Alicia Hammersly A Woman Who Wouldn't Remarry By Idah McGlone Gibson The Noted Writer

Alicia Hammersly, nee Alicia Atwell and commonly called Ahx—is telling the absorbing story of her childhood. She is engaged to Hallett Hammersly. On the morning of her wedding day, she wonders whether she really knows the man she is to marry. Alicia's thoughts lead her to her mother for consolation. She sits by mother in the attic seated in an old trunk which is "filled with memories." As Alicia enters, her mother is fondling a pair of baby shoes. Alicia's mother consoles her by pointing out that the great happiness to be found in a marriage is not an understanding, but warns her that it is something very different from the day dreams of an engaged girl. After the ceremony, she confides to Alicia that his income will necessitate strict economy and they must live with his parents for a while. Alicia is downcast as her parents had old fashioned ideas of what she should do. Alicia then meets Nell Marshall, an old sweetest of Hal's. The same evening, her friends of Hal's, Mr. and Mrs. and a Ruth Welty call. From their conversation she learns that Nell Marshall has long been the belle of the city. Alicia awakens in the night wondering if Hal had really proposed when he told her he loved her, or if she innocently misunderstood him and let the matter drift into matrimony. His reply satisfies her. Nell Marshall calls. Speaking to fectly well and perfectly happy."

 "Aren't you happy, dear?"
 "Why, of course I am, only—only—I'm afraid."
 "Hal put his arms about me. 'I know, dear heart, and so am I afraid for you. We'll face it together, dear, and as you say, it is nature and something that every woman gladly endures if she would have the very crown of womanhood placed upon her. And oh, dear wife of mine, I am so happy about it. I've always wanted children—and I know our boy will look like you.'"
 "But if it shouldn't be a boy," I interrupted.
 "Why, of course it will be a boy. Don't you want it to be a boy?"
 "Yes, if you do."
 "Well, that's all that's necessary. We'll name him right now. We're going to call him John."
 "Oh, I wanted to call him after you."
 "Then you did expect it to be a boy, didn't you?"
 "Well, I meant if it were a boy, I would like it to be named after you."
 "That's all right, Alex," said Hal grinning joyously. "John Hallett Hammersly. Does that sound good?"
 Hal looked at me with such a boyish expression, that I felt at that moment a gush of that maternal love that every woman must feel for her husband as well as she does for her children.
 "And Hal—I want to go home."
 "What do you want to go home for, dear?"
 "I want to see my mother. There are times like this, when every girl wants her mother for a little while, dear. There are many things I want to ask my mother; things perhaps she should have told me before I married, but she didn't."
 "My mother can tell you."

"No, dear, she couldn't. I could no more talk to your mother than I could to a total stranger about the coming of our baby."
 "Perhaps you're right," said Hal with a sigh. "But, dear, I want you here with me. It seems so strange and splendid that I never thought it could come to me. We're going to be regular folks, aren't we?"
 "Are we, Hal?"
 "Yes, and I am going to work very hard to provide you and the baby the proper environment. We are going to send him to college aren't we? I want him to be captain of the football team."
 "And I can go home to mother?"
 "Why of course you can, Alicia."
 "Alicia! Why I never heard you call me that before in your life."
 "Well, you see, you're going to be a mother, and I have to treat you in a very dignified manner."
 "Oh, Hal, I don't want you to treat me with great respect or honor. I just want you to love me and be good to me."
 "I shall always love you, dear—but, I—I—oh, I guess I'm like all other men and I probably will not always be good. But, good or bad, dear wife I shall love the mother of my son—my son—isn't it wonderful Alicia—our son—and maybe in the future, his son, and his son—why all down through the annals of time will go a long procession of men and women of our blood—isn't it wonderful—I never even thought of it in that way before."

WHITEWASH FOR FRUIT TREES
 Some fruit growers have inquired about the advisability of whitewashing the bodies of young fruit trees, especially prune trees. As a general rule there is nothing to be gained by whitewash. Yet in some instances, especially where the trees are high headed the bodies are exposed to the sun and often become sunburned. This sunburn makes a dead place on the side of the tree which affords an opportunity for heart rot fungus to enter.
 Ordinary whitewash will protect the bodies of fruit trees from sunburn, and for this reason, it is advisable to apply it.
 There is a whitewash, (including other ingredients) that is very helpful in keeping the root borers out of the prune trees if applied thoroughly and extended well below the surface of the ground. This wash does not need to be applied for the borers until May or June but if any one intends to whitewash the trees now, it would be well to apply this wash instead of the ordinary whitewash. If it is applied this early in the season, it would be best to give another application in July or in August, as the borers keep coming in till late in the fall.
 The formula is as follows:
 Quickslime, 8 pounds.
 Arsenate of lead, (dry) 1-4 pound
 Salt, 2 pounds
 Black leaf, 40, 1-4 pound,
 Glue, (flake or granulated), 1-4 pound.

LOOK YOUR FORD OVER

Every owner of a Ford car should give his machine the "once over" at least once each year. The car should be gone over and attention given to small details in order to avoid future trouble and a greater expense. It is good business judgment to do this. You owe it to your car.

LET US TUNE HER UP!

and put her in first class running order for the summer. OUR REPAIR DEPARTMENT is the most complete in Southern Oregon and we carry in stock every part for a Ford car. No waits—no delays here. TRAINED FORD MECHANICS at your service, which insures perfect satisfaction. Drive your car into our garage—leave it there for necessary repairs and your summer traaveling will be a pleasure. We're the boys that can put the pep and ginger in her—and do it right. Don't delay. Have your repairs made before the spring rush.
Yours for service,
