use of this grand medicine that I did."

Tanlac is sold in Roseburg by W. F. Chapman, in Dixonville by Thos. Hatfield and by leading druggists everywhere.

Julien Josephson Announces Change

Julien Josephson, formerly a resident of Roseburg and now one of the best known scenario writers in the motion picture world, has announced that hereafter he will be associated with the editorial staff of the Goldwyn studios. Mr. Josephson has been connected with Thomas H. Ince for the past few years, and more recently has been producing stories under the banner of the Associated Producers. The first production of the Associated Producers was "Homestead Folks," by Julien Josephson, which showed in this city. Mr. Josephson has been specializing under Ince in stories for Charles Ray, many of which have shown in this city, and which have brought Mr. Josephson to the highest rank among scenario writers. The Motion Picture News, a widely circulated exhibitors' magazine, has the following to say concerning the change:

"Goldwyn announces the acquisition of another noted scenario writer as a member of its editorial staff at Culver City, California, in the person of Julien Josephson. Mr. Josephson has for a number of years been among the most original and successful screen writers."

As a member of the Goldwyn scenario staff under the direction of Managing Editor J. G. Hawks, Mr. Josephson will specialize in the adaptation of stories for the use of Will Rogers and Tom Moore, two well known stars whose popularity is increasing steadily. They appear frequently at the local theaters and are recognized favorites here.

IF YOU ARE METHODIST, THEN THIS WILL APPEAL.

Tuesday night is "Methodist night" at the Bulgin tabernacle. The evangelist has a special discourse for the people of our church, and every Methodist is urged to be on hand. The invitation is also extended to all friends of the Methodist church, and those who have been Methodists in other places. The members and friends are to meet at 6:30 as possible Tuesday evening at the Methodist church, and after forming are to march to the tabernacle in a body and occupy a reserved section. Let us make the occasion one that is flattering to the Bulgin party, who have given the time for this special night for Methodism. If you have a phone, use it and call everyone you know who is either a Methodist or a friend of the church. Plan to be there. Don't plan anything else. Pep, loyalty, vision, will produce a fine program if every fellow feels that the occasion depends on him. There will be some "snappy" features arranged at the church. Get busy, get on the job. Be at the church promptly—don't be late. Remember all friends of Methodism and all Methodists are to be at the Methodist church as near 6:30 Tuesday evening as possible.
