Roseburg, Oregon, March 19, 1921.

THE ASSOCIATIVE SPIRIT.

As you look over any American community it is amazing how universally the idea prevails of organizing the social force of the people. If you go into the newest mining camp in the Rocky Mountains, the most recent oil town in the petroleum belt, or the pioneer settlement in Alaska, you will find this same principle working itself out. Just as soon as the pioneers begin to get their breath and look around and plan out their common existence, they begin to form organizations to accomplish certain definite ends.

Old world towns also have social forces fairly well organized. But this spirit is more highly developed in this country than elsewhere. The Americans are restless and determined people, always looking on toward larger accomplishment.

In any live community there are a lot of things that people want that they have not got. It is their first instinct to get together and attempt to accomplish by united force, what the individuals could not accomplish separately.

It is astonishing what a group of people can achieve when they unite for a common end. Individually they might seem commonplace or insignificant, and people would regard the expression of their opinion as unimportant. But when they associate for a common purpose, their separate individualities are fused in a powerful mass, and politicians and business men begin to take notice.

Organizations are the machinery through which the personality of a community accomplishes its purpose and gets things done. Every good citizen ought to belong and help out in the work of some of these organizations, and it is the only way in which he can make his ideas count and realize his desire for community progress.

THE POWER OF A PURCHASE.

When you spend your dollars for some article you desire, you get certain direct results of advantage. If you spend it for clothing, for instance, you secure the direct advantage of personal comfort.

But there is an indirect result which you may throw away if you do not think about it. Every purchase that you make is of benefit to the business concern of which you make it, to the people employed by that concern, and to the community where it is located.

Out of the money that a suit of clothes represents, assume that two-thirds may be sent away to the manufacturer to pay his cost of production and profit. The rest is retained by the dealer who sells it to pay for his help, his rent, his taxes, all the minor costs of his business, and his own personal profit.

Therefore, when you buy a suit costing $40, $27 of it may be sent off to some manufacturer, while perhaps as much as $13 will be retained in the place where the dealer is located for all his costs. That $13 helps build up the town where that store is conducted.

If you spend that money in your home city, that $13 helps build up your own community, to pay its taxes, the wages of working people, and other charges, and thus to help on the business of the place. If you are in any way interested in your home town, you thus get a secondary advantage for your money. But if you send off to some other place to buy your clothing, you help build up some other place, and you get no off-settable advantage.

Do the people of Roseburg who throw away this secondary advantage of their dollars, realize that they might use them so as to get a double value for their money, by spending it at home and helping build up their own community.

Clara Smith Hamon will probably go into the movie arena, having received several flattering offers from movie magnates. Clara has stated she "wants to come back" and there'll be plenty of "fans" ready to receive her.

Let's forget all about profiteering and the like and get down to business. There's a great future ahead for the fellow who is optimistic enough to wipe out the past and grab a chunk of 1921 business.

See Roseburg first—then Crater Lake.

The Medford commercial club has recommended to the city council of that city the purchase of nineteen acres of land to be converted into an auto camp ground. Roseburg ought to be considering the construction of a new bridge to Alexander's park and the setting aside of a good portion of that ground given to the city to be used as a park for adequate camping grounds to accommodate tourist travel. Our present camp grounds will be entirely too small to meet the demands of the traveling public when the season opens for auto travel.

One thing is positive in the acquittal of Clara Hamon, the jury had more respect for the woman than they did for the wealthy old politician who brought about her disgrace.

It will keep the average patron of the telephone service busy trying to get his money's worth under prevailing prices.

It certainly pays to advertise in the News-Review. You can reach nearly every inhabitant in the county.

All together—a little pep and ginger for a bigger and better Roseburg and Douglas county.

The truth always hurts worse after an attempt has been made to hide behind a lie.

Few persons hold to an idea very long unless it has money-making possibilities.

The more a person keeps his temper the less use he is likely to have for it.

It always makes a woman hot to have a neighbor treat her in a frosty manner.

The man who is short on cash is not often found to be long on optimism.

Good highways for Douglas county spell prosperity for all its people.

There's rumblings and talk of strikes and walkouts.

Miss Alvira Lewis left last evening for Dillard to spend the week end visiting with her parents.

Baseball Bee Buzzing About

By Henry L. Farrell.

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
NEW YORK, Mar. 18.—Since 1913 when Jawn J. McGraw copped his third pennant in a row, no National League manager has headed a winner twice consecutively.

Uncle Wilbert Robinson can do a lot of things with ball players, but there is not enough around his Brooklyn Club to justify the belief that he will break the precedent.

True, he has the same club, man for man, excepting Rube Marquard, that won the 1920 honors, but while he has stood pat on his team, other managers have been adding strength during the off seasons.

Picking winners on the diamond is just about as dependable as picking them on the turf—a hit once in a while is a good average.

The same Uncle Wilbert Robinson probably was stinking of this, when he said recently:

"You go ahead and dope out the pennant race, I prefer to play it."

However, in fifty percent of the cases, baseball runs true to form. In last year's National League race, the race went against the dope, but the American League followed it almost to a line.

The National League of course can be divided into two groups, —contenders and non-contenders.

Only three clubs at this early date appear to be in the first class; they are Brooklyn, New York and Pittsburgh.

Of that trio, New York looks to be the best with the Pirates second and the Robins third.

The Giants ought to win the pennant. If Goldie Rapp makes good for the infield, and McGraw is able to land a more reliable centerfielder than Benny Kauff or King, he ought to walk away with the pennant.

After a slump until midseason, with the pitchers out of condition and a fragile infield, the Giants chased the Robins clear of the wire last year.

Rabbit Maranville will make a pennant contender out of the Pittsburgh Pirates. George Gibson sacrificed some batting strength and some powerful outfield talent to get him, but there is plenty left. The Pirates look awfully good for the race, but not enough to nose out the Giants.

Brooklyn has the best pitching staff in the Major League. It may even be stronger with Reuther in the fold, but the club is no better than it was last year and everyone excepting the residents of Flatbush admit the Ebbers crowd was rather in luck last year.

The Cincinnati Reds appear to be shot. Pat Moran wrecked his club to get rid of some disturbers. With a recruit, Hohne, on second base and the light hitting Crane in right field the club will not be as strong as it was last year. There may be better
