APPROVAL OF HIGHWAY PROJECTS ANNOUNCED.

The building of highways with federal aid, which is proving popular that all efforts to defeat it at the hands of congress have proved futile, this being the plan proposed for financing education through a new department with a cabinet officer at its head, is going on rapidly, according to the federal bureau of pub-

During the first quarter of the current fiscal year, or the three months ending September 30 last, highway projects in 38 states were approved and federal aid funds aggregating $10,389,516.58 were allotted toward their construction by the bureau of public roads, United States department of agriculture. Additional projects have been approved since September 30 and others are under consideration.

The length of the projects approved during the three months ending September 30 are located in Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

A BETTER YARDS CAMPAIGN.

Many places during the past season have had campaigns for vic improvement, and in almost all cases good results were secured. Some cities that had the ingenuity to get a little competition into their scheme have accomplished the best results. A notable instance of this kind was the "better yards contest" conducted by a bureau of the Fort Wayne, Ind., chamber of commerce. In order to stimulate interest in this movement, it was desired to have prizes that the winners would value, and which would provide a permanent trophy of a beautiful nature. It was decided to use 500 shrubs of a distinctive variety as such prizes. Whenever they are seen, they will mark those grounds as belonging to one of the winners of these contests. Thus these attractive homes will be further beautified, and those who worked so hard to win this award will receive the permanent honor that goes with the possession of trophy shrubs. Ten points were allowed in this contest for excellence in each of the following respects: Lawns, well cut grass, edging sidewalks, flowers, shrubs, trees, appearance of back yard, general outside appearance of house. Competitors in the contest were secured by printing a coupon in the local newspapers, and those desiring to enter simply filled out their slip and mailed it to the civic bureau of the chamber of commerce. Majors were appointed to take command of the different neighborhoods of the city. Each major appointed captains, and each captain had his lieutenants to supervise the actual work being done. Such a thorough organization gets things done, and Fort Wayne will show a higher standard of beauty and care for yards to come. Many of us would like to see such a project carried out in Roseburg.

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—

A farmer was carrying an express package from a big mail-order house and he was accosted by a local dealer.
"Why didn't you buy that bill of goods from me? I could have saved you the express and besides you would have been patronizing home industry, which helps pay the taxes and builds up this community."
The farmer looked at the merchant a moment and said:
"Why don't you patronize your home paper and advertise? I read it and didn't know that you had the stuff I have here."
Moral: Advertise.

RURAL NOTES.

Old Butch Stebens, of Grasshopper Flats, is wearing a woolen undershirt this winter which he claims was handed down in his family from his great grandfather. We could believe the same of the collars and neckties Butch wears.

St. Moses is building a buffet in his cellar and is enlarging his hogpen. He says he expects his wife's relatives to visit him during the first of the year.

The choral society of Grasshopper Flats couldn't practice last Friday night because Bill Funk the bass singer had tonsillitis and Miss Dusenbury, the soprano, received an unexpected visit from her young man from the Pigeon Hills. Jim Purdy, the other member of the society, was all right, but he had gone to town to see a movie show.

ABSOLUTELY.

Movie Closeups

At the Antlers theatre the chief attraction for Sunday only is "Hickville to Broadway," a William Fox production in which the star is beautiful Eileen Percy. The star we know—and always enjoy. The photoplay, an original by Carl Harbaugh, who is also the director, is described as a sentimental comedy of village and city life. The story opens in the former and moves to the latter. It treats of a young girl's conspiracy with friends to try out the moral quality of her village fiancé by following him, incoke, to the White Light section of Broadway when he visits that hilarious thoroughfare for the first time.
