ADVICE TO LOVELORN AND OTHERS

BY MRS. ELLSBURY
A Daily Column of Questions and Answers Conducted by a Woman Who Knows. Address your Letters to Mrs. Ellsbury Care Roseburg News-Review.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I have had a lot of money left to me, and I would like your advice as to what to do with it. I had thought some of going to Portland and taking a course in the business college there, but I rather go to Hollywood and see if I can get into the movies. I had had looking and swim and dance well. Do you think there would be any chance for me? Or would my family want me to go to Portland and go to business college. R. C. Roseburg.

Ans. By all means go to Portland and take the business course. Your chances of getting into the movies if you want to Hollywood would be almost nil. Remember that there are thousands of other girls who are looking, and swim and dance, and they are all trying to get into the movies. The thing for you to do is go to business college and get a good, sound training. Then if you wish to go down there, get a position so that you will have some way to live while trying out as extra.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I am bothering you again. Do you know of some place where I could send and get a good cold cream for an excessively dry skin? I have tried almost every kind they have at drug stores and none of them seem to agree with me. Thank you. SALLY, Glendale.

Ans. There are two beauty parlors in Roseburg. Either place will be glad to mix a lotion for you that will be especially adapted to your needs. I would advise a personal visit to them so that they can be sure of just what your face needs.

Attorney General Van Winkle has advised the public service commission that the bond which is by statute required to be executed to the state by public warehouse operators is executed to the state for convenience only. Under the law any person may bring an action on the bond for damages without the state being made a plaintiff in the suit.

The public service commission has denied to the Multnomah county commissioners authority to construct a grade crossing in Alder Springs over the tracks of the Oregon Electric. The Portland, Astoria & Pacific Railroad company is authorized by the commission to construct a series of fourteen grade crossings over county roads in Washington and Columbia counties. Another order grants to the California & Oregon Lumber company authority to construct three overhead crossings for its logging railroad over a county road in Curry county.

The office of Adjutant General White is in receipt of checks of $1,771.95 and $1,452.26 from the war department for distribution among the members of the coast artillery companies of Medford and Marshfield respectively.

The public service commission on Saturday issued an order granting authority for the construction of a sub-grade crossing where the Southern Pacific tracks intersect three miles north of Albany in Linn county.

Bridge of Gods May Be Rebuilt

CASCADE LOCKS, ORE., Sept. 19.—The "Bridge of the Gods," a natural bridge which Indian legend says once spanned the wide Columbia river here, may be replaced by a bridge of steel or concrete for passage of the white man's automobile. From father to son, back farther than the white man's writings go, has come the tale of how once a great mass of stones and earth and huge trees arched the Columbia as a causeway upon which Indians crossed the wide-flowing stream.

Then there came a day when the bridge of nature was shaken from its moorings, and sank into the water. And that is how, they say, the cascades were created.

Geographical and geological investigators have reported that the red men's story may be true. When the waters of the Columbia are clear and low late in the year, remains of trees may be seen standing, as they may have stood before the bridge fell and formed the cascades.

Credence is placed in the natural bridge story of F. H. Baich, author of the Indian romance, "The Bridge of the Gods." He says that Indians everywhere along the mid-Columbia tell of the great bridge that once stood over the Cascades.

"All Columbia tribes tell the story," he says, "in which different versions and different dialects, but all agreeing on the essential features as one of the great facts of past history.

Engineers were recently reported making preliminary surveys on both sides of the Columbia for a bridge just below the cascades.
