FORESTRY CLUBS.

Five thousand Louisiana boys are learning about trees, how to plant them and care for them. They are learning the principles of reforestation by means of practical work in behalf of the state's timber supply. This is the newest branch of agricultural club work, and is being carried on wherever timber is growing now and wherever it once grew but has been burned and cut over. The state department of conservation supplies seeds and young trees as well as instructions concerning the best means of handling them. Prizes are offered to the boys who make the best records in reforestation work in 1921. These prizes range from $500 in cash to several hundred acres of cut-over pine lands offered by the state and by foresighted lumber companies. In view of the statement made by national forest service authorities that lumber is being cut and burned in this country four times as fast as it is growing, every constructive plan which is put in operation for prompt reforestation, either locally or over whole states, is helpful. Setting the boys of a state to work on this problem is doubly beneficial. It gives them a live interest in forestry work, thus educating them in many phases of the present forest situation. It also insures the planting of at least one new tree for every club member—and that list of 5000 is expected to grow longer. When those boys are grown up they will know more about forestation and forestry needs than their fathers do now, and they will have acquired the planting habit. The forestry club should be of great usefulness to any state or community that takes it up.

A business expert who has been all over the country investigating conditions makes the surprising discovery that while nearly everyone is feeling poor, the nation actually seems to be growing richer. The explanation is that nearly everywhere the people are working harder and spending less. Even at a time of year when ordinarily savings are withdrawn from banks, the deposits have continued to grow. In one big city the time deposits the middle of December were 2½ per cent higher than they had been on Sept. 1. "In this respect," he says, "the present mood of the people is the exact antithesis of that by which they were governed 18 months ago. Then extravagance and the least service for the largest wage seemed to be the popular idea of the way to be happy. Now, through the sweet uses of adversity, frugality and industry are becoming general." It is worth a little period of depression to make this moral gain, and the fact that "the people have learned the lesson is one of the best guarantees that the period will not last long.

If individuals armed themselves the way nations do, they wouldn't have any savings accounts. Having more sense than nations, they find it cheaper to club together and organize a police force to keep order.

Says a report of the New York automobile show: "The highest priced car in this year's show cost $11,000, and the cheapest is $1000." From which it is easy to infer that a flivver isn't a car.

No, society in general isn't going to the dogs at all. The criminal receives a heap more publicity than the righteous man.

Now there is no longer any doubt that the backbone of the h. c. l. is broken. Candy has gone down.

Cuba may go broke on sugar, but she's likely to make it up on rum. Ask any American tourist.

1920 Great Year for Corn Crops

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—1920 was the greatest corn year in the history of the country according to the records of the department of agriculture. Besides growing the record crop of 3,232,367,000 bushels, the farmers established a new record for average yield per acre with 30.5 bushels, the second time in history the country's average yield went past 30 bushels.

The area planted to corn last year was 104,601,000 acres which was smaller than the area planted when the previous record crop was harvested in 1912. Last year's crop was the third to exceed 3,000,000,000 bushels.

Iowa, the country's greatest corn producing state, made an average of 46 bushels to the acre for the first time in the history of that state. The highest average yield of any state was that of Vermont with 47 bushels. Maine had the highest average yield in 1919 with 50 bushels. In the ten years previous to that year the highest average yield had been made by one of the New England States. Connecticut had the highest yield in six of the ten years, Massachusetts two, New Hampshire, one, and Massachusetts and Vermont tying in one.

SERIOUS SITUATION CENTRAL KENTUCKY

Burley Tobacco Crop Is Cause of Near Disaster to Banks and Farmers.

THE PRICE IS TOO LOW

If Satisfactory Price is Not Received Farmers will Lose Their Lands and Many Financial Firms Will be Hampered.

(By Associated Press)

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 21—Central Kentucky is trying to save thousands of farmers from bankruptcy and banks and business houses from buyers, a run on one bank and an to statements of bankers, growers, and others who have been active in the movement to force prices for the 1921 burley tobacco crop to a point that will not be far from the 1920 record. They assign this as the reason for the nervous situation that has torn the burley tobacco region for the last several weeks, resulting in all markets, but a few being closed, threats being made against the buyers, a run on one bank and an agreement to "cut out" the 1921 crop and hold the 1920 crop if financial arrangements can be made.

Banks in Kentucky loan large sums to farmers to finance their crops. Just how large the total of these loans this year is no guess to be ventured. The question of how long the bankers can carry the farmers, however, was one of the foremost in the meeting of farmers, the growers and warehousemen held here recently.

It is claimed that if tobacco does not bring a satisfactory price, these farmers will lose their lands and many financial institutions will be seriously hampered.

Buyers of tobacco are silent as to why prices are not higher. Farmers claim that in view of the fact that prices rose gradually over a period of four years from 1915 to 1919, they should drop gradually. They also assert that labor costs during the 1920 season were the highest in the history of farming in Kentucky. The stories of farmers who paid $8 per day for labor in the tobacco field are common among the larger growers who visited the offices of the Burley Tobacco Growers Association here. Stripping tobacco,—taking the leave from the stalks and tying them into hands or bundles—cost from five to eight cents per pound according to statements of officials of the growers association who have been traveling throughout the district.

Kentucky produces one fifth of the tobacco of the world and almost one third of the crop of the United States according to the yearbook of the United States Department of Agriculture. The world production in 1915, the last year for which the production statistics are available, was 2,153,395,000 pounds while the state of Kentucky produced a total of 498,000,000 pounds of all types. The estimate for the total 1920 crop in the United States just made public by the Department of Agriculture is 1,508,064,000 pounds of which Kentucky produced 467,500,000 pounds. Farmers in the "dark belt" of Kentucky this year restricted their crop

Corsica Claims Columbus as Son

LONDON, Jan. 21—(United Press)—Not satisfied with Bonaparte, Corsica has entered the lists of claimants to the birthplace of Christopher Columbus. Calvi, in Corsica, claims that the discoverer completed his first successful voyage in a house still standing in its streets.

Italy, Spain, Portugal, and now France, via Corsica, claim Columbus as their own, which moved a correspondent to remark that "although the present generation will not see the fifth centenary of the discovery of America, it should be a splendid celebration, since so many European countries now take a personal interest in the discoverer."

Columbus himself is said to have state that he was a Genoese, which, however, adds point to Corsica's contention since the island at that time belonged to Genoa.

MINING ENGINEER SAYS HE SUFFERED 30 YEARS

Well Known Oregonian Declares Tanlac Has Given Him A New Lease On Life.

"For the first time in thirty years I am now able to eat whatever I want without suffering afterwards," said F. C. Rogers, a well known mining engineer living at 1075 East 19 street North, Portland, Oregon.

"I now know what it is to enjoy fine health for Tanlac has built me up until I have gained fifteen pounds and today I am feeling better than I have in 25 years. In 1890 my stomach went back on me and in spite of everything, I went down hill until I was a nervous and physical wreck. Everything I ate soured on my stomach and I would have awful spells of indigestion.

"For days at a time I couldn't retain a thing I ate and I had a burning like a coal of fire in my throat and chest. These spells were so bad sometimes I could neither lie down nor sit up with any comfort.

"I had pains all over my body, suffered from nausea and gas and bloated up so tight I could hardly breathe. My nerves broke down and I seemed to be playing out altogether.

"Nothing in the way of medicine did me and good until I got hold of Tanlac, and now I can hardly remember the day when I felt better. I eat like a bear and never have sign of indigestion afterward. The pains and gas have all disappeared and my breathing is free and regular. My nerves are as strong as iron and I sleep as sound as a dollar, never miss a day's work and feel that I have a new lease on life.

Tanlac is sold in Roseburg by W. F. Chapman; in Dixonville by Thos. Hatfield and by leading druggists everywhere.

From Bell Hop to Superior Judge

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 21—(United Press)—From bell hop and pawnbroker's clerk to a judgeship on the superior court bench is the road traveled by Judge William D. Askren, who has just assumed his new official duties.

Eighteen years ago Askren was answering to "front" at the Tacoma hotel here, shining shoes, running errands, etc. Later, study at night school, to make up early educational deficiencies, led to his passing the bar, becoming a deputy prosecuting attorney in 1912, and in 1918, prosecuting attorney.

Askren's term as county attorney was one sensation after another, the culmination coming in the almost-successful attempt on his life last May, when he was shot by Julia Smith, whom he had convicted in local courts.

Poor Woman Makes Sacrifice

"For years I have doctored for indigestion and severe bloating with gas and all my money had gone for doctors and medicines which did me no good. I lost all faith in medicines and as I have to work hard for the few dollars I get, I was afraid to risk any more money. A year ago a neighbor told me to try Mayr's Wonderful remedy. I have found it to be the best medicine in the world and I am glad I made the sacrifice." It is a simple harmless remedy that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Druggists everywhere.
