

ADVICE TO LOVELORN AND OTHERS

BY MRS. ELLSBURY. A Daily Column of Questions and Answers Conducted by a Woman Who Knows. Address your Letters to Mrs. Ellsbury Care Roseburg News-Review.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I am very much in love with a young man, but he doesn't seem to care especially for me. He takes me out occasionally, and sometimes I invite him to my home for supper, but we only see each other about once in two or three weeks. What can I do to make him care more for me?

THANK YOU. You can't "make" this young man care more for you. As you indicate, you care for him occasionally, but he doesn't understand that you are his company. The only thing you can do is to be cordial and friendly when chance throws you together. If he were especially interested in you he would make an effort to see you more frequently and would make whatever advances were necessary to promote the friendship.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: Where was Andrew Carnegie buried? A. Sleepy Hollow cemetery, Tarrytown, on the Hudson, New York.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: Will you give me a recipe for chili con carne? A. Cut 1 pound of stewing meat in 1/4-inch cubes and place in a casserole with 2 cups of water. Cook until tender. Then add 1 cup dried beans, 2 onions, minced fine, 1 cup canned tomatoes, and 1 teaspoon chili powder. Bring to a boil and simmer for 20 minutes.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: What is the name of the State of California? A. The name "California" is derived from the Spanish, "Calida forta," meaning "a hot furnace."

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: What is the most natural bridge in the world? A. In southeastern Wyoming where the La Poudre creek breaks through the Laramie mountains. The span is 275 feet above the water, and the arch 80 feet.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: There are two girls that I take out often. When I take either of them I think I care more for her than any other girl; but when away from them I can't decide which I like better. How can I make which one I really love, so I can ask her to marry me? A. Evidently you don't care enough for either of these girls to want to ask her to marry you. When you regard for a girl is deep enough to justify you in asking her to become your wife, there will be no uncertainty in your mind. You will feel sure that she alone is the one with whom you can find happiness. Until you have that certainty, don't ask anyone to become engaged to you.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: My neck is very dark and looks dirty no matter what I do for it. Will you please tell me some way to make it lighter? A. Lemon juice, diluted if necessary, is often used as a skin bleach. Diluted peroxide also is a safe and excellent bleach.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: Is it all right to eat candy at a theater? A. Although many estimable people do eat candy during the performance at a theater, it is not generally considered in good taste to do so.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: In what year was the book "Uncle Tom's Cabin" first published? A. It was first printed in 1852.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I am a widow and have two children. A man has asked me to marry him, but he doesn't want the children. He thinks they could be placed in some institution. I love him very much but I hate to give up my children. What shall I do? A. Your first responsibility is toward your children. If a man who has asked you to marry him does not love you enough to be willing to father your children, do not marry him. They need their mother. No institution can take your place.

Moon Will Hide Face Tonight

The moon will disappear tonight into total eclipse. The phenomenon will be the only lunar eclipse visible in the western part of the United States this year.

At 8:57 o'clock the moon will begin to enter the outer shadow of the earth, and will pass into the real shadow, or umbra, at 10:03. The eclipse will be total at 11:23, and will remain so until 12:05. At 2:32 a. m. the moon will be entirely out of the penumbra, or outer shadow.

Florence Wharton Attends Convention

CORVALLIS, April 21.—Miss Florence Wharton, a junior in the school of pharmacy at O. A. C. and president of the Delta Delta Delta sorority, was recently elected a delegate to the province convention of her sorority.

The convention is to be held in Manhattan, Kansas, and Miss Wharton left several days ago enroute to that place. She will be away two weeks or more.

Miss Wharton, who is prominent in student activities, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wharton, of Roseburg. The school of pharmacy, in which she is registered, has 192 students enrolled, which is the largest attendance in the history of the school.

The work of pharmacy students in general was of a very high grade. Fewer students in pharmacy were put on probation at the end of the second term than in any other school in the college.

Portland Team Lives In Cellar

The close of the second week of play showed the teams in the Pacific coast league in the following positions in comparison with the same time last season:

Table with columns: Club, W., L., Pct. for 1921 and 1920. Clubs include San Francisco, Sacramento, Seattle, Salt Lake, Oakland, Vernon, and Portland.

The Portland club presents the greatest reversal in form in the above comparison, and no one yet has been able to discover that any team in the league ever made a more inauspicious start. It is interesting to note that the Portlanders in the first two weeks of play have made 128 hits for 48 runs with one victory to show for it all.

San Francisco, Sacramento and Los Angeles are playing even better than in the form that was prognosticated for them. Salt Lake is more than holding its own for a team that was figured still to be in embryo when the season opened.

Vernon and Seattle are the two disappointments of the first two weeks, neither team living up to the reputation that was accorded them during their training camp days.

Few critics ventured to say anything definite about the Oaklanders before the season started, so whether they are near the top or bottom of the list would not tend to upset any dope. They are conveniently twist and between the two extremes thus playing no favorites.

Manager Cravath, of Salt Lake is making a tour of the larger cities of the east, including Chicago, Pittsburgh Philadelphia and Boston in an effort to see what he can do in the way of digging up some new material with which to strengthen his ball club. It was almost a foregone conclusion that this trip would be made sooner or later and the Bee's management made no mistake in under-taking it early in the season before they got so far behind that a large portion of the season would be taken up in merely trying to recover the ground that might be lost.

It may be said for Portland that their opponents are practically reaping the benefit of all the "breaks." The Beavers have lost five games by a margin of only one run, one of the games being a 1 to 6 contest. Others ran 7 to 6; 3 to 2; 5 to 4 and 8 to 7.

It is obvious from those figures that the Portlanders are by no means making it easy for the Beavers to gain their position in the percentage column. The 8 to 7 game ran into 11 innings.

Another coast manager who has a call out for players is Del Howard of the Oaklanders, and he is in communication with the Detroiters in an effort to see what they can do for him in the way of providing talent. It is practically a sure shot that there will be many an S. O. S. call sent toward the Atlantic before the coast teams are satisfied that they have the best men obtainable. With a prosperous season last year and another one in sight, the purse strings are loose.

CAT DELIVERED ITS MESSAGE

Battle-Scarred Feline Proved it at Least Had the Courage of its Convictions.

The other night I saw a clever cat. He sat on the fence in the moonlight, all alone, writes a correspondent of the Boston Herald. He looked up at the moon and opened his mouth. I braced myself for what I believed to be coming, namely, his effort at self-expression. But no, this was a clever cat. Like O. Henry, he dealt in clever surprises. In his attitude there was something of suspense. My waiting nervous system felt the strain of it. Then he gave voice to a great silence. He said nothing in a dramatic way. With a self-satisfied smirk on his puffy face he jumped off the fence gracefully and disappeared into the night. He was a clever cat. He did the unexpected in an original and artistic way. He annoyed me, for he failed to live up to my conception of cats, yet I felt a certain admiration for him.

The next night another cat sat on the fence. This was a great cat, though his appearance was far from prepossessing. He was scrawny, and his coat bore, all too plainly, the scars of many a "foughten field." The divine light of unrest burned in his eyes. He threw back his head and poured out his very soul in vigorous expression, sincere and earnest, though unappreciated. Nothing daunted by the lack of applause, or by the shower of missiles directed at his scrawny person, he gave full vent to his message in a form which, though unconventional, seemed best to fit his mood. Then, with an air of utter abandon, he shook the dust of the fence from his unconcerned feet and disappeared.

"This," thought I, my ears still ringing, "was truly a great cat. He had a message and he gave it. Let the world receive it or reject it as it will."

WHERE HUSTLE IS UNKNOWN

Mallorca Justly Entitled to the Appellation Given to It, "Island of Calm."

Mallorca, a tiny speck of an island in the Mediterranean, is a land of peace and ease. A great painter and writer who visited the island, has christened it "The Island of Calm," because there everyone moves, rests, talks, walks and conducts his courtship as if the day had 48 hours, the mile about 10,000 feet, and the span of human life 700 years, so little haste do they make in living and enjoying life. These people who take life so leisurely, are not lazy, shiftless or unpleasant in personal appearance or manner. They are intelligent, honest, capable of work, sober and economical.

These characteristics, preserved throughout centuries of uninterrupted peace and tranquility, have made them peaceable, trusting and home-loving. The men are of medium height, strong and agile.

And as for the women, they possess the same lovely skin as the women of North America, features as if sculptured by Phidias or Praxiteles, and they walk like goddesses. But they know nothing of the "joy of living" due partially to ancestral Arabic influences and to the fact that their island has for so long been under strict religious repression.

Little Sign of Culture in Speech.

Americans are known the world around for their short and nasal a's and many have been misled into broadening all their a's to prove their culture. But the original sound was as in "far" and "palm"; it is the first sound uttered by infants and still the most general sound of the letter on the continent of Europe. The "ah" sound was the most frequent for the letter in the earliest English or Anglo-Saxon, still considered the model and best usage in our language. The a in "ask" may be pronounced like the a in "bare" or "at," but, according to the Encyclopaedia Americana, "with the majority of good speakers" it should be akin to the "ah" sound. Best authorities hold that the excessive use of the short a is most common in America, outside the greater part of New England. It is thus a provincialism, whereas the broadened a's may be indicative of travel, familiarity with the languages of Europe, and association with cultured people.

"Connoisseur" and "Dilettante."

The connoisseur is "one who knows," as opposed to the dilettante, who only "thinks he knows." The connoisseur is cognizant of the true principles of art, and through his knowledge is competent to pass a critical judgment concerning any art, particularly of painting, sculpture or music. He is of a higher grade than the amateur, and more nearly approaches the artist, whose rules of action he is familiar with, but does not practice. The dilettante may be a lover of the fine arts, science or letters, and may pursue any one of the arts in a desultory way and for amusement, and Lowell says of him: "The main characteristic of the dilettante is that sort of impartiality that springs from inertia of mind, admirable for observation, incapable of turning it to practical account."

Advises Spray For Caterpillars

Caterpillars are doing a great deal of damage in the vicinity of Riddle, Myrtle Creek, Canyonville and Days Creek, according to County Fruit Inspector Armstrong. A spray of arsenate of lead should be applied within the next few days, he states, in order that the foliage may not be destroyed. He advises putting on the spray just as soon as the orchardist is sure the caterpillars have all hatched, but states that the delay should not be long enough to allow the destruction of the foliage. People do not place enough importance on the destruction caused by caterpillars, he states. Spurs from which the foliage is eaten this year will not bear fruit bearing branches next year. In several orchards last season the caterpillars were not checked in time and as a result the trees where the damage was done are now barren. Mr. Armstrong states that if the spray is applied immediately three pounds of poison to 100 gallons of water is sufficient, but if there is any delay four pounds should be used.

Carnival Plans Up to Firemen

A number of persons interested in a strawberry carnival met at the city hall last night for the purpose of discussing the advisability of putting on the annual festival this year. The matter was discussed from various angles and it was shown that there is a popular demand for the carnival, but owing to the disagreements which have arisen it is difficult to secure an organization or group of persons to take the initiative. It is understood that the parent-teacher associations have taken a firm stand against participation by the school children, and this puts a great damper on the plans. It was finally decided to put the celebration up to the fire department and in the event the firemen find the demand sufficient and can get the proper support a carnival may be staged.

Son of Wealthy Packer Suicides

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 20.—Driven to desperation, it is believed, because of failure to negotiate a loan of $10,000 and despondent because of financial troubles, John P. (Jack) Cudahy, son of the famous packer, Michael Cudahy, committed suicide this morning by blowing the top of his head off with a shotgun in his bedroom at his home at 7525 Hollywood boulevard.

His wife, Edna C. Cudahy, was in her own dressing room nearby at the time. Downstairs in the palatial home were his 17-year-old daughter, Anne, and his 14-year-old son, Michael.

According to Mrs. Cudahy, ill health, coupled with financial worry, was the cause of his rash act. She denied the report that there had been any altercations between her and her husband shortly before Mr. Cudahy took his life. Following notification of the suicide to Coroner Williams by members of the family, Detective Sergeant Mammahan and Hurt of the Hollywood division interviewed Mrs. Cudahy and investigated the shooting.

Examinations In Agriculture Dropp'd

The subject of agriculture will not be a part of the examinations to be held in the various schools of the state in May and June according to a letter sent out by J. A. Churchill, state superintendent of public instruction. The letters were prepared by Mr. Churchill and were directed to all county school superintendents in Oregon.

Mr. Churchill said that he is much interested in the subject of agriculture, but that little is being accomplished as it is now taught. This is due, he said, to the fact that few of the teachers have had any preparation or training in agriculture instruction.

"Pupils will not be required to pass an examination in agriculture, either in the May or June eighth grade examinations," said Mr. Churchill in his letter. "No district of the first class now teaches the subject of agriculture and the same may be said of many districts of the second class."

"The result is that the large majority of the teachers going into the rural districts from year to year, have themselves had no course in agriculture. It is absurd to require pupils to pass an examination in a subject in which the teacher has had no preparation."
