Alicia Hammersly
A Woman Who Wouldn't Remarry
By Idah McClone Gibson
The Noted Writer

Alicia's Opportunity.

Bab and I had only time to exchange glances, for Mr. Early followed right on the heels of the maid. As he came forward, he hesitated at the door, giving me a chance to study him momentarily.

A little gleam of interest came into his eyes as he glanced at me, and then he turned toward Bab.

Bab did look the part of a successful writer more than I. In her aggressive, dark way. Bab is very beautiful and, if a trifle hard, and beautiful and, if a trifle hard, she has a sparkle that is attractive.

"Mrs. Hammersly, I am glad to meet you at last," said Mr. Early, extending his hand to Bab.

"I am not Mrs. Hammersly," answered Bab with a smile as she shook the extended hand. "I am Miss Barbara Atwell. I wrote the letters for my sister, this, turning to me, is Mrs. Hammersly."

Mr. Early took my hand in a warm clasp. "I am delighted to meet you, Mrs. Hammersly, and to know that you have completely recovered. I received your second story and we at the office agree that it is better than your first."

"I hope so, Mr. Early," I answered as I felt my cheeks grow hot. "My first story was full of technical mistakes and I am very grateful to some one for the splendid way in which it was edited and put into shape. You see, Mr. Early, I am still an amateur."

"But you must know, Mrs. Hammersly, that ideas are what count in story. A noted author said a white spot, if you have something to say, style doesn't mean much after all. I didn't shilly-shally with him but I do believe that if you have something that the world is looking for some one will be glad to put it into technical shape for you."

We had been standing while we talked and Bab interrupted with a look that said she was to be seated. "Well, I would say that you have learned that way, Mrs. Hammersly," said Mr. Early as Bab giggled.

Hardly was the door closed when Mr. Early turned to me, his face brightly changed. He had thrown off the society mask and become entirely a man of business. His eyes, which I had thought were blue, looked almost teal; grey and I noticed for the first time that his hair was whitening slightly at the temples. His mouth still retained some of its fullness, but his jaw seemed to set more squarely than before. Roland Early was handsome in a contradictory way. His forehead and eyes were intellectual, his expression almost spiritual at times, his mouth was frankly sensual and his chin expressed absolute determination.

"You will forgive me, Mrs. Hammersly, if I tell you that your being a widow simplifies greatly the order that I found planned to make to you, if I found it at all feasible. I should like you to come into the office of the magazine. We have just lost one of the most valued members of our staff and it was the opinion about the office that you would work into the position better than any one else that we know of at present."

"But I don't know anything about magazine work," I gasped, suddenly almost faint, to find my dream come true.

"Tomorrow—Alix to Leave Home."

Homestead Case Is In Circuit Court

Claiming that he was shown valuable and well improved land, which was represented to him to be homestead land, and that when he filed on the description furnished found himself in possession of a useless piece of property located at a considerable distance away, Robert Gorman today brought suit against Charles Sharp and Bert Wells of Camas Valley into court yesterday. Gorman is an ex-service man and he came here about a year ago looking for homestead land. He says that Sharp showed him the land which he claimed Wells owned under a homestead right but that Wells was ready to sell for a small sum. Later Gorman says he was introduced to Wells and that the transaction was completed and that Wells furnished him the description. Gorman says when he filed on this description he found his land located at a considerable distance away. The defendants in the suit deny the charges made. Attorney Rhoades appears for Gorman, and Attorneys Eddy, Wimberly and Cordon for the defendants.

REMOVING BUSINESS.

D. P. Fisher's paint and paper store is this week being removed to the Hildeburn building on lower Cass street. The new place of business will be located in the rear of the Ak Sar Ben real estate office and will be open for business shortly after June 1st. Mr. Fisher's phone number in the meantime is 166-Y, and he can be found at his home, 1027 North Jackson street.

Goldfish in Ohio River.

Many tons of goldfish were caught in the fishing grounds of the Portage river at Port Clinton, O., recently. According to some of the fishermen, the first scattering of the fish was found in 1913 after the big floods of Ohio and the lake regions, and it was thought at that time that the fish may have been liberated from some of the park and resort aquariums, by the overflowing of the flooded artificial ponds.

The fish are not of the glass bowl variety, but seem to be more of a carp species, and will measure several inches and weigh as much as a half-pound each. They are placed in cars and brought here to be loaded into express cars and shipped in tanks, alive, to the New York markets, where they are sold to the retail and wholesale trade.

St. Paul Is Exonerated.

Men translated the Bible—and twisted St. Paul's remarks about women to suit their own ideas. That is divulged by Miss K. Raleigh to the Women's Freedom league.

The apostle's remarks about women, she said, were badly twisted in translation and it could be proved by the removal of a few dots and commas, that St. Paul did not: Forbid women to preach; command them to obey their husbands; insist that forever and aye, whatever the fashion of the country, they should wear hats in church; say that they should never wear jewelry and fine clothes.

"In the sentence 'Women obey your husbands,'" said Miss Raleigh, "the correct translation of the word 'obey' is 'be considerate to.'"

A Yellow Peril.

Can you read your laundry mark? T. Phillip Terry, author of "Terry's Guide to Japan," tells the following joke on himself—a joke which emphasized the advisability of keeping on good terms with one's Chinese laundryman. The Chink in Mr. Terry's home town was inclined to be surly; so one day the guide book writer lectured him on the subject of courtesy, and urged him to adopt civility as a habit. The admonition palpably displeased the celestial, but he said nothing. Later Mr. Terry, who lived several years in China and knows something of the language, was surprised to find his shirts and collars marked with the Cantonese ideograph signifying "upstart jackass."

FEMINISTS ARISE IN PERSIA

Insist That Veils Are No Longer Required and That Women Are Independent Thinkers.

That feminine fashions will not be coerced by law, even though prison sentence be inflicted, was the opinion of Prof. Jenabe Fazel of the Queen's university of Teheran, who addressed members of the California club recently on the feminine movement in Persia.

While some American and English women were being imprisoned for asking for the suffrage, their progressive sisters in Persia were filling the prisons because they insisted on leaving off the veil. The unveiled became such a majority that the jails in Persia were overcrowded and in despair the government acquiesced. That women may appear on the streets of Persia without the veil imposed by the state religion is regarded over there as a great triumph in the emancipation of womanhood.

Professor Fazel, who holds the chair of philosophy in the only university for women in Persia, spoke in musical Persian, his sentences being interpreted as he went along by Mirza Ahmad Sohrab, former secretary of the Persian legation at Washington, and likewise a believer in the emancipation of the women of the Orient. Both are followers of the Bahai philosophy, through the teachings of which the Persian women attained what independence of thought and action they enjoy today.

According to the Persian savant, it is the destiny of women to become members of the congresses and parliaments of all the countries of the world.—San Francisco Chronicle.

ROME HOME OF GLUTTONS

Table of Ancient Emperor Vitellius Said to Have Cost Him $1,500 Every Day.

Very little is known of the food of the ancient Egyptians, authorities say, after explaining that the dwellers in the Nile valley were so fond of their cabbage that they defied it.

The Romans raised a great hurroo about the art of the Athenian cooks they captured, history records. But the delicate aroma of the Grecian pot was never meant to satisfy the thick Roman palate. Rome, in its pursuit of physical pleasure, discarded its cabbage and sought for rare and delicate viands. Pollio, it is said, fed the flesh of human slaves to his fowls to invest their meat with a new flavor. Emperor Vitellius' daily market expense was $15,000. At one banquet he dispensed 2,000 kinds of rare fish and 7,000 bird species. His table cost him $20,000,000 for one four-month period. To arouse their jaded appetites, it is written, the Romans ate brains of humming birds, tongues of nightingales and roes of the rarest fish.

Testamentary to the skill of the Grecian cook is the story of the fish which was so much of a sport and artist that he smiled in admiration in the face of the chef who was frying him so deftly and with such flavor.

Strive to Excel.

You are not true to yourself when you are satisfied with doing what others have done. You may by nature be fitted for very much greater work than your neighbors. You may also be short on some points wherein they are strong. In either case it would not be fair to measure yourself by them. There are certain things you can surpass in. In these you should greatly excel if you attain your possibilities. So measure yourself in the light of your ability and the opportunities offered by the problem. Then put yourself to the task of hitting off 100 per cent efficiency in every attempt. Of course you will find it hard. If it were not, every lad in the community would be doing what you are trying to do. So look for results and see that you get them.—Exchange.

Tractors in Arctic.

Tractors are crawling over the snowfields of northern Greenland with supplies of the Lange Koch polar expedition. At last the dog team of the Eskimo has a partial substitute. With their adaptable caterpillar tread, the tractors, like the army tanks, are able to negotiate sharp grades and even wallow over obstacles, along their trackless course. Not that the picturesque dog is to be altogether displaced. For heavy transportation the tractor is useful, but when it comes to the mails the dog teams will still be an essential of the rural delivery service in the land of the igloo.

Novel "Touring Cars."

Tours of the battlefields of France are now made by means of "road pullmans" which are very commodious trailers hitched onto the rear of a powerful touring car, and in this the traveler eats and sleeps. A party of six persons can be accommodated easily on one of these cars, and if they are willing to crowd in, a few more may be taken along.

Training Mine Rescuers.

The United States government maintains nine railroad cars traveling among the miners of the country, teaching them first aid, mine rescue and other things which are likely to be of special interest to them. In addition to this there are trains maintained to rush to the aid of miners who may be injured or trapped in mines.

How We Build The Structure of Good Paint

WE make good paints like this—to save you money; and we've put 72 years' experience into them.

We use pure PIONEER WHITE LEAD, pure linseed oil, zinc and color in scientifically exact proportions.

The lead base is made so fine that it will pass through a silk screen with 40,000 meshes to the square inch. That means covering capacity and ease of spread.

A special device super-purifies the lead, making it "Whiter" so Fuller paints are exceptionally clear-toned. All ingredients are thoroughly mixed in specially designed machines, so the paint is always uniform and smooth.

The result on the house is a beautiful, elastic, tough, protective coating that stays, if properly applied, five or more years, keeping the wood like new.

Some people figure paint economy as "cost per gallon." That is wrong. For "cheap" paint doesn't cover so much surface—you buy more gallons. "Cheap" paint is harder to spread and you have more labor cost. So the "cheap" paint on the house costs just as much as the best of paint. Don't allow surfaces to rot—it costs less to paint them. "Cheap" paint on the average starts cracking in twelve months, while the best paint stays intact from five to ten times longer, if properly applied. Figure the cost per year of service and decide which paint you want to use.

We spend more to make paints for your economy. Be sure you get them when you paint.
