

FRIENDS SEE CHANGE IN THIS OAKLAND MAN

G. Fuller Says Tanlac Has Restored His Health And He Has Gained Thirty-Five Pounds In Weight.

"My friends all seem astonished at the wonderful change that has taken place in my condition in so short a time," said A. G. Fuller, an expert accountant of 2071 62nd Ave., Oakland, Cal.

Pool Hall Owner to Charge Libel

WOODBURN, Or., April 28.—Accused against W. J. Herwig, head of the Anti-Saloon League of Oregon, whom he will charge with libel, will begin immediately by Tracy Poorman, proprietor of Poorman's pool hall in this city. Mr. Poorman announced this morning.

fully, I rarely ate at all during that time and fell off thirty pounds in two weeks.

"I was also suffering from loss of energy and general weakness, and this, as well as the stomach trouble, became much worse. Gas would form on my stomach, causing awful pains and a feeling of suffocation. I was badly constipated and in such misery that I would often roll and toss all night long in my bed. I was so weak and nervous that it was only with great effort that I could do my work."

"My mother persuaded me to try Tanlac and my weight increased from thirty-five pounds—a gain of five pounds above my usual weight—in thirty days. I can eat anything now without a sign of indigestion, my nerves are back to old-time form and I am enjoying life and good health as I have not before in years."

been engaged as attorney for Mr. Poorman.

No raid was ever staged by the Anti-Saloon League on the Poorman pool hall, although a list of places to have been raided were published in the Portland Oregonian on April 17. The warrant issued by Judge Urrah for the search of Poorman's called for apparatus for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor and intoxicating liquor.

Hal's Letter.

"All right," I said to Hal, when she decided to go motoring with Duane and me, "you go down and tell Duane over the phone that we're both going."

"Certainly not," exclaimed Hal laughingly.

"Then he'll have to wait until after I read this letter," and I opened my husband's letter.

"Yes, I know dearest," said Hal, "I have been very negligent of you but things have been happening thick and fast since you left and I did not want to write you until we had settled them. First I want to tell you dear heart, how much I have missed you. I think I would rather have you here and quarrel with you every day than be alone. I have just begun to realize that a married man is no good on earth to himself or anyone else if his wife isn't around somewhere in the offing."

"And, here's news. I am going to Washington. Dad has a government contract, as you know, for wagons, and I think it will be better if we open an office in Washington. If we do this, we will have to go there to live. I am sure that this will please you, and as soon as that blessed baby comes, we can be together at the nation's capital."

"I have already given up our five rooms and am having a man come today to pack up the furniture. I will be as glad to get away from this place as you were, Alex, for Dad now seems that, as much as he thinks of my opinion, he always finds fault with everything I suggest although he comes around in the end."

"If that baby of ours is a boy, I certainly will never want him to be in business with me. I don't believe it's good for the father or the boy either. The father never seems to realize that the boy has grown up and has matured opinions. A father takes all his son's opinions for snap judgment and the boy, of course, is moving along with the times, and realizes that the world has moved up a lot since Dad was his age. Consequently it seems to me that Hal, Jr., should go into some other entirely different line of business."

"Alex, I really am so happy that we are going to be by ourselves. I am going to come and see you on my way to Washington. Possibly I may be with you as soon as you receive this letter and we're going to have the time of our lives, honey. We're going to celebrate that wonderful new life we are going to have in the very near future."

"By the way, did I tell you that Nell Marshall was making good in New York. I have had one letter of her since you left. She is going out on the road soon. She seems quite delighted with her work, and asked very solicitously about you. I wish you would write her. A woman bucking the world all by herself is not in the easiest position."

"If I were a woman, Alex, I think I would marry as soon as possible and get some man to take care of me. As I write this letter, dear, I am falling in love with you all over again. Now don't ask me if I had fallen out of love with you, because you are a modern woman and you know according to the modern ideas—Fred in particular, a man—and a woman also—is always falling in and out of love. Just now it seems to me that the thing which I want most is to hold you in my arms and kiss that little dimpled valley in your throat just below your chin."

I had a letter from Duane yesterday. He had the nerve to talk about you in just the same way as he used to talk to me about the wives of his other friends. I wonder if the very thought of Duane having a little flirtation with you, makes you all the more desirable in my eyes. You see, dear, I am very frank. That is one of the reasons I know that I am your husband. A man is never frank with his sweetheart. He is always acting up to what he thinks is her ideal of him. But, whether I am your ideal or not, dear heart, I am loving you very much today and I am now counting the hours until I shall see you."

"I rather like my sensations at the present moment. They are quite thrilling. They are quite as thrilling as they were when I wrote to you before we were married."

"Perhaps the idea of going to Washington has something to do with them. I could never analyze my own emotions. I do not believe that any man stops to do that. He just gets the thrill out of them and lets it go at that."

"Now, never tell me after this that an old married man can not write his wife a love letter, for if you do, I shall answer that I did not write half the love I felt."

ADVICE TO LOVELORN AND OTHERS

—BY MRS. ELLSBURY—

A Daily Column of Questions and Answers Conducted by a Woman Who Knows. Address your Letters to Mrs. Ellsbury Care Roseburg News-Review.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I have been going with a boy four months and we seemed to like each other well enough to get married until one evening I met a boy I am sure I like better than the other. It makes no difference where I am, if he is there he asks to take me home. What shall I do?

A. If you are engaged to the first boy you should break your engagement before going out with anyone else. Don't you think you are a little bit hasty in deciding to marry a boy you have only gone with four months? Marriage is the biggest thing in a woman's life, and you should be very sure you love the man you marry. If you are sure you love the second boy enough to marry him, then tell your first friend so, but if you are undecided you should have many boy friends until you find the one you are sure you could be happy with.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: Some three months ago while I was visiting a friend, I met a most wonderful girl. It seems that we liked each other right well, and were soon engaged. After going together a little over two months she broke our engagement after having a quarrel. Now, Mrs. Ellsbury, I have gone with just exactly eight girls since, and I am sorry to say that of all the eight there is not one that I would really care for, or rather love, as I did the first. When I meet this girl on the street, she always smiles and speaks. I would like for you to tell me what you think of the matter.

A. Evidently since having the quarrel you have made no advances to the girl. Perhaps she is just as sorry for the quarrel as you are, and is waiting for you to come to her, and if you still love her it is your place to do so. You have not told me who was to blame for the quarrel, but remember a girl does not want a man to think she is running after him, and this, perhaps, is keeping her from coming to you. Go to her and tell her you are sorry for the quarrel, and still love her, and if she still loves you in return, she will tell you so, and everything will be all right.

PRUNE TREES FOR SALE.

The De Laval Milker Pleases the Cows

THE De Laval Milker was designed with consideration for the cows and in observance of the principles of milk secretion. Your cows will like the De Laval Milker—and because of its uniform and gentle pulsations, they let down their milk readily.

Users are proving that the De Laval Milker actually increases production even over good hand milking. Think of producing more milk in less time, with less expense and drudgery. And the De Laval is so simple in operation that any one, even young boys or girls, can operate it successfully. The De Laval is a better way of milking.

Just say the word and we will start a De Laval Milker working for you immediately.
