VIRGINIA'S FIRST MONEY

I do not think that I was ever so lonely as when I sat down to my toast and coffee.

"Stop pitying yourself," I said out loud. "Today is another day. As long as you haven't a job, go around to the studios and register." My teeth almost chattered with fear at the thought that I might fail. And then the necessity for a cheaper place to live popped fearfully into mind.

I picked up the very mussed evening gown which I had hung on the floor in my sleepy thoughtlessness the night before and tried to pat out a few of the wrinkles as I fought with myself for courage to hunt for a job.

My eyes fell upon my reflection in my mirror and I started with surprise to find I hadn't taken off my make-up. This I did with some of Ria's cold cream, which she had thoughtfully left behind. She had also left her wonderful make-up box for me.

With dismay I found my face a sight from having left the make-up on so long. I knew I wouldn't dare apply for work with such a complexion. Frantically I wondered what to do. Ria's powder almost smiled at me from the dresser. It was a life preserver in a sea of troubles.

I did not stop at powder, for Ria's lip stick looked so inviting. After I had finished I laughed at myself and the world was bright again as I sallied forth.

Downstairs I asked the girl at the desk if they had any singles in the house, and she answered: "Yes, we have a very nice one, Miss Winston. Sixty-five dollars a month."

"That is almost as much as I am paying for the double. Haven't you anything less than that?"

"No. And I am afraid that you wouldn't be able to find anything in Hollywood, although downtown you probably can get something for about forty dollars."

She wrote the names of several places for me to try. I thought I would look at these apartments before going to the studios.

After the beautiful Hollywood apartment the others looked small and rather run down. I finally found one, however, close to the Hollywood street cars upon which I would not have to take a lease. I reflected, with an eye to the future, that if I found anything better before the end of the month it would be easy to move.

"I will send my trunk and bags tomorrow," I told the agent and with a sinking heart I paid the thirty-five dollars out of my fast diminishing roll.

But the shock of the rent money was nothing to what I felt when I arrived at the photographer's studio and had to pay forty-eight dollars for a hundred professional pictures in eight poses.

The pictures were lovely, thought, and the girl, to flatter me perhaps, said: "You have a camera-proof face, Miss Winston. You will notice that we have taken you from every angle and they are all splendid."

I was glad that I had allowed Ria to pick them out from the proofs—I had not seen them before—and it was not without some personal pride that I took the package to the Service Bureau.

Ria had told me that I must be at the Service Bureau on the hours that the cashier's window was open. Arriving there at 11 o'clock I received twenty-four dollars and fifty cents—the total of my pay check for three days and a half work, less the commission exacted by the Service Bureau.

The first money I had ever earned! I determined to send a little keepsake to Aunt Virginia and to buy something for myself that I might preserve and think back upon when I became a "great movie actress."

Of course it was foolish. I should have gone directly to the studios, but youth is always irresponsible and I knew that Aunt Virginia would love something from California, and so I sallied forth to the stores.

Los Angeles stores are beautiful, and it was a pleasure to just wander through them.

I stepped into one of the gift shops and found a replica, in miniature, of one of the mission bells that had interested me so when I had spied them along the streets.

Under the "El Camello Real," which Ria had told me meant the King's Highway, was placed a little calendar and this day—the day that I had received my first earned money—I marked it with a red pencil, intending to explain the whole matter to Aunt Virginia.

On the card which was to accompany the gift I wrote:

"Every time this bell tinkles, know that I am thinking of you, dear Aunt Virginia. And every time you cross off a day, just realize that it brings you nearer to your loving

"VIRGIE."

That done, I arranged to have the gift shipped. Then I asked the clerk: "Have you a good luck piece?"

He brought me the cunningest and stupidest looking little china elephant that I had ever seen. It was sitting on its hind legs and was painted a bright yellow, which made it more ridiculous, and I smiled: "Well, if he doesn't bring me luck he will at least hand me a laugh every time I look at him." Then I realized that I had lost my pictures.

The clerk, noting my look of distress, inquired the cause. I explained.

"The elephant reminded you of it," he said cheerfully, at the same time handing me the box containing my good luck piece. Then he added: "Go back to the last place you were and you'll find your pictures."

AUTO PLATES READY FOR DISTRIBUTION.

SALEM, Or., Dec. 9.—Sam A. Kozar, secretary of state, has announced that the work of mailing out motor vehicle plates for the year 1932 will get under way next week. Approximately 10,000 applications for these plates have been received at the secretary of state's office. There yet remain more than 100,000 applications to be received, based on the registration for the year 1931.

Mr. Kozar said that applications were not coming in as rapidly as has been anticipated and indications pointed to the usual eleven-hour rush.

Under the traffic laws motor vehicle owners who operate their machines without a 1932 license after January 1 will be subject to arrest and prosecution.

WHY THE SWITCH ENGINE RANGS AND WHANGS, ETC.

Albany, Oregon, Dec. 9, 1931.

Editor News-Review: Regarding your editorial from the Boston Globe entitled "Writes like the Band" having to do with the racket made by the switch engine.

Here is the answer written by John Moore of Canadian, Texas, written in the Santa Fe Magazine: "I read of a gentleman who complains about the noise made by a switch engine.

"He permits the noise of commercial activity to obscure his recognition of an industrial blessing and necessity.

"When the switch engine is laming, jamming and slamming, it is performing an indispensable service

Yeast Vitamon Tablets

Greatest Beauty Secret

Banishes Skin Eruptions, Puts On Firm Flesh, Strengthens the Nerves and Increases Energy.

Thin or run-down folks who want to quickly fill out the hollows and sunken cheeks with strong, healthy tissues and build up increased energy and vitality should try taking one of Mastin's tiny yeast Vitamon Tablets with each meal. Mastin's Vitamon Tablets contain highly concentrated yeast vitamins as well as the two other still more important vitamins which Science says you must have to be well and fully developed. They contain vitamins which strengthen the nerves, build up the body with firm flesh and tissue and often counteract the risk of causing gas or upsetting the stomach.

If you are thin, pale, lagging, draw looking or lack energy and endurance, take Mastin's VITAMON—two tablets with every meal. IMPORT ANTI While the remarkable rebuilding value of Mastin's VITAMON Tablets have been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, nervous exhaustion, anemia, indigestion, nervous troubles, poor complexion and a generally weakened physical and mental condition, they should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to having their weight increased to normal. Do not accept imitations or substitutes. You can get Mastin's VITAMON Tablets at all good drugstores.
