Dillard Growers Are Contented

through this district, one can see orchards on every side. Pickers are this week harvesting the crop.

Gardeners Are Successful—Many local people this season, who have purchased watermelons, canteloupes, tomatoes, potatoes, etc., from the gardens in the Dillard district have no doubt wondered if the gardeners realize much profit from their labors. Short talks with several of the gardeners convinced the writer that the gardens have been a huge success this season. The Royer brothers leased some land along the highway and after clearing away a great deal of the brush, they planted some watermelons, canteloupes, tomatoes and other varieties of garden truck. They have about five acres of watermelons and about 20 acres of canteloupes and tomatoes. They have been kept extremely busy this season supplying the demand.

Others who have gardens in this section are the Herscher brothers, George Lawrence, D. Coon, Ray Lawrence, Stanford Buell, Stace Lawrence, E. A. Hubbard, T. B. Evans and son, C. E. Meyer, and Grover Royer.

T. B. Evans and son, who own considerable acreage of garden land in the Dillard section, have several large stands along the highway where they retail their produce. The Royer brothers also have a large stand and they do a wonderful business in that line. T. B. Evans and son sold about $6000 worth of garden truck this season from their land, consisting of twelve acres. They have seven acres of tomatoes and they were successful in harvesting 1000 boxes to the acre. They received 60 cents per box for this crop. They raised about twelve tons of tomatoes to the acre. They raised about 25 tons of watermelons on their five acres and received $25 per acre for the fruit. On their twelve acres of muskmelons they picked 2500 crates and received $150 per acre. Mr. Evans states that the produce is marketed in a radius of from one to forty miles. A great deal of the crop has also been sold to the tourists. They ship two tons of melons per day to the coast. These shipments go by parcel post.

Eight hundred acres of the best land in Oregon is located in this section. The soil is extremely rich and perfectly suited for vegetable raising. The climate in this little neck is equable and well adapted to gardening. The country from Carnes to Dole is regarded as the sunny district.

Mr. Evans raises about 200 sacks of potatoes to the acre an dth season received $1 per sack. Two hundred sacks of potatoes to the acre is considered a fine crop elsewhere, but the growers here think nothing of securing 200 sacks. Mr. Evans and son have more business than they can handle.

The Rice brothers, who are among the pioneer melon growers in Dillard, have twenty acres of melons and tomatoes this season. They market their crop locally and their business has also exceeded all expectation. Their vines were loaded with melons this year and their little stand at the side of the highway did a land-office business.

In all, the Dillard residents are well satisfied with the season just closing. The paved highway running through the section has made it possible for them to market their crops with little difficulty and as nearly all of them have trucks, old Dobbin is a chance to stand idle by and graze on the fine pasture land.

No Menagerie Fasting Day For Leo and His Pals

It isn't such a bad thing to be an animal baby in a circus zoo—especially if the baby happens to be a "cat animal."

Maybe you don't know it, but the daddy and mother "cat animals" in the menagerie are never fed on Sunday. They are voracious meat eaters and the circus men have discovered by long experience that over-feeding leads to distemper and other ills. And so, as a matter of health, the lions and tigers and panthers and leopards—"the cats"—have one day in the week when they are compelled to fast.

During the week, when the hour for feeding the animals approaches, they get restless and roar their impatience. On Sunday, however, they give no heed to the usual feeding hour. They realize that this is fast day.

This abstinence does not apply to the kittens in the big dens. They are fed on Sunday, as on other days, but not on meat. Their mamma take care of the Sunday dinner for them.

The Sells-Floto circus, which exhibits in Roseburg on Friday, September 23, is said to have an unusual number of baby animals. There are baby lions and baby tigers and baby monkeys, and even baby elephants for the delight of the kiddies.

Scores of the interesting animals in the Sells-Floto zoo will be seen in the big street parade which takes place at 11 on the morning of circus day. The performances open at 2 and 8 p. m.

Weather For Week Reported Fair

Fair weather prevailed generally throughout the state during the week ending September 13, according to the report of Edward L. Wells, Meteorologist.

Fair weather prevailed during most of the week, but light, scattering showers occurred over limited areas, and snow fell in the mountains of the eastern portion near the close of the week.

There was abundant sunshine, and while some fog occurred in the mornings over low lands in western counties, the humidity was generally low, and drying northeasterly winds were a feature in some sections. Seasonable temperature prevailed early in the week, but later the weather became much colder, and Monday and Tuesday mornings were severe freezing temperature occurred in eastern and central counties and in some western localities.

Harvest is practically complete and threshing is advancing rapidly. Some plowing and seeding have been done but the soil is too dry to be worked satisfactorily. Irrigated crops are ripening well. Considerable corn has been cut for ensilage. Corn suffered considerable damage from frost.

Picking and shipping of fresh prunes progressed rapidly in eastern counties, with favorable weather conditions. Picking prunes for drying in western counties is in progress over small areas. Apples are coloring well. In some localities picking of evergreen blackberries is nearing completion.

Conditions were favorable for late hay and except for late frost were favorable for the growth of late hay crops. Alfalfa was damaged by frost in some sections. Clover seed is being saved in good condition. Feed is dry except in irrigated pastures and in the higher mountains but is generally ample and stock doing well.

Some very late potatoes were damaged by frost, and considerable injury was done to tomatoes and melons. The weather has been favorable for hop picking, which is nearing completion.
