BUYING GERMANY'S COLONIES

A resolution introduced in the senate by Senator France, of Maryland, "and referred without discussion to the foreign relations committee" is likely to receive a great deal of discussion if it is pressed to the public attention. The measure proposes the purchase by the United States of all German cables and all German African and Pacific colonies. The purchase price suggested is $5,000,000,000 to be credited against the indemnity imposed against Germany by the Allies.

Here is food for much reflection. Those German colonies have already been divided up among the allies, for them to administer under the mandates from the League of Nations, with accountability to the League.

Under the Versailles treaty, Germany is regarded as having forfeited title to them. How, then, would the United States buy them. From Germany, which no longer owns them? From the mandatory governments, who has no title? From the League which is committed to the policy of protective mandates for their backward populations? It would be a knotty problem in real estate as well as in self determination.

Five billion dollars, too, is a heap more than Germany's colonies all together are worth to anybody. They were always a liability, not an asset, to Germany herself, and according to sane estimates of national values, she is well rid of them.

That sum if "credited against the German indemnity" would go to the Allies. Would it be deducted from what they owe the United States as a mere matter of bookkeeping, or, would this country be supposed to hand it over in gold—which is what the Allies demand from Germany. There is not that much gold in all America.

The problem, however, will hardly get beyond the stage of academic discussion, for the very good reason that Americans don't want any more indigestible colonies to fight for and spend money on, either in Africa or in the Pacific. We have troubles enough already.

EUROPE HELPS HER OWN.

The grumblers who take exception to every charitable act and always suspect the other fellow of shirking have not failed to enter their disagreeable protests at American relief work among European children, and their mean insinuation that so long as Americans did the work Europeans would let them. The reports of Miss Julia Lathrop, chief of the children's bureau of the department of labor, are a sufficient answer.

Miss Lathrop visited Europe last summer, at the request of President Masaryk of Czecho-Slovakia. She went to give what advice and counsel she could on child welfare problems. She found the people of the new republic and of the other war-torn countries fully alive to the needs of their children and ministering to them by every means at their command. She was "awed by the unmeasured devotion and skill with which citizens of all the war-harassed nations have themselves labored since 1914 to protect their children."

Miss Lathrop's testimony that we are working not for but with the European peoples in child protection and relief should give fresh impetus to every effort of this country to aid and counsel. It should shame every carping critic into silence and renew faith in a happy future for a world coming slowly but surely to realize its responsibility to its young, and the hope which lies in their preservation.

Most persons will have their faith in humanity increased when pies again travel under their own name.

Some men give so much of their time to other people's business they have very little business of their own to look after.

There also is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at its flood, leads on to their being drowned in it.

Since girls will want something different, it is not likely that they will wear goloshes next summer.

Almost time to inaugurate a "clean-up week."

To Muster Machine Gun Company Soon

C. L. Stoddard, who is supervising the organization of a National Guard company in Roseburg, today received a telegram from Adjutant-General George A. White to the effect that Captain Lawrence Milner will arrive in Roseburg on Wednesday morning to complete enlistments in the local company and furnish all information as to details for preparing the machine gun outfit for muster. When this preparation is completed General White states that he will personally visit Roseburg and will muster in the company. This will occur some time next week. In view of the showing made in this community, the Adjutant-General states that he has definitely alloted a machine gun company to this city and desires to have the organization qualify for federal pay as soon as possible.

Roseburg Man Seeking For Wife

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 28.—Under a spreading shade tree up in Roseburg, Or., a smithy stands, waiting for a wife. This smithy, whose name is William Doherty, bachelor, and aspirant for matrimonial favors, has written to the chief of police of this city to select him a California-grown variety of hearth blossom and "send her along."

From the letter the police glean that Doherty wants to get married. He mentions money in the bank, a handsome form and good right arm as assets. A fancy wife will not do. She must be adequate, substantial and competent to be a blacksmith's bride. No widow need apply.

The police matrimonial bureau is handling the matter.

Not Much Concerned Over Victory Medals

(By Associated Press).

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 1—Several queer answers were received by Captain H. C. Billings, U. S. A., San Francisco, in answer to a circular letter he sent recently to California men who fought in the World War, asking them to send him the names of ten eligible friends who had not applied for the victory medals issued to former soldiers.

Some of the replies read:

"Dear sir: I got too of the boys to right there names and address on here but most all the boys says nothing dooing on that medeal stuff. They all want more bonas. Medels dont buy them enything but that bonas biness seams to be up to congrass and they will have to wate and see what congrass says."

"Sir: Youre rec'd, contents noted. I presented my army discharge to the Oakland recruiting station for the victory medal, and I don't believe there is any war department order out compelling me or anyone else to give you the names of ten men who did not receive their medals, anyway I am not going to do the same, so after my rendering about two years in the army and then can't get my victory medal without hunting up ten other men like myself, you may keep mine."

"Gentlemen, Dear Sirs: Did not get my victory medal. They gave them all out here when I was under quarantine for small pox on Nov. 11, as Armistice Day was celebrated here. I am well and sound now, and O. K. (The family had it.) Hoping this will be O. K. I await the medal. I never had it but light. How much do they pay enlisted men in the army now?"

"Dear Sir: I have try to ask few of the return soldier boy of my acquaintance, and all have put in their application or sign a petition similar to this, so it will be impossible for me to comply with your request to this. So, it will be impossible for I will have to be home for a good while, as my wife last Monday had given birth to a baby boy and for me it is my duty to be with her all the time I possibly can, and it will be rather a long time while before I coud go out and hunt names of the ex-service men. Hoping you will accept my excuse, for not complying with your request. I remain respectfully yours."

"Gentlemen: I am inclosing my discharge in order that I may receive my Victory Medal. If you will take a good look at it you will realize that it would be useless to take it to any recruiting office for they would be unable to read it. I am sending it to you, as, if necessary, you have the service records to refer to and perhaps by so doing, decipher it sufficiently to find out that I am entitled to a Victory Medal. The printed lettering in places is my own, and is as the discharge should read.

"It is not necessary to send my discharge back; throw it in the waste basket or fire, as I would be ashamed to show it to anyone. It sure is a bird of a thing to get as a reward for sixteen months spent in France. However, I would like to have a Victory Medal, as although I am ashamed of my discharge, I am not ashamed of my service."

New Restaurant Opened Today

The White Front Restaurant, under the supervision of Mesdames Busby and Locke, was opened this morning. The restaurant is located on Sheridan street and will doubtless do a fine business. The building in which the restaurant is located has been renovated and repaired and the restaurant room has been newly painted and furnished, and fitted up in fine shape for the business that has been established there. The new restaurant is a valuable addition to the front street business and is a fine improvement to the city.

DRAIN RESIDENT DIES

Silvo Henderson, aged 60 years died this morning at the Mercy hospital after an illness of about four weeks. He was a pioneer resident of the Drain community where he spent the greater part of his life. He leaves a number of relatives residing in the Drain community. The body was shipped to the home of the deceased this afternoon.

The Roseburg Girl Scouts held the regular meeting at the club rooms in the Presbyterian church last evening. Miss Margaret Milliken and Dorene Lewis were initiated at the meeting. The evening was passed with games and clever stunts, and delicious refreshments were served at the close of the business session.

Women's Auxiliary Will Meet Tonight

The Women's Auxiliary to the American Legion will have a busy meeting in the G. A. R. rooms at the armory tonight at 7:30. No meeting was held on the last meeting night of the American Legion, and many important business matters have come up for attention. Mrs. Carl Wimberly, temporary president, will preside until next officers are elected, which will be the first matter disposed of. There are many mothers, wives, sisters and other relatives of ex-service men or women who are eligible to this organization and who have not yet signified their intention of joining. The auxiliary wants all of these present tonight to vote for the officers and to help instill the pep necessary to make the auxiliary a live organization.

Field Meetings Are Announced

There will be considerable activity in agricultural circles the latter part of this month according to a program announced by County agent Haslett today. On March 22, a field demonstration of spraying equipment is to be held and all manufacturers of equipment will be given an opportunity to demonstrate their type of machine. Prof. Clayton L. Long and Prof. Gilmore, head of the Farm Mechanics department will be present. On March 23, Professor Barss and Prof. Lovett will be here with Prof. Long to discuss plant diseases and the different spray controls. On March 24, H. A. Crosby, poultry expert from the college will conduct a tour to the demonstration farms in the county.

W. C. T. U. Will Meet Tomorrow

The W. C. T. U. Society of this city will meet tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock at the home of Mrs. G. W. Young. The meeting has been called for three to allow those who wish to attend the Bible meetings at the Methodist church at two o'clock ample time to attend both meetings. There will be a short program at the home of Mrs. Young. This is Union Signal Day, for the members of the W. C. T. U. and the program has been prepared with this in mind. This is also the last meeting before the business women's luncheon on Friday and final plans will be laid at this time.

CLUB HAS MEETING

The Garden Valley Improvement Club met in the Woman's club room February 24 and a most delightful afternoon was spent in honor of Washington's birthday.

The roll call was responded to by selections appropriate for Feb. 22 and after the usual business hour the hostess of the day requested the members to be seated at a beautifully decorated table, the centerpiece for the occasion being a small real cherry tree by the side of which was a red hatchet. Delicious refreshments consisting of a salad, hot rolls and coffee were served and every one thought it the most original entertainment of the season, originality in serving, being one of the club's chief attainments. The club room is fast becoming pretty and cosy, and will soon be a place where the members can go and take their friends with pleasure and comfort. The next meeting will take place in two weeks. Mrs. R. S. Hutton serving as hostess, assisted by Mrs. Page and Mrs. Ritchie.

Drain High School to Play R. H. S.

The Drain high school team will play a game in this city tomorrow evening at the high school gymnasium with the Roseburg high school team. The Drain team defeated Cottage Grove recently but lost to the American Legion team of this city.

The visiting quintette is composed of players much larger than the local tossers, but they lack the team work and passing ability of the locals. The Roseburg team is getting in shape for its games with Eugene and Ashland as a part of the state championship contest. Roseburg will play Eugene Friday night and will meet Ashland here on the 14th and 15t

FARM AND HOME POINTERS

Alsike, red or sweet clover, to be sown on fall grain, succeeds best when planted in the good weather that usually comes in the latter part of February or the first of March. Applications of land plaster, made in March have greatly stimulated the growth of new clover at the O. A. C. experiment grounds.

Smelt paste for sandwiches: Fry smelt till brown, and remove backbone. Add thick tomato sauce, in which has been cooked onion and parsley to taste. Pack the jar with alternate layers of fish and sauce, then sterilize.—O. A. C. Home economics.

The first spray for apple and pear scab is best given just as soon as tiny clusters of young blossom buds can be reached or touched by the spray. This is "safety first" application.—O. A. C. Experiment station.

Cloth as a substitute for glass in hot bed sashes can be used successfully. It should be dipped in oil to make it more nearly waterproof. It does not give protection from frost and glass should be used as a night protection to such tender plants as tomatoes. A matting over the glass to keep tomato plants from chilling essential.—O. A. C. Experiment station.

Diseases and pests unknown to Oregon growers will be identified without charge by the state experiment station. Packages should be carefully wrapped to avoid damage in transit. Address O. A. C. Experiment station, Corvallis.

Digging for tiles and putting in drainage systems is most easily done now while the ground is soft. It will be a big advantage to have the systems in to drain the land of the early spring rains. O. A. C. Experiment station.
