

Is this your car on Sunday?

A Sunday morning—crisp, sunshiny weather—roads hard and smooth. What a day for motoring!

Your car is "dead" in the garage. It may be carbon-clogged cylinders and valves—burned-out bearings—any one of a multitude of troubles.

You are pretty safe in blaming your oil. Seventy-five per cent of engine troubles are caused by oils poor in quality or wrong in type.

Sunoco Motor Oil insures freedom from carbon—clean, compression-tight cylinders—smooth, noiseless bearings.

We will tell you which of the six Sunoco types fits your engine.

THE MIDNIGHT SHOW.

The curtain rose on the last act of the play and, as Bab had predicted, the man had chosen his wife and respectability. This gave him a chance to do some splendid emotional acting in a scene with his discarded light-of-love.

Every one unwittingly drew a sigh of relief when the curtain went down and by silent consent Judge Turner was allowed to sum up the entire case in the words "I suppose that for the sake of drama the stories of unusual circumstances and unique personalities must be told, but I confess I am not wholly in sympathy with the characters in this play. The man was a cad, the wife a fool, and the other woman more or less of a silly little prig who for the sake of her vanity accepted the attentions of another woman's husband."

"Would any one care for something to eat," cross-fired Mr. Henderson.

"I have already engaged two tables at the Midnight Show," said Mr. Early.

"Good heavens! This is some party," whispered Duane.

Judge Turner accompanied Duane and Bab in the taxi. I got in beside Mr. Henderson in his roadster and the Earlys took their own car.

"It is rather astonishing how hard we try to amuse ourselves," said Mr. Henderson. "Anyone of these three entertainments would have been quite enough for one evening. We might have had three pleasant evenings. If we had known that we had plenty of time for our dinner, I am sure that each one of us would have been more entertaining. The last two hours have not been particularly enjoyable to me because I do not believe that one should pick out a play of the kind we have just seen and expect it to amuse a mixed gathering of whose personalities and tastes one is not conversant. There is no one in this party that would not rather go home now."

We are all tired and yet we are all going over to this show, where we will eat again notwithstanding the protests of our already over-filled stomachs and pretend to be interested and amused while we are being bored to death."

"Well, Mr. Henderson, if you feel that way about it, perhaps you had better leave me at the theater and then drive out to your home," I said with a smile.

"Don't you know, dear lady, that I have one compensation for all of this and that is that I am more or less paired off with you for the evening. I am going to see that you are seated next to me at the table and I shall expect you to talk to me to the exclusion of every one else."

"Don't you think that as long as Mr. Early has been so nice to us that it would be no more than fair for me to give him a little of the attention you value so highly?"

"What is the use of wasting it on Early? He is married, you know."

"I had not danced with such enjoyment since my marriage except with Larry Wheaton and some way Mr. Henderson danced even better than Larry because Larry at times was erratic and attempted steps that he could not accomplish, while Mr. Henderson seemed perfection. He had a lightness that was youthful and a suave dignity that carried me along as though I were on wings. I knew we looked well together and I knew he was proud of me. For the first time that evening I was happy."

"Rescuer," I smiled. "I shall be ever grateful."

COPIED OLD ENGLISH BARREL

Pennsylvania Man Made First Standard Size Receptacle for the Transportation of Oil.

When crude oil was discovered in Pennsylvania in 1859, barrels commonly used for wine, beer, whisky, cider and other liquors were utilized by oil men as containers for their product. Anything that resembled a barrel was used and sizes differed so radically that there were many opportunities for fraud.

As an instance, it was discovered that frequently the staves were made extra thick, with the result that the content of the barrel was less than represented, and purchasers often found that they did not get as much crude oil as they were paying for.

In 1864-65 the first standard-size barrel was made by Samuel Van Syckle, at Miller Farm, near Titusville, Pa. It was of 42 gallons capacity, the size fixed in 1901 in England for the herring barrel during the reign of Edward IV.

Van Syckle specified the size of the staves to be used and made an honest 42-gallon barrel. Almost immediately he had practically a monopoly of the business and the odd-size barrels gradually disappeared.

The present system of gauging oil tanks was started in 1895, when F. E. Hammond of Miller Farm, Pa., was asked if he could figure the amount of oil contained in each vertical foot of certain tanks. In a few days Hammond prepared a table of one of these tanks, showing the amount of oil it would hold per inch from bottom to top, based on a measurement of 42 gallons to the barrel. Hammond's table came into general use, and this method of measuring tanks never has changed.—Oil News.

SOME MEASURE OF SUCCESS

Collector Got His Half of Debt, but Creditor is Wondering Where He Comes In.

A Vancouver man tells of a sea captain who, ashore, makes his home in that city, and who had loaned a sum of money to a neighbor. The latter, after the loan was a year or two old, made no effort to pay it.

Now, the captain began to look upon the debt as a bad one, indeed. On one occasion, however, upon his return from a voyage, he heard of a debt collector noted for his ability to extract money from such delinquents. Accordingly, the captain called upon this collector and advised of the circumstances.

"It," said the skipper, "you can collect that debt, I'll give you half of it."

The collector promised that the thing would be done. The captain sailed away on another voyage, and, on his return, sought out the collector again. "Any success with that bill?" he asked.

"Well," said the collector, "I haven't collected the whole of it; but I did collect my half. He hasn't paid me a cent since. I keep after him, but it's just as you said when you gave me the bill—he hasn't any conscience about it."

Modeling in Rags.

It was the fashion of a little time ago to think scorn of the woolwork screens, the paper flowers, or the wax figures made by the women of the past, but now they are eagerly sought and added to collections of articles illustrating home life.

History repeats itself, and to this busy athletic age has come a wave of the old finger-work fashion. Lately it was pictures made with feathers, now it is little figures made from rags.

These last were the idea of Mme. Wolcott, nee Princess Troubetzkoy, formerly of the Russian Imperial court, when at Petrograd, where the little figures were sold for the benefit of Russian soldiers. Since Mme. Wolcott has been in England she has modeled little statuettes of well-known people, all in characteristic attitude and life-like appearance. Odd pieces of rag have been manipulated to make these charming little figures, which vie with the paper modeling and the wax groups of the past.—Christian Science Monitor.

Breaking a Land-Clearing Record.

A total of 18,000 acres of land in Marinette county, Wisconsin, were cleared during the season of 1920. This is a record, and the increase will represent at least $1,000,000 a year in crops. The closing of the task was marked by a great blast of an acre of stumps near Wausaukee. At this point 158 sticks of dynamite were set off simultaneously by an electric impulse was transmitted by a presiding official who closed a switch. A land clearing school and 57 educational meetings were part of the campaign that made their efforts so successful, and explosives to the extent of 14 carloads were used in the undertaking.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

White Gold as Platinum.

It is an easy matter for the metal-burglar to make an alloy with gold as a basis that has all the appearance of platinum and is London, recently, a great many persons have been "taken in" by the composition, paying platinum prices for jewelry afterwards found to be an inferior material.

For Japanese Women.

An important advance toward the emancipation of Japanese womanhood was made recently when the house of representatives in Tokyo adopted a bill granting women the right to attend political meetings.

Man Shoulders Not Level.

To the majority of persons the statement that their shoulders are not of the same height will come as a surprise, but tailors know that almost invariably the left shoulder is higher than the right.

If a baby's shoulders are measured it will be found that they are exactly even. That they do not remain so is blamed upon parents, who as a rule tend their young and growing children by the left hand.

This is a natural manner of leading the child, and it shields it from bumps of persons met in their walks, but the muscles and bones are thus continually raised and in the end drawn permanently out of position, although the change is so slight that it is not noticeable unless accurate measurements are taken.

Nails.

A machine for making nails was patented on May 18, 1824. To America belongs the distinction of being the first to make cut nails by machinery. With the advent of machine-cut nails the household industry of nail-making rapidly declined. The hand-made nail was pinched in a vise, with a portion projecting; a few blows with a hammer flattened one end into a head, which was beaten into a counter sunk in the vise, in this manner regulating its size and shape. Nails were also made by forging on an anvil.

Laboring Under Difficulties.

"There must be something wrong with the clarinet player in this orchestra. Every now and then he blows a sour note."

"He's married to the ingenue. Every time she kisses anybody on the stage he forgets his music."
