Esperanto a School Course.
Esperanto, the artificial international language, has been ordered introduced as an elective course in the commercial schools controlled by the Paris chamber of commerce.

The language was studied by a commission, whose members reported favorably upon it after several tests. One test was the translation of three complicated documents into French and then translation of the French texts back into Esperanto. It was found there was no change in the sense.

The introduction of Esperanto in all schools was recommended, not as a substitute for any other language, but as a means of communication.

Good Logic.

Terre Haute boy scouts have recently organized a sea scout troop. Several of the new members were waiting for their leader the other day, but still he didn't come. Finally one of them was sent out to find traces of him. He journeyed a block and then saw him in earnest conversation with a girl.

Now, he didn't want to expose the official—also he felt that he must be truthful, since he was a scout. So he used strategy when he came back. "Yes, I saw him," he said, "and we'd better wait here, for he was doing some official business. He was interviewing a candidate for the position of first mate."—Indianapolis News.

PEOPLE OF OUR TOWN

The Handy Man is going to Lay Off fixing the Flivver to Help Out with the Noon Rush at the Imperial cafe. Then he's got a Roof to tar for Doc Smith, and tonight being Saturday, he will Hold Down the third chair in Bill Jones' barber shop. If he lived in a City, he'd get in a Jam with all the Unions.

Better Than Alarm Clock.

Instead of leaving word at a hotel desk for an early morning call, there is now a new call system which enables guests to call themselves at any desired hour. A system of electric clocks is the newest hotel installation. The guest simply sets an indicator at night, somewhat similar to an alarm clock and a low musical chime rings at the desired time. The clocks have luminous dials and hands so that the time can be read in the dark.
