ROSEBURG, OREGON, JULY 16, 1921.

A WITTY CONGRESSMAN.

In the Congressional Directory there is an interesting study of human nature concealed. "Concealed" because nobody ever reads the Congressional Directory unless a senator or representative dies and a sketch of his life is required quickly for obituary purposes.

"Frank Park, Democrat, Sylvester"—that is all there is about him. That could be expanded into probably 30 or 40 times the number of words, but the "soul of wit" has concentrated itself in that biographical sketch. It is witty. The joke is not on Congressman Park; rather it is a sly, subtle, gentle jab at some other brethren who are immolated in cold type in the pages of that directory.

The new, very newest, members, by contrast, have from 300 to 500 words telling who they are and what they have been and where they were born and all about them. The gentleman from the Second of Georgia sets down his life in his name and two more words—and the name has no middle initial. It is the shortest sketch in the whole list of senators and congressmen of all the states.

And the great point in this is: The senators and representatives themselves write these sketches for the directory.

Individual suspense is aggravating, but when the entire community "gets off its feet"—as it has during the period following the recent murder mystery—there is no hope for any relief until the facts are laid bare, and the sooner something "drops" to clear up the atmosphere the sooner the nervous suspense will come to an end. People are literally exhausted. The whole affair is shrouded in the deepest mystery. The tragedy is being discussed in every city in the United States of any importance, and thousands of people who never before heard of Roseburg are now familiar with its location and the important details connected with the crime. Officers of the state are alert to gather information that would in any way clear up the mystery, while every possible clue has been systematically ferreted out by local officers and nothing has been left undone by them that would tend to unravel one of the deepest and most profound murder mysteries ever recorded in this section of the state.

A center of gravitation was a big advantage the hammock had over the porch swing.

The trouble, it seems, is that too many persons are raising something that is not edible.

The poison ivy—sometimes called the picnic—season is here again.

Roseburg Wins From Melrose

By C. H. Hilton.

The game of ball played here Saturday afternoon between Melrose and a picked nine from Roseburg, was a walk-away for Roseburg. Roseburg boys did some very good hitting and the Melrose boys did some rather poor playing. They pulled off two or three good headed plays which made the game easy for the home team. The Melrose boys were short two men when the game began, so they borrowed Coderstrom to pitch for them, and also borrowed Hall to play left field. Hall put up a fine fielding game for them, and was a tower of strength in left field. The feature of the game was a star, one-handed running catch by Bush. A ball knocked just over third and ticked for the gate, was speared by Bush and held on to, making one of "Budy" Ritzman pitched for Roseburg, and he had the Melrose boys at his mercy, except when he elected to just toss them over some dew-drops. All the scores the visitors made were by the dew drop tosses that Ritzman threw up to them. When he elected to pitch as he can, there was nothing doing. Ritzman shut the visitors out for four innings then gave them a chance. The home boys were shut out the first three innings, and it began to look as if there would be a real ball game, and a pitcher's battle. But the boys began to hit Cedar and coupled with errors, the game was soon stowed away. The regular Twilight League games will be resumed tonight when the Baptists and Southern Pacific play.

The score of Saturday's game:
Roseburg 12 3 4 0 7 8 9 R H E
Melrose 0 0 0 3 0 0 1 4 12 12 2

Record "Extra" Published Sunday

The News-Review yesterday issued the first news edition ever put out in Roseburg on Sunday. Because of the intense interest in the murder mystery, the News force remained on the job yesterday and with new developments arising an extra edition was issued at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The fact that an "extra" had been put on the press was rapidly circulated over the city and by the time the papers were ready for distribution many hundred people had gathered to obtain the latest news. The papers were sold directly over the counter and by "newsies" and were seized eagerly. The supply of papers was soon exhausted and it became necessary before six o'clock to issue a second edition. The "extra" had the largest sale of any special edition ever published in the city.

FOR SALE—Cheney Phonograph. New, all record machine, 24 selections free. Easy monthly payments. Phone 412. R. F. Callahan, Umpqua Hotel. Will call at your house and give confidential terms. Phonographs traded for pianos.

RIDDLE BANKER LAUDS ASSOCIATION

Finds Oregon Growers Cooperative Association Doing Excellent Work

EXAMINATION IS MADE

Examined Carefully Into Books and Records Which Were Thrown Open By Officials and Found Affairs in Fine Shape.

Cashier D. S. Beals of the Riddle State Bank, who arrived home from a business trip of several days at Salem, last Sunday, states that he spent most of the day Saturday in the offices of the Oregon Growers Cooperative association, where he went into the affairs of the association as far as possible with the limited time available, says the Riddle Tribune.

"The sale of prunes is progressing as fast as could be expected and at quite satisfactory prices," stated Mr. Beals.

"Although mistakes have been made in the early management and expenses have been excessive, still these expenses will not exceed to any material extent the five per cent allowed for such purposes and will be comparatively light this year. Difficulties encountered in handling the 1920 prune crop have been tremendous—the unsettled market conditions and other unforeseen difficulties making the burden a heavy one.

"The pool is now drawing to a close, however, and a satisfactory settlement is in sight. The officers and employees of the association are working almost day and night to clean up the pools and make the apportionment, realizing the vital importance this matter is to the grower and the country in general. At this particular time I believe it behooves the grower to exercise more patience in that it will be vastly to his advantage. I fully realize that it is difficult to be patient when money is so badly needed, but there are growers out of the Association in an extremely worse predicament. I believe it is quite well understood that money was borrowed at the time the advance was made and that considerable money was needed to pack and handle these prunes. Of course this borrowed money was first to be paid as the prunes were sold, and this debt is now entirely cleaned up and the expense of packing, insurance, etc., is also paid, so that the prunes already sold and not collected for and those to be sold will be practically clear to the grower and this is of considerable amount and should net the growers a good price on the large sizes of which this section had considerable.

"I found the organization well equipped to handle the immense business of the association and all business well under way to a successful conclusion of the pools and believe it would be rank folly to in any way hamper the management, especially by members who might be disposed to do on account of delayed payments.

"I have particular faith in the efficient management of Mr. R. C. Paulus, who is virtually head of the organization and without doubt both Mr. Lewis and Mr. Staley are valuable men in the organization. All are hard workers and are giving the growers their best ability. These officers conversed freely with me, answered freely and cheerfully all questions asked, gave me free access to the books and records, all of which I found in splendid condition with all the financial affairs of the organization being clearly visible.

"There is no question but that the grower is still to receive a very satisfactory settlement for the 1920 prunes and this is coming before the next harvest, so I am advised, and which I have reason to believe will most certainly take place.

"The association is doing splendid

PORTLAND WOMAN SAYS SHE COULDN'T EVEN MOVE WITHOUT BEING ASSISTED

"I am now going on sixty-five years of age and for a long time I was hardly able to walk; but by the time I finished my second bottle of Tanlac I was out in my garden hoeing," said Mrs. Jennie Root, 1409 Powers St., Portland, Oregon.

"For years I suffered terribly with rheumatism and would often be down in bed for days at a time. In the last five years there was never a time that I didn't feel those rheumatic pains all through my body. About two months ago, however, I got very much worse, and my arms and legs were so bad that I was almost helpless and couldn't even hold a pen to sign my name. I had no appetite at all, was so weak I couldn't do any housework, and even to walk a few steps would tire me out completely. I couldn't even sleep, and for a week before I got Tanlac I was so bad off I couldn't move at all without help.

"My son got me to try Tanlac and before I had taken one bottle I hardly felt like the same person and now I feel just fine. Why, I even walked up four flights of stairs in an office building where the elevator was out of order not long ago and stood it fine. The fact is what Tanlac has done for me seems almost a miracle. I have gained fourteen pounds in weight and all my strength has come back to me and those aches and pains have disappeared. I will praise Tanlac as long as I live."

Tanlac is sold in Roseburg by the W. F. Chapman Pharmacy.

work, now with other fruit crops, and virtually getting the proper stride to quickly and profitably handle all crops of their members and I do not expect the delay this year that we had with the 1920 crop. Ordinarily with market conditions settled and normal it should not take more than from 60 to 90 days to handle the prune crop and get the money in the hands of the grower.

"I have facts and figures at my disposal that justify my belief that the association has in reality made splendid progress when the many adverse conditions are taken into consideration. Furthermore it is my belief that the rank and file of the association members should get closer together in their own enterprise and educate themselves that it is their own organization of which they are a part, and not an outside concern. Aside from the fact that I believe the grower will yet realize more out of the prune pool than he has taken otherwise, there is to be taken into account the future benefits of such an organization which are vast. It simply means the placing of the prune industry and other fruits on a basis that will actually increase the value of the orchards which will be done by advertising and a well-established market for the splendid Oregon product and this could never be accomplished in the manner our prunes and other fruits have been handled in the past, that is under a foreign brand.

"Both as a banker and a grower I too have been impatient over the delayed prune pool payment. However being a member under a strong contract obviates the argument as to the continuance of such membership. Furthermore advice as to whether or not such membership should be continued is also obvious and it therefore becomes safe to say in all respects that better judgment would dictate that any idea of members to free themselves from the contract would be useless and unavailing as well as a poor business move."
