ROSEBURG, OREGON, AUGUST 9, 1921.

SWALLOWED HOOK, LINE AND BAIT.

George W. Riddle, a member of the Taxpayers' League committee on county expenditures, takes exception to an editorial printed under the caption, "Be Your Own Boss," appearing in Friday's issue of the News-Review. A communication from the gentleman is published in another column of today's paper.

While the editorial was in no way personal, Mr. Riddle has swallowed the "hook, line and bait," and practically admits that the article fits him in every particular, which causes us to arise and remark, "If the shoe fits, pull it on." This point being an acknowledged fact, there is but little use for further explanation. We stand just where we did when the aforesaid article was penned. We are not going to "backpeddle" one iota.

Mr. Riddle's acknowledgement that he is a "weak sister" when it comes to directing his superiors is very appropriate at this time and his "confession" is most soothing to the public mind. This paper has the greatest respect for the Taxpayers' League and is sincere in its belief that the organization is working toward wholesome accomplishments and the good of all concerned. But it also believes just as sincerely that the efforts of Mr. Riddle will never redound with much benefit, but on the contrary will accomplish no real benefit in the end.

If county officials are to have the finger of suspicion pointed at them, brought into disrepute, and their standing as public servants of the people jeopardized, let this be done by those persons equal, if not superior, to them in every particular. No private or public business can be made to operate successfully by "pen-acking" methods, and we opine that the county court of this county is just about big enough and strong enough to act on its own initiative when it comes to handling the county's business in a business-like manner. If they are not, it is now up to Mr. Riddle to make the discovery and display his superior intellect.

His reference made to prices charged for printed matter by this paper is on a par with the distinguished gentleman's judgment along other lines. This paper sells its product to the county at exactly the same price charged private individuals—no more, no less. It is not our policy to "barnstorm" any person with whom we trade out of a legitimate profit. Nor does this paper wish to enter into any deal with any person or persons unless they are reaping the reward of their efforts—meaning a fair profit over and above the actual cost of production.

If the "linking" policies put into operation by Mr. Riddle in reference to county affairs prove of any value, legitimate business methods might just as well be cast to the winds, for his is a policy devised to take away every semblance of respect and responsibility from the public office holder and put these individuals in a category where the respect of the general public is dissipated.

Today is "White Ribbon Day" in Roseburg. The W. C. T. U. county convention is holding a decidedly interesting session and the large attendance shows there is no lack of interest in this most worthy organization, comprised of faithful workers who, after long years of service, are now beginning to reap the benefits of their efforts. It can be truthfully said the cause has wrought wonderful changes in this old world. But the continued struggle has brought its reward. A happy realization brought about by the faithfulness of those who have the best interests of the nation at heart.

Some men are very prone when given a duty to perform to attempt to usurp entire authority and override the judgment of those better qualified to act in matters pertaining to the public welfare.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

ASSUMES THE RESPONSIBILITY.

Riddle, Ore., Aug. 8, 1921.

To the Editor of News-Review: In an editorial in your issue of Friday last, you attempted to give some one, (names not mentioned) what you considered a roast, with implied threats to the County Court. Judging from your editorial, "Be your own boss," something must have "got under your skin," or have you had a "Brain storm." Has the County Court been taking advice from some person or persons that you characterize as "Witfully ignorant of the things which they endeavor to correct." Now not admitting ignorance, especially "Witful ignorance" I am willing to admit that I am one of the parties that you refer to, and please allow me to explain to your readers my part in the awful things that has caused you so much heat and even profanity.

We have in Douglas County, a Taxpayers League composed of several hundred taxpayers, organized with a board of directors that meets once a month. This board has president a secretary and committees on County expenditures, Mr. S. D. Evans and myself were appointed on that committee and on entering upon our duties we called upon the county court and explained our business. The court received us courteously and expressed a willingness to hear any suggestions that we were pleased to make. In our examination of bills allowed each month we (the committee) concluded that the county was paying too much for supplies. Especially for printed blanks and records for the various offices. I went before the County Court, and suggested that business methods be applied, in the purchase of supplies. The County Court acted upon my suggestion they made an order that all supplies should be purchased upon requisition, signed by the county judge or county clerk. They instructed Miss Haldeman, a clerk, to communicate with all firms furnishing office supplies and obtain prices, and allow me to say right here that Miss Haldeman has been very efficient in this work. The result of the adoption of business methods in purchasing supplies are that the county is obtaining supplies at about thirty per cent less than formally and you are furnishing blanks at less than formally. Hence these "tears" but cheer up the "Worst is yet to come." In your editorial you say that it "Takes a regular man to ride a whale" well are you a whale I had never thought of riding any body my work in the interest of the tax payers has been entirely impersonal and if your interest intervened that was an incident and no amount of bluster sarcasm or abuse will deter me in the least from reporting your over charges or that of any body else while I am acting for the tax payers in investigating county expenses. GEO. W. RIDDLE.

How Does Other 85 Per Cent Live? LAKE JUNALUSKA, N. C., Aug. 9.—The question no longer is how does the other half of the world live—it is how does the other 85 per cent live? The Rev. James Myers of the Presbyterian church today told the Laymen's conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, in session here. Dr. Myers is executive secretary of the board of operatives at the Dutchess bleachery, Wappingers Falls, N. Y. He spoke of "Religion in Industry."

"The mission of religion to the present disturbed social order is not so much a message to the poor to respect the sacredness of the property rights of the rich although it is that also, as it is a message to the rich in the name and spirit of Jesus Christ to bring about a more brotherly distribution of wealth, health, joy and freedom in the world," the Rev. Mr. Myers said. "This cannot be done by charity, nor can it be done by violence. The inequalities of the present economic order can be eliminated only by a more brotherly distribution of the profits of industry at the source of production."

MUST HAVE ADAPTIVE TASTE

Traveler Declares Globe Trotter Can Not Be Over Nice in Choice of Food.

of the first things a young man who wants to see the world should learn is how to eat. Otis Warren Barrett says so, and if anyone knows he does. He has been wandering into queer parts of the world for the government for years past and he is never sick, says the Kansas City Star. "Train the palate," says Mr. Barrett. "I can live on palm oil chop in Liberia or raw fish in Japan and never have a qualm. I may not prefer monkey boiled in grease and eaten with the bare hand, but I can eat monkey with the best of monkey eaters. The man who is particular about his chop had best stay at home."

Mr. Barrett has made a success of wandering. He is one of the greatest of our agricultural experts. His latest exploit is to teach the natives of the palm countries how to make white sugar out of palm sap—which they never knew before—by which process four hundred and fifty thousand tons of the finest sugar imaginable has been added to the sugar total of the world. In all his years of wandering in swamp and jungle he has never been seriously ill, and he attributes this in part to the fact that he can live at the local table without repining. "Cassava paste isn't very good," said Mr. Barrett, reminiscingly. "It doesn't taste like anything, and it is so sticky that if a man were to attempt to chew it his jaws might be clamped together or perhaps his teeth might be pulled out. One just makes a little ball of it, rolls it in gravy as a lubricant, and lets it slip down."

English Labor Leader Cared Little for That "Divinity That Doth Hedge a King." Kings have no longer any ruling power in a first-class nation. A little incident in which the king of England figured last year may be told in connection with the new spirit of affairs. The late Will Crooks, a labor member of parliament, a cockney with a big black beard and devoid of alitches, a sincere and much loved man, as someone from highbrow socialists as from hidebound conservatives, was among the fashionable crowd of guests at the royal garden party.

The king got him into conversation. Will Crooks talked as freely to his monarch as he would to a fellow in the East end of London. Both men were soon deep in the troubled times which were upon England. The king plainly showed his anxiety about the future. Will Crooks, who was the most sympathetic soul in the world, tried to reassure the king as they shook hands in good-bye: "Now, look here old chap; don't you go worrying about things; everything is going to turn out all right, old fellow."

There is cause for a little speculation in what must have been the mental attitude of the nobles and dignitaries clustered round as they observed the familiarity. But what the king thought of it is best expressed by the fact that before the next garden party he and the queen together sent a special letter to Will Crooks and his wife, saying how much they wanted them to be present—Frank Dillman in the Outlook.

Poet's Tie Shop "Ad." A poet in whose breast the cares of a collar and tie shop in Asakusa cannot still the Parmestian urge has written the following sign and placed it over his master's shop to cheer the passerby: "Those who belong to our company are always endeavoring to express their delicate mood and individuality through the goods they are dealing in, from the point of view of making all existence best and most beautiful first of all and then let themselves upward from earth to paradise that is to say the eternal peace—the ideal—under the elapse of time."

What it means would be difficult to say. While it draws attention to the admirable qualities of the collars and ties and garters, it also seems to indicate a little weariness with Asakusa considered as a stepping stone towards "the eternal peace under the elapse of time."—Japanese Advertiser.

New England True to Tradition. A certain Red Cross public health nurse in New Hampshire, reports that the interest in "Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick" in her county is unprecedented. This nurse travels over a considerable area, the county being a large one, including eight towns. It is the consensus of opinion at the New England division headquarters in this county, at least, the feature of the American Red Cross is assured because of the great service performed through these classes. New England still lives up to her tradition of recognizing and sponsoring the best that education can give.—Red Cross Magazine.

Financial Diagnosis. "Did the doctor check what you had?" "He seemed to have a pretty accurate idea. He asked for $10 and I had $11."—Boston Transcript.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN AND OTHERS

BY MRS. ELLSBURY

A Daily Column of Questions and Answers Conducted by a Woman Who Knows. Address your Letters to Mrs. Ellsbury, Care Roseburg News-Review.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I have a set of old bedroom furniture with very good lines. It is all black and I have been wondering if there was something I could do to it to make it look more modern. Would enamel be practical? It is old, and my daughter, in whose room it is used, objects to it very much. MRS. J. C. R. ROSEBURG.

Aus. Indeed enamel is practical. If you do not want to do the work yourself have a painter enamel the whole set for you. You will then have a set of furniture of which any daughter would be proud, and at very little cost. If the bureau is out of date have a carpenter fit it for you. Enamel an old dining room chair and rocker and use plenty of pink flowered cretonne in the rooms and they will be very beautiful.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: Is it good taste to wear lace stockings and if so when should they be worn? MARY WILBUR.

Aus. If the stockings are very elaborate with inserts of openwork lace in them, they should only be worn for evening or with elaborate afternoon gowns. If there are merely drop thread or of the many patterns of fancy hose worn nowadays, they are appropriate with about every costume.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: A man I was once engaged to for three years has come back after being away for several years. He has asked to call. Should I let him and how should I act? EVA GLENDALE.

Aus. If you are still good friends there is no reason why he should not call. Treat him as you would any old friend, and do not allude to the fact that you were once engaged. This will save the situation from embarrassment.

INCOME TAX LARGE. ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 9.—Increase in income tax receipts from New Mexico of more than 800 per cent, is shown in recent figures made public by B. C. Hernandez, United States Internal Revenue collector for the state. In 1916 the income tax payers paid $33,955 and in 1919 they paid $774,470. The number of tax payers increased from 813 to 10,757 in the same period. The 1920-21 figures will surpass those for 1919, according to Robert L. Thornton, chief of the income tax division of the internal revenue office here.
