DUBTPUL, Roseburg.

A. The custom making it incorrect to wear a face veil at night is somewhat obsolved. It is entirely a matter of one's own personal taste at the present time.

Ring Battles of Jack Dempsey and Carpentier

Through special arrangement made by the News-Review the fight fans of Douglas county will be given complete information on the Dempsey-Carpentier fight to be held on July 2. The fight will be covered round by round and all of the ringside information will be telegraphed direct to the News-Review office while the fight is in progress. In the meantime some interesting information is being furnished on the fighters themselves and their records and will be published in continued story form until the fight takes place. The following article by the Associated Press is the first in this series:

William Harrison "Jack" Dempsey, born in Manassa, Col., June 24, 1895, is a novice in ring affairs when compared with the fistic experience of Georges Carpentier, his challenger. Carpentier's earliest ring engagements date back to 1907, when the Frenchman was but a slip of a hoy. Dempsey's first official battles were fought in 1915.

A conAtest with one Kid Hancock, whom Dempsey knocked out in a single round, is the first official engagement credited to the conqueror of Jess Willard. Dempsey, however, lier battle.

Dempsey himself was the promoter, ticket-taker and a principal on that boxing program, which grew out of an argument with another youth at Montrose, Col. They were about to settle the difficulty in the usual American style, with fists, when Dempsey, showing a certain business accumen that has been noticeable in both him and his manager in later days, suggested that they hold the bout indoors and charge admission. A few days later they pitched a ring in the town dance hall. Dempsey sold and collected tickets at the door until it was time to fight. They until it was time to fight. They split the $50 "gate" and declared it was "easy money."

That bout started Jack Dempsey in the profession which was to make him subsequently the highest paid thlete any sport has seen. He fought 27 battles during 1915 d 1916, winning 18 by knockouts d five on decisions. He fought ree draws and was defeated once.

three draws and was defeated once, by Jack Downey.

Downsey, in 1915 and 1916, when next week's meals were not always. definitely scheduled, traveled on brakes and beams, rather than in cushioned compartment cars on his iourneys from one fistic engagement to another. His travels took him to New York in the late months of 1916.

While in New York, Dempsey met is first opponents of any class, box-ng with Andre Anderson, Wild Burt Cenney and John Lester Johnson in 10-round, no-decision bouts, all go-ing the limit. Demnyey was credited with heating Anderson and Kenney, but the veteran negro, Johnson, knew a bit too much for this "diamond in the rough" from Colorado. Johnson cracked two of Jack's ribs in the second round and Dempsey showed ring gameness by standing up to the negro for the remainder of Dempsey and his manager now talk in the hundreds of thousands when discussing purses. For his first bout in New York City, with Anderson, the westerner received $16. For hoxing Kenney, he was given $45 by the promoter. He signed to box John Lester Johnson for $500, but green's do only $100. In those days there was no Jack Kearns present to haggle for the boxer, and he decided that New York was not the gold-filled city that western stories had led him to believe. The young fighter returned to the west and to obscurity for a few months.

Industries of western Oregon. There are benches in the Roseburg destrict, areas in the South Umpqua and bench lands near Grants Pass that are especially adapted to apricots, according to C. I. Lewis, chief of horiculture for 14 years at the O. A. C., and at present assistant manager of the Oregon Growers Cooperative association.

Other sections of the state that are adapted to apricots are at Sam's valley. Wagner creek, Griffin creek and other bench districts extending from Jacksonville to Central Point. Ten or fifteen years ago quite a few apricots were grown in the Rogue river scurity for a few months.

How Georges Carpentier, taken from a Lens brewery, where he worked as an office boy, won his first battle by knocking out Francois Des-camps, his instructor, when Des-camps attempted to chastise the youth, is one of the choice legends camps attempted to chastise the youth, is one of the choice legends of boxing. Descamps's keen perception on that day, as well as his shrewdness and perseverance, has been a most important factor in bringing the French boxer to the promitnent position he now occupies. It is a heavy yielder and professional properties first year of ring activity in 1997. Two of these how, defeating on points Bourgeois and Wetinck, French boxers whose only claim to fame is that they once met Georges Carpentier. There was more opposition in the third battle and at the end of four rounds Carpentier was the loser to one Mazoir, another Frenchman, who has sual tinto obscurity. Carpentler's total ring earnings for t hat year are said to have been $184.

The following year was more successful. Twice in his 15th year the young Frenchman won by knockours, stopping Moinereau, a fellow countryman, and Salmon, an Englishman, the first in three rounds, the latter in 18. In another bout with Salmon, oarpentier won on a foul in 13 rounds. He then defeated Lepine in six rounds and fought two draws. Descamps had been bringing his youthful protege along carefully and already he was showing excellent form among France's best bantam-weights. weights.

The second and third years of Georges Carpentier's ring career started him off like a future ban-tamweight champion of the world. In 1908 he fought six battles, wintamweight champion of the world. In 1908 he fought six battles, winning two by knockouts, one on a foul, one on points, while each of the other two resulted in a draw. Descamps gradually became more daring in choosing opponents for the 15-year-old boxer. Salmon, the Englishman, whom he defeated by a knockout the first time in 18 rounds and again on a foul in 13 rounds, was among the best of the English batamweights. Legrand, on of the shiftlest of the French bantams, twice held him to a draw, once for six rounds and again for 20 rounds. The following year promised to be even more successful. In one of the earliest bouts he knocked out in one round Wetlinck, who had nearly held him even in one of the 1907 contests. Four victories by knockouts and nine bouts won on points, including triumphs over Charlie Ledoux and Paul Til, both famous bantams, comprised the record for the year until Carpentier ran into Gloria, a veteran, who stopped him in six rounds. This was the first time that the Lens youth bad taken the count. Defeat at the hands of a more experienced boxer did not discourage either Carpentier or Descamps for, on the whole, Carpentier's development had been phenomenal and none recognized the fact better than the shrewd little man who has piloted the boxer to his present pitch of prominence.

The special train carrying the delegates from the National Credit Men's association convention, passed through here last evening enroute from San Francisco to the cast. They are to be entertained in Portland today. day.
