CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over thirty years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. HER DAUGHTER AND HIS SON.

BY IDAH McGLONE GIBSON

Talking Things Over.

"Oh, father, you do not understand. Mr. Halsey has been wonderful to me," I pleaded when he charged Mr. Halsey with the betrayal of a friend's trust. "I work here because I want to, and because I insisted on it. When mother died, Mr. Halsey urged that I come and live with him and Ken. He did not know then that the marriage between mother and you was legal and he wanted to adopt me and give me his name. No one could be a greater friend—to you, father, and to me—than Mr. Halsey has been."

"I could not take any of the money that you had left in trust, for I knew that you did not know that I was living, and that at that time none of us suspected that I was legally your daughter. I had never seen you, and I did not know whether you would really want me."

"Want you," he interrupted, "want you?" My child, if I had known that Margaret had borne me a daughter, I would have returned to claim her if the angel of the flaming sword had barred the way."

"I do not know what I would have done if it had not been for Mr. Halsey, father. As far as he was able he protected me, but you must remember and put yourself in my place. I was cynical with the cynicism of youth and I was sore against the world. I wanted to fight against it and win as it had fought against and won over my mother. I knew I had to work to do this. I tried with all my strength to stand alone, and found that I was almost beaten down again and again. At last I compromised with Mr. Halsey by working for him. He probably thought he could at least care for me that way if no other. I know that I have been of use to him, and of course I have given him more loyalty than a stranger would have done. Father, I do not think that I can be happy even with you, unless I have work enough to keep me from thinking about myself."

"But a girl of your age should be thinking of sweethearts and a husband. Didn't Dick Halsey have a boy named Kenneth? What became of him?"

"He is here and married to a girl whose name was Grace Cameron." "So that precious pair of Camerons had a daughter," said my father retrospectively. "She must have been born late in their lives. He was a selfish brute, and he made his wife a woman who thought it right to get anything she wanted the best way she could. And so fate wished their girl on Dick's boy. Too bad, too bad."

"But now I have come home. You and I are going to enjoy ourselves for awhile. No more work for you either."

"But, father, what if I should tell you that here—right here in this office—I have found a greater happiness than I ever expected to know. I must do something; I can never be one of those indolent society women whose only pleasure is in luxuries and who only find joy in flirtatious admiration."

"Come, come, child. Don't be cynical. I will see that you have plenty to do without working. Work to me, child, was best defined by the school boy who said: 'Work is something that you have to do when you want to do something else.'"

"But, father, this is something that I want to do. I am sure that you will let me continue when I have time to talk it over with you."

My father looked at me curiously and then, sending behind this determination something more than whim, he said: "Well, I won't quarrel with you. Ann, about such a queer idea. But I give you fair warning. It will take a good many lucid explanations to make me see this business from your point of view."

My father drew me to him, and kissed my forehead gently as if to soften his words. Then, as if shaking himself clear from any annoyance, he said: "Now I must go over to the hotel and settle myself. Where do you live, Ann?"

Mr. Halsey insisted that I should have a suit at the De Soto Hotel. "Well, I am glad that he insisted upon that much. I'll get a suite on the same floor until we can look around for a home. I want to go down for a few days to the house where your mother and I used to live. I expected to find her there. I cannot think of her as dead. To me she will be always just outside the door, just around the corner, in the shadow. I shall always be hurrying to meet her, and catch up with her tender smile."

Hatred Between Countries Menace

(The United Press.)
LONDON, Jan. 28.—Sir Philip Gibbs, the famous war correspondent, has returned from his short visit to the United States with one bitter memory—of the hatred of England that is being sedulously and subtly cultivated in America.

In his new book, "People of Peace," he tells of his many pleasant recollections of New York and Boston, but says:

"There is a propaganda of hate being spread through the country in the most poisonous, malicious and dangerous character, and of which England is represented as an arrogant, grasping and brutal country, intensely jealous of Uncle Sam and deliberately hostile. It is the same kind of propaganda which inflamed

England against Germany. It reaches down to the ignorance and passions of the same class.

"Taunts in American newspapers are answered by gibes in English newspapers. Bitter speeches by the American senators are copied to England and hurt. They are answered by stinging satire."

"Is the world not old enough to get rid of that silly, childish barbarism? Has it learned no lesson at all out of the massacre of its youth on the altar of stupidity? Are civilized peoples to go on flinging mud at each other for sport; uttering provocative cries like dirty little schoolboys for the sake of getting off each other in newspapers or political debates, careless of the horrible dangers which are thereby caused?"

Discussing the means to best prevent this state of affairs, Sir Philip suggests a sort of a journalists' union. "I do think," he said, "that there might be an international society of journalists pledged in honor to abstain from all provocative writing about other nations, and to denounce as unprofessional the conduct of any of their fellows who are found guilty of spreading slander and spite, calculated to disturb the world's peace."

SUNDAY AT THE CHURCHES

Methodist Church, Guy Fitch Phelps, pastor.—Will conduct the usual morning services next Sunday. The subject at 11 will be, "Sub-Christians, or Christ and—." In the evening all will go to the tabernacle to help boost the great Bulgian campaign. The union young people's services will be held at the Baptist church. Let all the Methodist young people be there to make it an "over-the-top" affair. Let us make next Sunday a go-to-church day. Send the children to Sunday school, and go with them. "That thou doest do quickly."

Christian, Corner Pine and Woodward streets, Rev. C. H. Hilton, Minister.—Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will be guests of the congregation on Sunday morning, and the minister is hoping that the members of his congregation will be present to extend them a most hearty welcome. Mr. Lewis will speak, and Mrs. Lewis will sing. Bible school session begins promptly at 9:45. This school is doing fine work each Sunday, is thoroughly graded, and is growing. You are welcome. There will be no evening service. The young people will meet Sunday afternoon at 5 with the other young people of the town. At 7 o'clock we all gather at the tabernacle for the great Sunday evening service, when the evangelist will speak on Christ and Sociology.

Presbyterian, Jackson and Lane streets, Rev. E. W. Warrington, Minister.—Are you honest? Can you be honest? Perhaps you are honest with your fellow men but are you honest with God? With how much sower can He trust you? Think it over and come and worship with us Sunday, 9:45 a. m., Bible study. The pastor wants to meet every Sunday school officer and teacher in his study at the close of the Sunday school period, 11 a. m., the morning worship. The people from the country who wish to come in for the morning service and remain over for the afternoon service at the tabernacle will find conveniences in the basement of the church for heating their coffee and eating their lunch. Come in, bring your lunch and spend the day. 2:30 p. m., the afternoon service at the tabernacle. 5 p. m., the young people's lunch and service. His Sunday afternoon will be held at the Baptist church. The Baptist ladies will serve the lunch. 7 p. m., the evening service at the tabernacle.

M. E. Church, South, Rev. J. C. Jones, pastor.—Sunday school at 9:45 a. m. W. L. Cobb, Supt.; divine worship at 10:45, sermon by the pastor. Junior League at 2, Mrs. Lahey, Supt. All other services in union with the program of the union revival campaign. We invite you to all these services.

St. George's Episcopal Church, Rev. Thos. H. Allenson.—Morning services omitted. Sunday school at 9:45 a. m.; Y. P. S. at 6:30 p. m.; evening service at 7:30.

Has True Spirit Of Real Religion

(By Associated Press.)

CLEVELAND, Jan. 22.—Acting on the philosophy that "to be happy, you must make others happy," Mrs. Myrtle Swingle maintains "open house" to the public at her home on every Tuesday night.

"The object of these gatherings," Mrs. Swingle said, "are primarily to overcome prejudice and to spread the ideals of friendship and good will, and are constructive in a way. There is nothing to join, no dues to pay. The admission price is one smile, and they all pay it readily."

The idea started, according to Mrs. Swingle, when four young men who roomed with her, complained of being lonesome.

"I went out and invited all of my friends in to spend the evening. We had a fine time. 'Buy why,' I asked myself, 'should we hoard our fun selfishly? We ought to let everybody in.'"

The next Tuesday night we invited everyone that wanted to come. I consider my home is only mine to let in trust for a little time, and while I have it I will use it to help brighten the lives of others."

Mrs. Swingle is assisted in the entertaining by her two daughters, Eva Mae, aged 20, and Mildred, aged 17. One hour is set aside for the discussion of some subject after which the piano is played, singing and dancing and other games are indulged in.

Mrs. Swingle announced that several other Cleveland women, influenced by her example are now preparing to do likewise.

WHY USE COAL OR WOOD?

The Oliver Oil-Gas Burner makes any stove or range a gas stove. Doesn't change your stove, simply fits in a firebox, cooks and bakes better than coal or wood. The oil is fed by gravity pressure. This is far superior to air pressure, more reliable and absolutely safe. Will demonstrate at your own home. F. C. Munz, 1311 Winchester St., Phone 129-R.
