ROSEBURG, OREGON, OCTOBER 6, 1921.

SMALLPOX BY POPULAR VOTE.

In the United States, say J. N. Force, special expert, and Dr. J. P. Leake, of the United States public health service, in a recent public health report, smallpox depends on the popular vote. Study of the smallpox statistics in twenty states for the last six years and of the vaccination laws in the same states indicate that the people have generally obeyed the vaccination laws that they have made.

In the twenty states considered, four eastern states show a combined smallpox curve that has been at a consistently low level for the six years. Seven southern states and six central states show curves that are much higher and are very similar to each other, though that of the central states is about twice as high as that of the southern states.

Within each of these four geographical groups, the better the status of vaccination in the law, the lower is the smallpox rate. The states where vaccination of school children is generally required have little smallpox, averaging three cases a year for a community of a hundred thousand inhabitants; the states where there is no such requirement have 113 cases per year for each hundred thousand persons, a rate high enough to make it probable that one person out of every thirty would at some time have an attack of smallpox.

Prune Pickin's

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—

It was a small western town and the jury had been called to sit on the case of a man who had committed suicide. This is the verdict they rendered: "We are all of the same mind—temporarily insane."

After reclining in a hardwood-seat chair in the courtroom all day a listener to a bunch of lawyers select "intelligent gentlemen" for the jury, we can again sympathize with the school kid who is anxious for vacation to roll around.

Why does a new highway have to be baptized with blood?

Sheriff Sam Starmer certainly knocked 'em dead in the courtroom yesterday when he pranced in wearing a snackin' new suit with the price tag still on it and a hat four sizes too small. Sam says, by gosh, he ain't a goin' ter let any prisoner outdo him when it comes to dressin'.

If Judge Bing ham expects the lawyers in the case to keep their mind on the trial he'll probably have to issue an order barrin' rolled down socks in the courtroom.

JEST LISTEN.

Ye ed. of Prune Pickin's is gettin' so derred many calls for back copies of ye column that he can't supply 'em and so has decided to issue a Prune Pickin's Winter Annual. The annual will be issued in book form and will be chock full of brand new epigrams, snappy gossip about people you know, alleged pomes and a pot pourri of almost everything else. Orders for the Prune Pickin's book, which will be published in the near future, are being received by ye ed. now and "first come, first served." Only a limited number of the books will be published—so if you want one of 'em, you'd better send one buck to ye ed. along with your name and as soon as the first copy is off the press it'll be mailed to you. If you can't trust ye ed. with one plunk, send in yer name anyhow. Watch for another announcement tomorrow.

Since sanitary drinking cups came into vogue the world is getting so nice that pretty soon we'll have to be spitting on our hands with an eyedropper.

One sweet young thing just coming out of the courtroom at the close of the trial yesterday evening murmured to a blonde at her side: "Now there's Dexter Rice, A. N. Orcutt, Joe Hammersley and George Neuner—they may be good lawyers, but my Gawd, they're homely!"

Longheaded clergymen preach short sermons.

Fins Dillard, the competent courtroom ballist, states that he's acceptin' any kind of plug chewin' these days.

The Garden of Eden has been located in Ohio—but the serpent is still at large.

BELLIGERENT BALLADS. The fellow I would like to kill By boiling in a vat, Is the gink who mixes all he says With "Whaddaya know 'bout that?"

All bad enough— But the abominable jay Is the loud-mouthed bird Who says, "I say."

I'm an easy going party, But I'd like to take a knock At the shoe clerk who exposes My foot with the frazzled sock.

When a woman gets sick and has to go to bed she arranges the scenery so that she looks pathetic and interesting. But let a man get sick and he usually looks like something the cat brought in.

It's unnecessary to take a shot of bootch to get seasick. Just stand around and listen to some sixteen-year-old girl shoot the hot-air over the telephone to some candy-legged kid for an hour or two.

LAFE PERKINS SEZ: "I never knew there was so many loafers until the Brimfield trial started up."

S. P. Employees Will Give Ball

Plans are now under way by the local lodge No. 1236, International Association of Machinists, to give a big ball at the Armory in this city on Friday night, October 21. This will be the association's first dance in this city and no pains will be spared to make the occasion one of the most enjoyable ever given here. The Sunset Orchestra, consisting of seven pieces, has been engaged for the railroad employee's dance and the boys are making preparations to give the patrons a most enjoyable time.

LOCAL COUPLE WED

A quiet wedding occurred at the Baptist parsonage on Tuesday evening when Miss Eula Campbell and Mr. D. T. Ratcliffe were united in marriage. Mr. Caldwell officiated using the ring ceremony. Only the necessary witnesses were present. Miss Campbell was a popular young lady of this city. Mr. Ratcliffe is a railroad conductor in Dalhart, Texas. They will soon leave for that city to make their home. The many friends of Mrs. Ratcliffe regret her leaving here, but wish her and her husband much happiness in their new home.

"I can testify that Tanlac does just what they say it will do," said John Carlson, 1034 Front St., Portland, Ore.

"I don't believe any one ever suffered more from stomach trouble and everything that goes with it than I did for two years. I got to where I not only couldn't eat to any good, but I couldn't sleep much either, and was so weak and run down it took all my grit to stick on the job."

"I don't know what it is about Tanlac, but there is certainly something in it that builds a man up and makes him feel fine all the time. I eat, sleep, and work better than I have in years. This medicine was indeed a friend in need."
