

ROSEBURG NEWS-REVIEW

H. W. Bates L. Wunberly Bert G. Bates ROSEBURG, ORE. CON. JUNE 22, 1921.

THE SCOUTS ON THE JOB.

Great disasters must be especially hard on professional cynics because of the numerous incidents that always occur to illustrate the bright, unselfish side of human nature. The emergency invariably brings forth the heroes to grapple with it. We instinctively look for striking instances of courage and self-sacrifice, and we are not disappointed. Our faith in our kind is renewed and strengthened. The heroism of the wireless operator and the telephone girl is now traditional. The Boy Scouts are also beginning to make a name for themselves in connection with emergencies. Word comes from Pueblo, Col., that its citizens are proposing to present some sort of testimonial to the Scouts for the services rendered during the recent disastrous flood. From the very beginning the boys were on the job. Mobilized hastily, they ran about giving timely warnings. They were tireless in administering relief. They helped to bring members of scattered families together. They salvaged goods and guarded property from the inevitable marauders. It is a Boy Scout rule with no exceptions that a personal reward must never be accepted for helpful services given. They endeavor to "do one good deed daily." But in an emergency such as that at Pueblo they perform countless acts of the kind without thought of recompense. The value of discipline is forcibly illustrated in the Boy Scout organization. The Scout's physical and mental powers are trained to co-ordinate so that the emergency calls forth his highest efficiency. Good citizens should give generous support to Boy Scout organizations. They are assets not only to the members, but to the community. Roseburg should have a just pride in the fine organization maintained in this city and the boys, as well as those who have been instrumental in bringing about such a worthy class of young manhood in perfect harmony, should be commended for their efforts.

"Picnics make you forget," someone has said, and it was a mouthful. The head of the family sometimes imagines from the number of errands he is sent on after reaching the grounds that nearly everything was forgotten.

It won't do you much good to take a "memory course" if you haven't any mind, and if you have you don't need a "memory course."

When things go wrong and you're "all at sea," don't rock the boat if you wouldn't be drowned.

Real summer weather started out with the longest day in the year. Now watch things sizzle.

Girls probably are as modest as ever, but they're bolder about it.

Reedsport Not Delinquent on Bonds

SALEM, June 22.—Press reports to the effect that the city of Reedsport had defaulted in the payment of interest on its bonds due May 1, last, held by the state treasurer, are denounced by State Treasurer Hoff as untrue and unjustified by the fact as only tending toward destruction of the credit of the municipality involved. "To correct any impression that may have been conveyed by recent newspaper statements that the city of Reedsport had defaulted in the payment of interest on its bonds due May 1, 1921, held by the state treasurer, please be advised that this interest has been paid in full, reads a statement prepared by Hoff. "It frequently happens that there are a few days delay in meeting interest payments due on the bonds of the various Oregon municipalities, but this is never considered sufficient reason for publishing to the world that they have defaulted in their obligations thereby discrediting the municipality and depreciating the value of its securities. "It impresses me that fair play to Oregon municipalities entitles them to reasonable press assistance in meeting their obligations rather than attacks that can only result in the destruction of credit."

My kidneys were weak and I often had just headache, I felt dull and listless, and my kidneys acted fearfully. I tried Doan's Kidney Pills and used them as directed. They helped me by relieving the backache and other signs of the trouble. I gladly recommend Doan's to anyone in need of a kidney remedy."

Championship Battles

Short Sketches of Fights for the Heavyweight Title.

Some people think Jess Willard defeated Jack Johnson because he was the better fighter. Others feel sure that Johnson was beaten by his own method of living and by the irresistible slow-up process that time imposes on every man after he passes the crest of physical perfection. And there are those who believe L'H Artha' was not so anxious to beat Willard, anyway.

Whatever the cause, the star of Jack Johnson's ring career flicked out at Havana on April 5, 1915. That day, for the second time in his life, Johnson was knocked out. The first enforced nap had mattered not. It was taken at Galveston in 1901 at the hands of Joe Choynski and Johnson was almost unknown beyond the island where he lived. But when the big negro arose from this second slumber, he was a has been.

Willard was 27 years old, ten years the junior of the champion, and both his weight and reach exceeded those of Johnson. The dusky title holder apparently put forth his best efforts in the early rounds but he could not topple the giant to his movements, fighting on the defensive and with great care, manifestly biding his time.

His time kept him waiting quite a while. Johnson was a little fatter, a little slower, and some of the old wallop was gone from his arms, but his ring generalship, his mastery of tactics had not forsaken him. He was still the most clever boxer of them all.

The early rounds showed him to be the same tenacious scrapper he had always been. "Why don't you come ahead and fight?" he frequently blurted at the cautious Willard.

Later, the signs of leg weariness were apparent in the champion's movements. In the 18th round he suddenly seemed to become exhausted, while the Katusan was still fresh and glowing.

Plainly tired and worn out, Johnson kept up the fight for seven more rounds, leaving his corner at the going for the 26th round, he glanced at his wife with a look of distress and despair that warned those near the ring of his impending fall.

As soon as he met Willard, almost the cowboy's right arm shot out and struck Johnson flush on the chin. He sank down and a new champion was proclaimed.

Election Returns For State Complete

SALEM, Ore., June 20.—Complete official returns received from every county in Oregon, although not yet canvassed by the secretary of state, show that the soldier's bonus amendment to the constitution was approved by the electorate at the recent special election by a majority of 50,353 of the votes cast.

The message authorizing the governor to veto an emergency clause without disturbing the remaining sections of the legislative bill received an affirmative majority of 17,084 votes, while the so-called woman jurors bill was carried by a majority of 617 votes.

The amendment providing for extending the legislative sessions from 40 to 60 days and increasing the compensation of the legislators from $3 to $5 a day lost by a majority of 29,672 votes, while the hygienic marriage measure was lost by a majority of 8,935 votes.

The total vote for and against each amendment and measure, together with the majorities, follow:

Table with 2 columns: Measure and Votes. Includes Legislative Regulation, Soldiers' Bonus Bill, Hygienic Marriage Bill, and Woman Jurors Bill.

Returns received at the office of the secretary of state show that there was a total of 126,866 votes cast not including the aggregate ballots for Polk and Harney counties, which were omitted in the official reports. Compared with the registration at the last general election, less than 50 per cent of the voters went to the polls at the special election, June 7.

FISH COMMISSION TO RECEIVE BIDS.

The fish commission of Oregon will receive bids up and to 5 o'clock on the afternoon of June 25th for the construction of a log crib, rock-filled dam across the Umpqua river at the state fish hatchery, Douglas County, Oregon. Plans, specifications, and proposal blanks may be had at the office of Senator B. L. Eddy, Roseburg, Oregon. Proposals must be filled out on the accepted forms of the fish commission of Oregon.

EXCURSIONISTS COMING.

Plans are being made by the local Chamber of Commerce to meet a caravan of excursionists at Eugene which are expected to arrive here the last of this month.

There are about one hundred in the party, which has started from Omaha, their headquarters. They are making a general survey of Oregon, and its scenic wonder. They enter the state at Bend, coming on south to this city, then to Medford, Klamath Falls, and back through Eastern Oregon.

It Took All the Grit Mason Had To Stick It Out

"Every time I go out on a run now, I feel thankful to Taulac for I'm convinced it kept me on the job," said William W. Mason, 1924 McClellan street, Philadelphia, for the past nine years a motorman for the Rapid Transit company. "I had stomach trouble in a bad form for three years and was going down hill fast. Nothing I ate agreed with me and after every meal I was sure to have heartburn, dizziness and sometimes awful cramps. I got in such a nervous condition my hand shook like a man with the palsy and at nights my sleep was broken and restless. In the mornings I felt so miserable I used to dread the time to come for me to take out my car, and it took every ounce of grit I could muster to stick until quitting time. Finally I got so weak and was so discouraged I was ready to give up.

"This was my condition when I started taking Taulac and I owe all my present good health to this wonderful medicine and to nothing else. The first thing it did for me was to whet my appetite and I soon found I could eat anything without fear of bad after-effects. It's a fact, four bottles made a new man out of me. My nerves are quiet, I sleep like a log and wake up in the morning feeling fine. Then I eat a big breakfast and go to work whistling like I used to long ago. If people knew Taulac like I do the clerks in the drug stores couldn't wrap it up fast enough to supply the demand. It's great."

Ring Battles of Jack Dempsey and Carpentier

After the disappointing eastern trip, Dempsey returned to his home in Salt Lake City and fought one or two inconsequential battles of which no notice was taken. He again was noticed, however, when Jim Flynn, one of the best of second-raters among the heavyweights, knocked him out in one round at Salt Lake City.

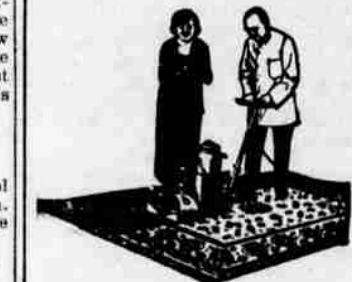

Discouraged, Dempsey went to San Francisco to pick up what matches he could. Here it was that he met Jack Kearns, a good judge of boxers, who saw in Dempsey certain promise. It was under the guidance of Kearns that the future heavyweight champion fought several battles in and around San Francisco before the end of the year. He defeated Willy Meehan, Bob McAllister, Gunboat Smith and Carl Morris, all mediocre but crafty heavyweights, in four-round bouts. Meehan, in another engagement, held Dempsey to a draw at the same distance.

These results were satisfactory to Kearns, who sought only to give his charge the proper ring experience before introducing him to the east. Kearns is one of the shrewdest "showmen" in boxing and he prepared for the invasion of the Middle West and the East with scrupulous care, seeing in this rough and ready Utah product a very satisfactory "meal ticket" for the future.

Carpentier quickly developed in physical strength and weight, as well as in boxing skill, in 1910 and 1911. Descamps kept him busy during 1910, and although he met no opponents of exceptional class, he learned rapidly all the time. Four knockouts, six victories, one by a foul, two draws and two defeats, adorned his record during that year. Two youths, Buck Shine and Young Snowball, were credited with victories over him.

By this time Carpentier was a full-fledged lightweight and, early in 1911, graduated into the welter-weight division. His first important battle in this class was with Frank Loughery, an American, in May, 1911. The contest was fought in Paris as a preliminary to the Dixie Kid-Young "Tommy" Loughery contest.

Carpentier received the decision over his first American opponent in 15 rounds of torrid boxing. The exhibition of Carpentier was one of the best of his early fighting and marked only the first of a long series of hot battles the French athlete was to have with American boxers.
