

ADVICE TO LOVELORN AND OTHERS

BY MRS. ELLISBURY.

A Daily Column of Questions and Answers Conducted by a Woman Who Knows. Address your Letters to Mrs. Ellisbury, Care Roseburg News-Review.

Dear Mrs. Ellisbury: I am a young man of eighteen years. I have a sister of sixteen. My mother does not let her go with boys, and she seems to think I should take her every place. How often should I take her out. She is real good looking and is a good dancer.

PUZZLED BROTHER.
A. As she is not allowed to go with boys she probably has no one to take her to dances and other places where she wishes to go. You would be a good brother if you took her often. If you have a girl of your own, why not take your sister and the girl also. If your sister goes to parties but has no way of getting home, stretch a point and call for her. It won't be long before she will be a young lady and she will repay you in countless ways for your thoughtfulness.

Dear Mrs. Ellisbury: Will you please tell me what is the meaning of the weather flags. I have wondered many times about them.

MRS. R. L. M. ROSEBURG.
A. The white flag means fair weather; the blue flag rain or snow; the white and blue flag means local rain or snow; the black triangular flag means temperature; and the white flag with the black square in the center, cold wave. When the fourth flag is placed above any one of the first three it indicates warmer; when below, colder; when not displayed the temperature is expected to remain about stationary.

Dear Mrs. Ellisbury: I am deeply in love with a man four years my junior. Is that too much?

WORRIED.
A. Four years would make no difference at all, and is nothing to be worried about. A man is usually more mature than a woman anyway, and probably in experience he is more than four years older than you are.

Championship Battles

Short Sketches of Fights for the Heavyweight Title.

In the long list of decisive ring battles through which the mantle worn by Sullivan has passed down the years to the bronzed shoulders of Jack Dempsey, there is no page to compare with that recounting the clash between Jack Johnson and Jim Jeffries in a sun-scorched arena at Reno on July 4, 1910.

Tex Rickard reared a great wooden saucer out on the plains of Nevada to accommodate the thousands who gathered from all over the country to see the tilt. He hung up a purse of $101,000 an unprecedented prize in those days.

Jeffries had not fought in more than five years. In the days of his reign in the ring, none had been his master and he had retired voluntarily with no defeats recorded against him. He was 35 years of age, an age often reckoned as dotage in the realm of sport. The attempt on his part to restore the championship to the white race was an effort to which he had been induced by a constant clamor from those who deplored of Johnson ever being beaten by the crop of white hopes then seeking matches with him.

It was a great throng that assembled for the battle. Fringed around the great arena packed were rows of "birds' nests," built to shelter the sweet sisterhood from the Reno divorce colony. To them the fight was a charming break in the monotony of serving time. Jeffries trained down to 225 pounds to meet the sleek opponent three years his junior and then in magnificent physical trim. There was vigorous fighting at the start, with Jeffries crouched into serious mien and his opponent erect, grinning and talking as usual.

In the fifth round Jeffries sent a stray left that rocked Johnson and momentarily wiped away his smile. But the worried look on the black face passed, big white teeth again gleamed and through them came the admonition "Don't rush, Mistah Jeff, doncha heah what 'ahm tellin' you?"

"Come on Jeff, it's easy," he repeated often through the bitter rounds. Age and five years of freedom from the rigors of training told on Jeffries and the power of his blows grew less strong as the battle went on. In the 15th round—the last one—Johnson sent him to the ropes with a savage uppercut. Against the drooping head of the weary white man the black fighter then pounded away with one uppercut after another.

The challenger had tried and failed and he felt taking punishment. His manager hopped into the ring to stop the slaughter, whereupon Rickard held up Johnson's hand in signal of victory.

Clothing Price

Cut Is at End

SPOKANE, Wash., June 16.—Men's clothing prices have reached their lowest level, unless there is a further reduction in labor costs, which cannot be expected, according to the statements of Charles R. Wry of Chicago, secretary of the National Association of Retail Clothiers' association, which opened here yesterday.

"The people have been misled by persons who did not know what they were talking about and, as a consequence, they have lost confidence," declared Mr. Wry. "Clothing prices have hit the bottom. Further cuts in labor costs would mean further reductions, but we do not look for that. The people have been deceived by a lot of denagogues, speaking from uninformed sources, to the effect that prices must decline more."

Clothing manufacturers of the United States are to be asked to launch an educational campaign explaining to the public the reasons for the maintenance of the present price levels for fall and winter of this year, and will also be asked to announce their prices in all advertising by the association, according to action taken today.

Movie Closeups

Ogle Read's celebrated novel "The Jucklin," has been transferred to the screen by Paramount and it will be seen at the Antlers theater tonight, and at the Majestic Sunday.

The story is said to contain many colorful and human characters which have been made to live on the screen by such capable players as Mabel Jullienne Scott, Monte Blue, Ruth Renick, Charles Ogle, Fannie Midgely, Zell Covington, Winter Hall, J. M. Dumont, Clarence Burton and many others who make up the all-star cast.

The story revolves around the family of Jucklin and their neighbors in the rural districts of North Carolina, and the young school teacher, who, disliked and discouraged by his own people in Alabama, comes to board with the Jucklins and teach the country school. Two delightful romances are developed, one of which leads to the supposed murder by Alf Jucklin of his rival, after the latter makes slighting remarks about his girl. By clever plot manipulation, the author finally frees the supposed murderer, and by the introduction of surprising circumstances, proves him technically innocent. Then comes the big surprise finish and everything ends happily for all concerned.

To leap from a high cliff, towering above the river, and land in the water while sticking to the saddle of his Pinto pony is one of the thrilling feats accomplished by William S. Hart in "Sand!" his newest production for Paramount Artcraft, which will be seen at the Majestic tonight.

Save the cost of cleaning out carbon

Cleaning out carbon costs the average motorist from $2 to $8 every 1500 to 3000 miles. In addition, carbon damages the engine, reduces its power, cuts down gasoline mileage and runs up repair bills.

You can avoid carbon troubles by using SUNOCO Motor Oil—the oil that eliminates hard carbon deposit.

SUNOCO is a wholly-distilled, non-compounded oil—free of carbon-forming elements. Begin using it at once. We will tell you the right type for your car.

a train hold-up, the star in the role of Dan Kurrie, takes a short cut and in order to be on time, makes the death-defying leap. He is a target for the bullets from the bandits' guns as he starts to swim his horse across the river, and to save the animal he sends it back and strikes out alone. As a bullet passes his head he dives and the bandits think he is lost. Then he swims under water and comes out in time to turn the tables and save the treasure train—doubly so because on it is the girl he loves better than his own life.

The picture abounds in thrills and human interest—a quality that insures its reception by the public. Lambert Hillier directed and also wrote the scenario from a story by Russell A. Boggs. Joe August, A. S. C., did the camera work, which is declared to be admirable.

Mary Thurman, noted screen beauty, displays exceptional talent in her rendition of the leading feminine role and there is a splendid cast in addition. There is also a strong vein of comedy and withal, the picture is regarded as one of Mr. Hart's best.
