

A new economy in motor car operation

The manufacturer of your automobile recommends, in the Instruction Book for your car, that the crankcase be drained out and flushed and then refilled with fresh oil at regular intervals.

This is necessary because engine operation causes a steady accumulation of road dust, carbon, fine metal particles and other impurities in the crankcase oil. This gritty oil circulates through your engine, impairs its performance and ultimately leads to rapid depreciation and repairs.

But cleaning the crankcase is a job generally disliked and neglected.

To meet this need, Modern Crankcase Cleaning Service has been established by first-class garages and other dealers co-operating with the Standard Oil Company. These garages and dealers use Calol Flushing Oil, the scientific agent that cleans out old oil, dirt, grit and other impurities, and does not impair the lubricating efficiency of fresh oil used. The cleaned crankcase is refilled with the correct grade of Zerolene.

Look for the garage or dealer displaying the sign shown below—it means "Better operation and longer engine life."

Alicia Hammersly A Woman Who Wouldn't Remarry

The Morning After

With a groan I threw myself on the great divan in the living room and the sobs of tears came to me. I do not know at what moment I stopped weeping and closed my eyes, in sleep, but I was awakened by Hal calling me.

"What time is it, Alice?" "I do not know."

"Why, where are you?" "I am in the living room."

I heard a noise as though he had raised himself in bed, and then in a voice filled with astonishment, he asked:

"Why, Alice, haven't you been to bed at all?" "No."

He jumped up quickly and came into the living room, visibly perturbed. With a woman's weakness, I really felt sorry for him.

"I know dear girl that I have been a brute. But you are going to forgive me aren't you, like the angel that you are? You know that I didn't mean to, Alice. I just forgot—that was all—forgot that I was married—forgot everything except that there was one hundred and eighty dollars in the pot—most of it mine—and the other fellow raked it in."

He tried to put his arms around me and lift me from the divan. An irresistible shudder ran over me. The explanation had come too late. It seemed to me that I could not bear to have him touch me. I had a sudden repulsion toward any man who would hurt me as Hal had done—even thoughtlessly—and then to think that he could bring everything back to its old familiar footing with just a caress.

Since then I have often heard men express themselves in a way which made me realize that all men think that all they have to do is to flatter a woman and tell her that they love her and she will forget. A man seems to think that a woman can always be bought—if not with money, with flattery or caresses. Hal had tried to buy me first by giving me the check the day before which was the amount of his winnings. This morning, he was perhaps trying to buy me with a semblance of love.

"Don't Hal," I said as I drew away from him.

"Why, what's the matter. Aren't you well?"

"I do not think that in all my married life there was ever anything that so disappointed me quite as much as Hal's assumption that when I was displeased with him that there was something wrong with my liver instead of my love. He seemed always to think that unless I was physically ill that he could do nothing for which I could not find an excuse."

"Are you sure that you have not caught cold sleeping out there all night?" he asked solicitously. "It was very foolish of you, for you know I was asleep and wasn't worrying about you."

"I did not sleep out here all night. It is now only 8 o'clock. It was four when you opened the door and came in. Perhaps you remember that I sat up for you and was awake when you opened the door. I did not sleep until long after you were snoring. It was light before I closed my eyes."

"Well," he said with a yawn, as he raised his arms above his head, "am I going to get an orange and a few kind words for my breakfast, or are you going to distress me with that look on your pretty face which certainly tells me that I am in bad with friend wife this morning?"

For answer, I walked over and lit the gas under the coffee percolator. For a moment or two Hal stood still as though he were going to say something more to me, but he seemed to think better of it, and went into the bathroom. Soon I heard him whistling and singing as usual as he turned on his bath water.

I managed to make some toast and prepare an orange, and then a sudden faintness and nausea came over me. I staggered to the bedroom and threw myself on the bed.

A Man is just as Young and Strong as his Blood

No man can fight the battles of life and hold his own if his blood is not pure, for rich, red blood is what strength is based upon. When you see a strong, vigorous man, who never knows when he is licked, you may wager that such a man has coursing through his veins rich, red blood. Many people have thin, pale blood. They are weak, tire easily, become discouraged quickly, and sometimes feel like giving up the struggle. Such folks need Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which is sold by druggists in liquid or tablet form.

It is made up of Blood root, Oregon Grape root, Queen's root, Stone root, Cherry Bark, without alcohol. Send 10c. to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial package of the tablets.

OLYMPIA, WASH.—"My husband always uses Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as a stomach medicine and tonic, and declares that it is the best medicine in the world."—Mrs. J. E. Foster, Cor. Pear and Spring Streets.

PERIODS IN AGE OF EARTH

Figures Compiled by Geologist Are Certainly Interesting Though Perhaps a Little Startling.

A geologist describes by means of a graphic chart the comparative lengths of the different periods of the age of the earth. He places the age of the earth arbitrarily at 72,000,000 years, represented by a clock dial of 24 hours—3,000,000 years to each hour.

On the above basis the first six hours of the clock represent Azole time, the earliest conjectural period of the earth's formation—18,000,000 years; the next six hours Eozoic and the next eight Paleozoic time—18,000,000 and 24,000,000 years, respectively—periods of mineral and vegetable formations. In the next three hours animal life developed—Mesozoic time, 9,000,000 years—that is, from the twentieth to the twenty-third hour. Thus the last hour of the 24—3,000,000 years of geologic time—represents Neozoic time, which includes the appearance of human life in the Quaternary period.

This last division of the 24 hours, the Quaternary period, is shown as only ten minutes—in other words 500,000 years. The existence of human life on the earth, therefore, bears the same relation to the age of the earth as ten minutes does to twenty-four hours. But since the period of written history is estimated roughly at only 6,000 years, this last division is not shown on the chart, since it would only be 12 seconds in duration.—Scientific American.

POPULAR SPORT IN PANAMA

Duel to the Death Between Bull and Jaguar is Considered Height of Entertainment.

The Panamanian who is a real sport delights in nothing so much as a fight between a jaguar and a bull. One must visit the isthmus to see this particular kind of sport.

An enormous cage, strongly built of scantlings and iron bars, is placed in the center of the ring ordinarily used for bull fights. A bull is placed inside of it and presently one of the huge South American cats is wheeled in in a smaller cage and introduced into the barred inclosure. The latter is about ten feet high, with twice that length and breadth.

In the fight which then ensues the bull is victorious usually. Not more than once in ten such contests does the jaguar prove the victor. This would not be the case if the animals were not restricted to so narrow a space; but the big cat, being obliged to rely mainly upon its activity, does not have a fair chance.

Nevertheless, the duel greatly delights the spectators. The fair Panamanian shriek with excitement, and the little Panamanian kids read the air with yells.

Fish Thrive Under Water.

Water never gets colder than about 39 degrees. So no matter how thick the ice, and no matter how thick the ice upon the stream or lake, the fishes are enjoying a temperature of about 39 degrees, and they move about in the water and gather supplies very well at that temperature. Through the clear ice one may see fish with their backs against it, where the temperature must be 32 degrees, and if you strike the ice above them lightly they dart away with pretty good speed. If you will strike the ice immediately above them with the back of an ax, or a sledge hammer, you will kill the fish. The concussion does the business and the fish will turn up its white belly upward, always. It is a common enough thing in some regions for the boys to kill the fish through the ice, and then to cut a hole and get them out.

The Tunnel's Part in Progress.

In the history of civilization the tunnel has played a mighty part. In Europe the St. Gothard tunnel through the Alps is famous; it connects Goshenen with Alroto, in Switzerland, and is over nine miles long. The Simplon, which also penetrates the Alps, is reckoned one of the seven modern wonders of the world; it is 12 1/2 miles in length. Still another Alpine bore is the Waasserfluh, two miles in extent from entrance to entrance. Another notable tunnel is the Khojak pass, in India.

Among the important American tunnels is that which penetrates the Cascade mountains, in Washington; the Cumberland, under the Cumberland mountains in Tennessee; the Hoosac, in Massachusetts; and the tunnel under the Detroit river.—Harry C. Drum, in Leslie's.

Revolving Door Etiquette.

The etiquette of the revolving door has yet to be standardized. At present there are two schools of opinion on the subject. One holds that when a man and a woman approach a revolving door it is the man's place to go first, pushing the door slowly so as to allow his partner to follow in the next compartment without any effort on her part. The other contends that ladies first still holds sway. It is good manners, these theorists say, for the man to step aside, let the woman start the door revolving, and then jump into the compartment behind her. In this way, it is contended, the man may assume control of the door and guide it until the woman ahead of him is safely out. The bitterest rivalry prevails between the two schools.—Argonaut.
