DRY ANNIVERSARY SEES CRUSADE

Government Announces Force of Detectives Will Start After Bootleggers.

FUNDS ARE AVAILABLE

Booze Courts to Handle Liquor Cases Exclusively Will Be Recommended to Congress By Dry Forces.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(United Press.)—On the occasion of the second birthday of national prohibition today, Federal Prohibition Commissioner Roy Haynes was building up his enforcement army of dry detectives for a new onslaught on bootleggers and enemies of the Volstead law.

Haynes plans to make the third year of national prohibition a much more near bone dry period than the first two, he said. Beginning today, the prohibition unit will be able to draw on a new appropriation of more than $2,000,000 to fill places of detectives and inspectors laid off because cash ran out forty days ago. More than 700 enforcement agents were laid off in May because the 1921 appropriation ran out.

With new funds available, however, Haynes is in a position to engage new and trained workers and throw into each big city a flying squadron of dry sleuths to terrify bootleggers and proprietors of alleged soft drink emporiums who secretly try to deal out better than one-half of one per cent beer.

The prohibition unit will begin the new year with a more nearly perfect system as a second line of defense against bootleggers and illegal sale and underground distribution of contraband booze.

To make the year more nearly pleasing to prohibition enforcement officials, congress soon will be asked by Attorney General Daugherty to set up a system of booze courts, which will transact only business relating to prohibition enforcement. With these courts in operation, retribution in the shape of heavy fines and jail terms will be dealt out with little delay to persons caught running the rum blockade of dry detectives. Delay in bringing violators to justice because ordinary courts of New York and all big cities are clogged with prohibition cases, has been one of the factors making prohibition laws hard to enforce, according to government officials.

And to make Haynes' drive on law breakers more and more effective, several branches of the government are cooperating with him, as well as city, state and county officials in all sections.

Chief Ashworth of the U. S. Customs service has laid down a barrage of customs detectives along the Canadian border to halt international booze smugglers. The Florida keys are being guarded against liquor smuggled from Cuba, not only by the customs service but also by the U. S. Coast guards. And in big cities like New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, St. Louis, Chicago, Denver and San Francisco, police and state officials now are putting their hands to the wheel to move their territory into an atmosphere of aridity.

Considering the situation from these points of view Commissioner Haynes is pleased with the possibility of making the country nearly 100 per cent dry during the next twelve months.

"At any rate," he said today, "we'll make it blamed unpleasant to be a bootlegger."

Haynes and few government officials believe that real 100 per cent pure prohibition can be clamped on the entire country.

Prohibition, they point out, is too new to be completely effective at once. But progress toward complete dryness is being made daily, they say, backed by a rapidly developing public sentiment for absolute and impartial enforcement of the law.

Wartime prohibition, when the country took its first step toward a dry basis, began two years ago today. On that day all sales of liquor for internal consumption was prohibited by law. This measure, however, was intended to be merely temporary and to continue in effect only for a short time after the close of hostilities. But before that period was reached, constitutional prohibition became effective and the prohibition enforcement unit was set up at Washington. Until a short time ago nearly 2,000 federal agents were scattered through the country, watching for violations of the Volstead law. Then came the big lay-off. Now, however, this is to be corrected.

During the first two years of prohibition, the country has consumed more than 40,000,000 gallons of liquor, according to reports on withdrawals from bonded warehouses. Prohibition unit officials say that part of this reached bootleggers and was consumed internally, although the permits under which it was withdrawn were intended to prevent the use of liquor except for non-beverage purposes.

More than 100,000 persons have been arrested in the campaign to enforce the law. It is estimated here. The exact number of arrests is not known since tabulations in the possession of the Prohibition unit are not yet completed.

Individual Districts Pay For Auditing

Upon application of A. J. Moore, district attorney of Deschutes county, in which he asked the attorney general to interpret the law passed by the last legislature requiring that school districts have their books gone over by expert accountants, as to who should pay the cost, whether it should be taken out of the general school fund or each district should pay it, he decided that it should be charged against each district.

The attorney general suggests that as a matter of expediency the county superintendent pay the expense out of the general school fund of the county; then, when making apportionment of school funds for the different districts, that he take as much of the funds of each district as is their proportionate share of the total expense. This is probably what will be done.

Appointment of accountants will be in the hands of the boundary board, which is composed of the county superintendent and the county court.

Books are required to be sent in to the district boundary board. They can be sent to the county superintendent of schools, who is secretary of the board.

Change Made In Chevrolet Agency

Glenn H. Taylor, proprietor of the Service garage, has taken the agency for the Chevrolet Motor car, the agency having formerly been held by the Motor Shop garage. Mr. Taylor was formerly the Chevrolet distributor for Douglas county, but was forced to give up the agency in order to enter the army service. The actual transfer will be made about July 11, at which time he will take over all cars and accessories held by the existing agency, and he will then be in a position, he states to make deliveries. He will handle the exclusive Chevrolet and Hupmobile sales and service agency in this county.
