ROSEBURG, OREGON, JUNE 14, 1921.

FLAG DAY.

When the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777, passed a resolution adopting the combination of stars and stripes as the flag of the united colonies, it did not perhaps realize that it was doing anything likely to be commemorated more than a century thereafter.

The adoption of a national flag was one of the first signs that these colonies, which had united temporarily for combined military action, were bound together by common sympathies and ideas of government.

There are always some cynical people who do not feel any particular affection for their flag. They do not cherish strong ties to their home country. If they had to move to Europe or South America and could live there with as much comfort, they would be equally well satisfied with such residence in any foreign land.

It seems a very ungrateful point of view. The normal minded American knows he has been immeasurably blessed by the chance to grow up in this favored land. It has given him freedom of opportunity, better chances for education and development than he could have anywhere else.

All these benefits and blessings have cost a heavy price. Patriots have given up their lives to assure the country its chance for free development. Multitudes of true and faithful men have striven and struggled to keep the country true to its ideals, and to provide schools and churches and good government. The flag stands as the symbol of all these sacrifices. If people do not honor and reverence it, they are indifferent to the toil and effort of the host of people who have labored to make America loyal to the highest ideals.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN AND OTHERS

BY MRS. ELLSBURY. A Daily Column of Questions and Answers Conducted by a Woman Who Knows. Address your Letters to Mrs. Ellsbury Care Roseburg News-Review.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: Is it proper for a young man when in company with a lady in an ice cream parlor to give his order to the waitress first? I have gone with a boy who did this and I considered it very impolite at the time but said nothing to him. What should I do in such a case? I like this boy and would not like to hurt his feelings. X. Y., Reston.

A. It is not correct for him to do so, but is really a small breach of etiquette, if the rest of his manners are correct. If the waitress is in a hurry, and you are taking a little time to think of what you want, it is not improper for him to order first in order that the waitress will not be delayed so long.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I am a girl of 21. I go out occasionally with a nice young man four years my senior. He goes with other girls and I go with other boys, yet he says he loves me more than any other girl and I believe I can say the same for him. Neither of us could get married for several years yet. Would it be right for me to allow any familiarity from him if I think he is sincere and neither of us are familiar with our other friends? ANXIOUS, Reston.

A. Do not permit any familiarities unless you are definitely engaged to each other and are not going with other boys or girls. If you permit such things now, without an engagement, and both continue to go with others, you will probably not become engaged at all and you will then only have cheapened yourself and lost his respect.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: What bank in the state of Oregon handles the government farm loan money? C. S., Days Creek.

A. No bank in the state of Oregon handles that money. The nearest bank is the Federal Land Bank, of Spokane, Washington. Miss Sylvia J. Brown, of Roseburg, is the local secretary, and all applications must be submitted to her. She will also send any information desired.

L. F. T. Dancing Party Huge Success

The L.F.T. Club last night held a delightful dancing party in the big open air pavilion at Riddle in honor of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Bartrum, who are planning to leave Roseburg soon. Mr. Bartrum, president of the L. F. T. Club, has been responsible for some of the finest club dances ever held in Roseburg, and the club members make the organization a success, last night presented him with a fine camping equipment. The presentation was made by R. R. Turner. The club members motored to Riddle at about six o'clock last night and had a picnic dinner on the banks of the Umpqua. At 8:30 the Sunset orchestra arrived on the scene and the music continued until 12 o'clock. The party was voted the big success of the season and was a grand finale to the series sponsored by the L. F. T.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartrum and the children will leave in a day or two for Southern Oregon, where Mrs. Bartrum and children will remain a few weeks visiting with her mother Mrs. W. E. Church. Mr. Bartrum will return to Roseburg for several days and complete pending business matters, after which he will make an extended trip in the northern part of the state, and into Eastern Oregon, developing and organizing new agencies in his territory. While in the northern part of the state Mr. Bartrum will endeavor to select a suitable home for his family and probably move sometime this fall.

Roseburg People In Pueblo Flood

Mr. and Mrs. James Hildeburn and daughter, Gertrude, were in Pueblo, Colorado, at the time of the big flood, according to word received this morning. They are on their way to New York and are having the News-Review follow them while on their vacation and in writing to change their address to the next stop Miss Hildeburn gives a very complete description of the storm and its results, together with several pictures which were placed on display in the News-Review window.

"We just arrived here (Colorado Springs) today," Miss Hildeburn writes. "We left Pueblo this morning (June 10) and conditions there are awful. I am enclosing you three cards which will give you a little idea of what it really was. There are hundreds of bodies that will never be found. We were very lucky to have had some fire trouble the day before, otherwise both cars would have reached Pueblo. As it was we were in an awful storm and expected to be washed away every minute. All the concrete bridges were washed out around Pueblo and we had to drive on the railroad track for a distance of three miles over a long trestle. You can imagine what our three look like. The odor in Pueblo is something awful. We were glad to get out. We had to get a permit to get through, and if we stopped over they would confiscate our car and put us to work. They also searched every car leaving there for stolen goods. They found two cars last night that were stolen. One very prominent man was shot because he did not obey when they commanded him to halt. The town is under martial law."
