Benjamin Franklin Birthday Honored

(By Associated Press).

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—The versatile accomplishments of Benjamin Franklin will be retold throughout the country by various organizations on January 17, the 215th anniversary of his birth. In a number of celebrations, tributes will be paid to him as a statesman, diplomat, philosopher, scientist, journalist, an economist, salesman, philanthropist, humorist, printer and publisher.

As an advocate of spending less than one makes Franklin is to be honored on his birthday by the National Thrift week committee, which is encouraging other celebrations of his work. The University of Pennsylvania is alumni plan to hail him as the founder of their alma mater.

Libraries in many cities will call attention to Franklin as the founder of the first public libraries in the colonies.

Music Teachers Meet Next Week

The first meeting of the year of the Douglas county Music Teachers Association will be held at the Umpqua Hotel Tuesday of next week, at noon. The meeting will be in the form of a luncheon at noon, in the private dining room, and the association will be honored with a visit from the State President, Frederich W. Goodrich, of Portland. Mr. Goodrich is a well known Portland musician, and has been president of the association for the past two years. He will address the club members concerning the various branches of the Music Teachers Associations of the state, and will also speak along general lines of musical education. The noon luncheons of the club held last year were very popular, and a large attendance is expected at this time to hear Mr. Goodrich. Plans will be discussed at this time for the spring meetings of the association.

Chicago's Forest Reserve Enormous

(By Associated Press).

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—In its fifth year Chicago's forest preserve, encircling the city in a great outer park belt, numbers 18,028 acres, and cost $7,200,000, Peter Reinberg, president of the district reports. In 1920 the preserve entertained more than 3,000,000 people.

The park already includes more than half of the 30,000 acres of the available wooded land behind Chicago, and new tracts are continuously being added.

Indian Day, held in the preserve last year commemorating tribes that once lived in these same wooded lands, proved so successful that it will be made an annual event. The descendants of the tribes were taken to the preserve for the affair.

Chas. White Wants To Fight Leonard

(By United Press).

CHICAGO, Jan. 13—Charley White on whom Chicago still lays its claims to pugilistic honors is now clamoring for another chance at Benny Leonard and the lightweight championship.

White said he was making every effort to get a fight with the champion soon after the Ritchie Mitchell-Leonard fight in NewYork tomorrow night if Leonard wins.

The Chicago fighter said that "influence' close to Tex Rickard had prevented his appearance at Madison Square garden so far, but he believed he had overcome these and that the bout could be arranged.

White is still talking about the time, when in a fight with Leonard at Benton Harbor, he knocked the champion down, although Leonard came back and slipped over the K. O. in the fourteenth round. White is of the opinion that Leonard has been slipping since that fight.

HER DAUGHTER AND HIS SON.

BY IDAH McGLONE GIBSON

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

GRACE CAMERON, a beautiful daughter of a wealthy mother, whose sole idea is to have her marry wealth.

ANN WHITSON, the daughter of a fine, wholesome woman about whose marriage there is a mystery.

KENNETH HALSEY, the son of a wealthy father and motherless from infancy.

JIMMY CALLAHAN, a childhood playmate of Ann Whitson.

The theme is a present-day romance of American life, reflecting the strength and weaknesses of our marital ideas and ideals, and portraying graphically the influence of environment on character.

(Synopsis of previous chapters: Grace Cameron, a picture of feminine loveliness, is the daughter of wealthy parents. Her mother raised her with the sole idea of having her contract a marriage with wealth. The mother's method developed wonderful physical charm in the girl, but she neglected the child's spiritual side, and so dwarfed her soul. Ann Whitson, a childhood playmate of Grace Cameron, is raised by a splendid mother, who contracted an unfortunate marriage, and therefore hopes that Ann will never marry. Ann's mother dies, and because of the village gossip about her father, who believing that his first wife was dead, had married Ann's mother, only to learn immediately thereafter that his first wife was living. Ann's father, believing he had ruined the life of Ann's mother and his own, disappeared. Vague rumors that he had gone into the wilds of Africa drifted back. Because of these things, Ann, following her mother's death, determined to go to a big city to make her own way in the world. Upon arriving there she lost her inheritance of $1000 and found herself penniless. After various adventures in which she meets Jerome Hathaway, the son of a wealthy restaurant owner, and Mamie Riley, Jerome tells Ann that he found her money near the depot and returns the money. She became secretary to Kenneth Halsey's father and after Mr. Halsey had learned of her presence in the city, Grace Cameron and Ann Whitson were rivals for the affection of Kenneth Halsey. Grace Cameron, aided by her scheming mother, finally married Kenneth and began a course of ruinous extravagance. As secretary to Mr. Halsey, Ann handles his banking matters. One day she finds a forged check in his account for $1000. She suspects Kenneth. To protect him she deposits her own money—her mother's life insurance—only to learn later that Jerome Hathaway had not really found her money, that he had, as an act of friendship, pretended so. Ann, having deposited her money to protect, as she thought, Kenneth, could not reimburse Jerome, and so Ann is worried. Grace Cameron calls on Ann and confesses she forged the check to make good a loss at a fashionable gambling club. Meantime Ann learns that her father, whom she has never seen and who does not know she was born, is alive and returning home, wealthy.

Grace Halsey—Penitent.

Grace continued:

"I was going to the villa,' Mr. Sellers said, 'I feel like this is my winning night. After meeting you, it could not be otherwise.'

"Immediately the idea fired my imagination, and I exclaimed, 'Oh I would like to go there.'

"There is no reason why you should not" he answered, "I have seen the best women in the town there. Indeed, I think it is considered a little smart to be seen at the Villa tables occasionally. The evening is young yet. Why don't you come tonight?"

"Why, I don't think it would be the right thing for me to go without Ken."

"Mr. Sellers laughed a little at this then he said: 'Mrs. Halsey, I think that is one of the places a woman can be seen without her husband, and not cause any comment.

"By this time we had reached the Villa, and Mr. Sellers had alighted, but he still held the door open invitingly."

"I haven't any money" I said hesitatingly.

"Oh Ann, how I wish I had not gone. I ought to have known better. But the path to temptation and to wrong oftentimes looks so alluring and it is easy to get in without really realizing what is happening. I ought to have known what would happen when Ralph—Mr. Sellers—said: 'That's easy. I will lend you whatever money you need.' And so, without thinking anything except experiencing a new sensation, I went in.

"A stack of chips were placed in front of me. I had no idea of the money they represented. I quickly lost them. Another stack and another was placed before me. I was completely engrossed in the game. I had no idea of the money I was losing, until the clock struck one—which, it seems, is the hour for closing the Villa doors—and I was told that I owed the house a thousand dollars. I was just about to blurt out the fact that I had no money, when Mr. Sellers quietly handed me a roll of bills with some remark about I. O. U's, which I have already told you.

"Oh, Ann, I will never know just how I got home. Fortunately Ken was out of town, I did not sleep a minute that night. I only had twenty five dollars in my bank account and there would be no more money put in for a month, as Ken only gives me my allowance monthly.

"Honestly, Ann, I had thought of taking my own life. I wondered how I could have done such a thing as I had done— a thing that would break Ken's heart. I hated myself for the doing of it. I hated the whole world. I almost hated Ken for being so good to me.

"He ought to beat me' I said to myself. 'If he should I think I would behave for I cannot stand bodily pain.

"Just before morning a solution came to me. I could just sign Mr Halsey's name to a check and then tell Ken I had done it, or could at least manage somehow to get the money before his account was balanced. I forgot, you see, that he would get the cancelled check, until this morning.

"It will only be borrowing it" I explained to myself and to salve my conscience, more fully I tried to find fault with Ken's father for only allowing us twenty thousand dollars a year to live on. He could just as well give us forty thousand.

"I think I went to sleep soon after for it was ten o'clock when I was awakened. I hurriedly dressed myself and went to the bank. I had already taken the precaution to rouge my cheeks, and I guess I was wise, for I felt my breath come cold when I presented the check at the window. What if he recognized the signature as a forgery.? The cashier, however, did not even glance at it. He only looked to me and said: 'How will you have it, Mrs. Halsey?'

"Two Five hundred dollar bills," I answered.:

"The next thing was to get them to Sellers. I did not dare to send them by mail. So, I decided to go to a restaurant for lunch on the chance of meeting him.

"He was there and came over to my table immediately. Taking the precaution to roll the two bills tightly I droopped them into his palm as we shook hands. Watching his face closely, I saw a shade come into his eyes, but he understood and closed his hand as he slowly drew it away from mine."

Do You Know That Millions Now Living Will Never Die.

"We mean just what we say—that millions now living are never going to die.

"'The Finished Mystery,' the posthumous work of Pastor Russell, tells why there are millions now living who will never die; and if you can keep alive until 1925 you have excellent chances of being one of them.

"Since 1881 everybody ridiculed Pastor Russell and the International Bible Students Association's message that the Bible prophesied a world war in 1914; but the war came on time, and now the message of his final work, 'millions now living will never die,' is being regarded seriously.

"It is an absolute fact, stated in every book of the Bible, foretold by every prophet of the Bible. I believe you will agree that this subject is well worth a few evenings' time for investigation.

"'The Finished Mystery' can be had for $1.00.

"In order that those living may be aware of the actual existence of this period, The Golden Age, a bi-weekly magazine, deals with current events that mark the institution of the Golden Age—the age when death will cease.

"A year's subscription is $2.00, or both book and magazine can be had for $2.75.

"'The Finished Mystery' tells why millions now living will never die, and The Golden Age will reveal cheer and comfort behind the dark and threatening clouds."

A 120-page booklet entitled "Millions now living will never die," gives a general explanation of this great truth, now being heralded world wide.

Movie Closeups

In "Homer Comes Home" to be at the Artlers theatre Thursday and Friday, Charles Ray has another of those country boy parts for which he is famous on the scheen. Thos. H. Ince produced the picture.

The story centers around Homer Cavender, who, having exhausted all the joys of Mainesville, goes to the city and becomes a clerk. Having acquired a few hundred dollars he returns home on his vacation and creates a big impression with the town folk as a man of wealth and affairs. He renews his acquaintance with pretty Rachel Prouty, completely outshining his rival, Arthur Machim, son of the local hotel proprietor. On the last day of his visit at home, Homer, remembering a chance remark of his employer, starts selling stock to build in Mainesville a branch factory of the concern for which he works.

Thinking Homer must be at least a partner in the firm, the villagers fall. But young Machim learns the truth and proceeds to ruin Homer's little scheme. However, things turn out happily, and Homer wins not only the girl, but the managership of the Mainesville foctory. Priscilla Bonner plays the part of Rachel Prouty in "Homer Comes Home." The picture, which is a Paramount Artcraft was directed by Jerome Storm.
