STORY OF OUR FLAG

Written by Helen Josephine Bergh, 5th Grade Fullerton School.

The flag of our country is a symbol. It shows we stand united, have stood united, and will stand united always.

It has several well known names, four being "Old Glory," "The Star Spangled Banner," "The Red, White and Blue" and "Stars and Stripes."

There are three parts to the flag. They are the stripes of red and white which show the first union of the first thirteen colonies; and the field of blue. Each star in the field of blue represents a state, and the field of blue represents the present union.

The colors of the flag are red, white and blue. The red stands for courage; the white stands for hope, purity and truth and the blue stands for loyalty, sincerity and justice.

The early English colonies used the "Union Jack" of England. The first flag used after the Revolution was the "Union Jack" in the corner. It was used when Washington took command at Cambridge, and it was used on the flagship of the new navy by John Paul Jones.

After independence had been declared, the new nation wouldn't use the "Union Jack" in any form. So, in 1777, George Washington, Robert Morris and Col. Ross decided to design a new flag for the new nation when they designed, on June 4, 1777, the flag which they adopted.

A Woman Who Wouldn't Remarry
