Mystery Murders Startle London

By WILLIAM M. SWEETS
(United Press Staff Correspondent).
LONDON, Feb. 3.—London has gone mad.

With the beginning of the new year, the London editor was forced to shove the Washington conference, the Cannes conference, and the general election stories to the inside pages and devote the prominent space to an unprecedented array of mysteries. Here are a few of them.

The Bournemouth mystery. In which a young woman had been led to her death through answering a deceitful advertisement in a local newspaper. Hastening to Bournemouth to answer a quick call for a nurse, the girl had jumped into an automobile. Her body was found terribly mutilated the next day along an unfrequented road. The local police are still mystified.

A Welsh arsenic mystery, a poison drama. A prominent solicitor in Hay was arrested charged with the attempt to murder a brother solicitor by administering arsenic in small and frequent doses. In action, a charge of murdering his wife was involved when her body was exhumed. Her death had come mysteriously last February. The solicitor insists on his innocence.

The Paris villa mystery, recounting the tragic fate of a rich English woman, the wife of a prominent scientist. During the absence of her husband, Mrs. Draycott dismissed her servants on Friday and was not seen again until friends broke in the doors to her villa on Monday morning and found her lying dead in the hall, her body covered with her fur coat. Apparently she had been struck in the head with a hammer after fighting her assailant. A Greek chauffeur has confessed to the murder, alleging he killed her because she tried to kiss him! The police are inclined to discredit his story.

The Derby Alibi mystery. This led to a countrywide search for a railway guard, whose wife's body was found fully clothed, buried in twenty inches of earth near her home in Derby. She had disappeared six weeks previous to the discovery of her body and her husband had made a hurried departure from the town at about the same time.

A dope mystery has brought government agents to a point of vigilance unequalled since the suicide of "Billie" Carlton, the actress. Miss Edith Horley, prominent society woman, after sacrificing money and health in order to pay tribute to the demon drug, committed suicide by shooting herself through the head in her flat in St. James Place. The public demands to know where the drug came from.

All in all, the London newspaper of January, 1922, greatly resembled a volume of the adventures of Sherlock Holmes.

A unique service, Christian church Sunday eve, Feb. 5th. Mrs. C. E.
Rusho will paint a picture while the pastor talks.

BOY'S KNIFE WITH CHAIN.

Big value in a knife, strong chain, single blade. A good school knife,

HOMES BEING IMPROVED

A fine piece of civic improvement is being started in the block between Blakely and Brockway streets where the property is owned by Dr. B. R.
Shoemaker, Perry Foster, E. R. Metzger, Morris Allen and R. L. DeVaney.
These property owners are constructing attractive concrete walls in the rear of their lots and are filling in what was formerly a very disagreeable looking depression. They are intending to put in flower gardens, roses and lawns so that their back lots will be as attractive as the beautiful lawns in front of their premises.
