YOUNG WORKERS NEED HEALTH PROTECTION

Children who go to work between 14 and 18 years of age need special protection if they are to reach manhood and womanhood with good health and well-developed bodies. The United States department of labor through the children's bureau has just issued a report called "Physical Standards for Working Children" in which a committee of eleven physicians appointed by the children's bureau explain how the health of children at work may be protected.

ADVERTISING REDUCES PRICES.

Persons who have not given the subject of advertising serious thought may be inclined to believe that standard products could be sold cheaper if the manufacturers did not spend too much money in advertising them. The contrary is the truth.

No "ladies' man" will ever ask for a "jury with whiskers," as did the Cleveland, Ohio, woman yesterday when she was about to be placed on trial for killing her wealthy husband.

Judging from the deposits in the various banks of this city, there are a great number of people left in the county and city who believe in the old adage, "a dollar saved is a dollar earned," which is a mighty good slogan—even during vacation time.

"Let the women do the work" applies very forcibly to the building of a bridge across the Umpqua. But the important question to be considered is whether or not the "work" being done at this time will accomplish any results.

If everybody spent as much time finding reasons for working as he does finding excuses for not working, all of us could loaf about half the time and accomplish as much as now is done.

A good way to spend a warm summer evening is to hike to the courthouse square and listen to the band concert. Try it once. It might become a habit.

This is the season of the year when "bock beer" used to make its debut. But seasons have changed and ice water answers the purpose very nicely.

Douglas county natives who have been wishing for summer weather can now trot out in the open for a burnin'.

A good way to make a fool out of a man is to take his buying power away from him.

DOG WATCHES ARE NOT PERIODS OF TIME consumed in watching dogs, but they are half watches of two hours each from 4 to 6 and 6 to 8 p. m.

Drought is not a drink of water, but the depth of water in which a vessel is required to float.

Duck is not a thing that swims and quacks, but a tight canvas used for small sails.

Eye is not an organ of sight; it is a circular part of a shroud or stay that is looped over a mast.—Nation's Business.

A tight-fisted old gentleman, who recently recovered from a severe attack of fever, called up his physician on the phone and made complaint with reference to the total of the bill rendered by him on this occasion.

"See here!" shouted the old gentleman, "you have me charged for five weeks' calls. I will pay for four weeks only."

"But, my dear sir," expostulated the doctor, "I visited you each day for five weeks."

"Perhaps you did. I don't know," retorted the tight one, "but for one week I was delicious, and I didn't see you come in."

"The Eternal Feminine. It is really time you took an interest in serious things," said the husband. "You think of nothing but clothes. Try to read a little history. I've brought you a story about William Tell and the Swiss, and how Gessler put up the hat for them to salute, and—"

"How was it trimmed?" asked the eternal feminine.

STATESMAN KNEW ALL RIGHT

Didn't Need Lawyer to Tell Him That the Motto of the State Was in Latin.

A Chicago lawyer, a man of great ability and wide learning, visited, during a trip to the Southwest, the capital of one state, where he was given a dinner at the expense of the state.

The feast was an abundant one, and all the great men from miles around were invited to it, to honor the great lawyer. He had the governor on one side of him at the table and the lieutenant governor on the other side. As the party sat down the menu cards had already been laid beside their plates. These cards were very fine. They cost $25 each, and they bore at their heads the state coat of arms, upon which was engraved a motto in Latin.

As the lawyer sat down he took up this card and, looking at the motto, said to the man at his left, "Very good, indeed, and very appropriate."

"What's good?" asked the lieutenant governor.

"I refer to these words," said the lawyer, as he pointed to the motto.

"Yes," replied the lieutenant governor, with a knowing look, "them words is Latin."

WATCHED EFFECTS OF STORM

How Great Naturalist Took Observations During Severe Weather in the Shasta Country.

Day after day the storm continued, piling snow on snow in wearless abundance. There were short periods of quiet, when the sun would seem to look eagerly down through the rents in the clouds, as if to know how the work was advancing. During these calm intervals I replenished my fire-sometimes without leaving the nest, for fire and woodpile were so near this could easily be done—or bustled myself with my notebook, watching the gestures of the trees in taking the snow, examining separate crystals under a lens, and learning the methods of their deposition as an enduring fountain for the streams. Several times when the storm ceased for a few minutes, a Douglas squirrel came frisking from the foot of a clump of dwarf pines, moving in sudden interrupted spurts over the glossy snow; then without any apparent guidance he would dig rapidly into the drift where he buried some grains of barley that the horses had left. The Douglas does not strictly belong to these upper woods, and I was surprised to find him out in such weather.

Est-Like Water Dog.

The hellbender is a large, ugly looking but harmless salamander, found in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and southward. The hellbender is known as an alligator and water dog. Two species inhabit the central parts of the United States, of which the more common and widespread is the Necturus maculatus. It reaches the length of one foot to twenty inches, is smooth, slimy and brown blotched, with the tufted gills dark red. These creatures remain mostly among weeds or rocks at the bottom of the water during the daytime, but at night, they move about, often with quick eel-like motions, in search of crawfish, worms, insects, frogs and it readily takes the bait of the fisherman's hook. It is tenacious of life and can live for hours out of water. They spawn during the months of April and May. The spawn much resembles that of frogs, but is lighter in color.

Land Words at Sea.

Cat is not an animal; it is a tackle used to hoist the anchor. Chains are not chains, but plates of iron bolted through a ship's side, to which the rigging supporting the masts is fastened.

Dog watches are not periods of time consumed in watching dogs, but they are half watches of two hours each from 4 to 6 and 6 to 8 p. m.

Drought is not a drink of water, but the depth of water in which a vessel is required to float.
