ROSEBURG, ORE. CON. MARCH 13, 1922.

PRODUCTION AND CONSUMPTION.

The productive facilities of the United States were largely increased during the war and since that time, improved methods of agriculture help the farmers produce more. The boom during the war and thereafter led to the construction of many new factories and the addition of much new equipment. On the other hand, the destruction of wealth by the war, and impoverishment of the European peoples, is supposed to have diminished capacity to buy. Pessimists say that when productive equipment is increased and the buying power of the market has fallen off, there must be a good deal of industrial depression. Yet there is a different side to the case. The war stimulated the ingenuity of mankind. People get out into the field of battle and thought up all kinds of ways to meet their difficulties. They acquired the same inventiveness that the early pioneers had. This should make them able to get out of the old ruts and improve living and working conditions. In spite of the impoverishment of Europe, our exports to those countries keep well up to the figures before the war. The people may be poor, but they must have American products, even if they have to borrow money to obtain them. There are many ways in which the buying power of our own people can be increased to provide work for the increased facilities. One way is this. If the industries that now run only part of the year could find work to keep them busy all the time, it would increase the buying power of their employees, and make a market for new products and keep the factories busy. Each plant that runs irregularly should study this matter of seasonal operation, and find some kind of work that would keep it busy all the year. American ingenuity has met all kinds of difficulties in the past, and it will handle these that are visible now.

REFORMING CRIMINALS.

There is a popular impression that the inmates of jails and prisons are as a whole a depraved class, bent on crooked ways, and that not many of them can ever be reformed. Many employers would be reluctant to give any kind of a position to a man who had been in jail, feeling that he had a bad streak about him that would come out some day. Yet Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth, head of the Volunteers of America, and an authority on prison work, said in a recent address that she had known personally more than 18,000 prisoners who had finished their sentences and come out straight men. The greatest obstacle encountered by released prisoners who want to go straight, is the difficulty they frequently encounter in obtaining work. If such a man who really wants to make good, finds himself rejected again and again because of his record, he begins to think that society is determined to turn him down. He forms the conviction that he must live in any way he can and if society won't let him work then he must steal. A man of that type might not be a suitable candidate for a position of trust until he had demonstrated a thorough change of heart. But if he has made a good record in jail and shown an industrious disposition and a docile temper, there ought to be plenty of chances for him to make a fresh start. Many prison inmates could be reformed, if during their jail terms they could be organized in gangs for work on a prison farm. Jails that have land attached find that the experience of cultivating the soil is a healthful one for such men. It seems to turn their minds away from the crooked path and brings them more into harmony with the world of honest endeavor. It teaches them one of the basic industrial arts, and shows them that when they get out they can make a living. They will never have any trouble in selling good food products.

No matter who is nominated for governor of Oregon the taxpayers will have the privilege of voting for a man who wants to crowd the taxes down, but the all-absorbing question is, can it, and will it, be done. Every candidate who has so far thrown his hat into the ring has done so on a platform of retrenchment. The latest candidate to add his mite to the collection is Senator Patterson, who wants to lop off several thousand dollars from the governor's annual salary. This is a good stroke of political diplomacy. Whittle down salaries and whack off a few commissions and things generally will, in time, show some improvement. The only real way to get results is to get action.

About the best platform so far submitted to the people of Oregon from the side lines is that proposed by Hon. Chas. A. Brand in Saturday's News-Review. Mr. Brand is not a candidate for governor, but he has a good idea of a few principles that should be embodied in the platform of some one of the "prospectives."

Who remembers the old-time woman who gazed all around to see whether any men were looking at her before she raised up her skirts and boarded a street car?

It is decidedly peculiar the opinion some people have of their ability when they begin to groom themselves for the political arena.

Well, it was sure fine to wake up this Monday morning and find the rain still with us.

Now we are sure spring is just about to arrive. The air is full of baseball chatter.

You can save money Saturday. Del Jewett is one of 'em in The Four Liars, Antlers, March 13-15. Mr. and Mrs. K. S. Hall of Helen are in this city to spend a short time. Mr. Hall is a member of the state highway commission and will look after business matters here.

Prune Pickin's

GOOD EVENING FOLKS— We notice where the Roseburg basketball boys were plinched for speeding as they were on their way to Medford Friday. And they denied. The charge and we think they're right because you ed. saw the game Sat. night and we know they weren't speeding.

There is a small matter which one of our best pals has seemingly forgotten. To us it is necessary in our business. We are very modest and do not wish to speak of this subject. This is just a delicate suggestion.

Two's company; three's a crowd— with a strong possibility of an early presentation at court.

LINGERIE. Lingerie, Lingerie, What the Devil can it be? Something that I never see, Yet it's ever haunting me, Luring me, alluring me, With its subtle witchery. Lingerie, Lingerie— Foreign word, it seems to me. Some kind person tell to me What the cussed stuff can be? Haunting me, taunting me, With its soft appeal to me, That magic word of mystery Returns to me in memory. And I wonder, and I ponder, In my lonely reverie.

As we've said before—Del "Foghorn" Jewett, the leading lady of "The Four Liars," has arranged for all his costume change with the exception of several pairs of shoes which it seems he is unable to locate, the shortage in talk skin being given as the main reason.

Woodley "Yiddisher" Stephenson is lamenting the fact that he can't wear a derby while playing the stellar role in "The Four Liars." An effort is being made to whittle down his nose to prevent overshadowing of other members of the cast.

Gordon "Sparkling" Burnett, who is to be the butler in "The Four Liars," has had wonderful experience along that line during his days as "dog robber" in the army.

Ray "Wintergreen" Clarke, the cop in "The Four Liars," is said to be SOME BULL.

George "Doughnut" Radaabaugh, who was drafted into "The Four Liars" company, has proved to be one of the biggest ones in the bunch.

Speaking of the ladies, which once in a great many moons we sometimes attempt to do, we note where a New York shoe importer comes out with the advance information that within two years the dear sweet things will be seen on the streets attired in the very sheered of silk hose and completely barefooted.

Won't that be dandy? Probably it will be a good idea for our loop jewellers to go into this matter. Seems like a nice snappy line of toe rings oughta sell pretty well.

NOT SATISFIED. He—"When can I see more of you?" She—"What do you expect?"

THE STRONGER THE BETTER. The doctors were holding a consultation beside the bed of a man who was supposed to be harboring a diseased hip bone.

"I believe," said one of the surgeons, "that we should wait and let him get a little stronger before cutting into him."

Before the other prospective operators could reply the patient turned his head and remarked to the nurse: "What do they take me for—a cheese?"

A LITTLE HINT.

Two colored gentlemen glared at each other. "Lissen," hissed one, "when you monkey wld me, you are filthin' wid a hearse!"

"And I wanna tell you something," returned the other. "If you mix wid me, dere'll be a man patten' you in de face wid a spade tomorrow mawnin'."

And that's all that happened.

Another thing we like about eating lettuce is not having to blow on it to cool it.

LAVE PERKINS SEIZ:

"The feller with long neck looks dearned peculiar in one of them short collars."

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I herobly announce my candidacy for the republican nomination for county commissioner of Douglas county, Oregon, at the primary election to be held May 19th, 1922. In making this announcement I invite the attention of the taxpayers to my record for economic administration of the county's affairs. A fair and conscientious investigation of the county's business will show that it has been carried on in a careful and business-like manner and that I have always kept the interest of the taxpayers uppermost in my mind, and that I have supported a policy which has saved them thousands of dollars which might have been lost to them through a careless business policy. I elected I promise to continue a progressive but economic and business-like administration of the county's affairs and to reduce the burden of the taxpayers so far as lies within my power. Thanking you for past support, and assuring you that your continued support will be appreciated, I am, Respectfully, EDWIN WEAVER.

Edwin Weaver Is Candidate

County Commissioner Edwin Weaver today announced that he is a candidate for the republican nomination for the office which he now holds at the coming primary election to be held on May 19th. Mr. Weaver has been serving in this capacity for several years and is familiar with all of the duties of a commissioner. He is basing his candidacy on his past record and in his announcement commits himself to a progressive but economic and business-like administration of the county's affairs and an effort to reduce the tax burden.

Revival Meetings Have Started

The special meetings at the First Methodist church began yesterday with a good attendance and a fine out look for the week.

Mr. Thomas E. Isaacs, the tenor soloist, delighted the audience with his rich, round voice so full of sympathy and tenderness. Mrs. Renison the pianist, has also made a good impression with her pleasing personality and her enthusiasm for the work. They are so human and natural that people like them, and they have far more calls than they can accept this year.

Rev. W. S. Gordon made a strong appeal to professing Christians, using the text: "Wherefore He is able to the uttermost." He compared the gospel to the "City Four-square," whose length and breadth are equal. It is broad enough to reach every case, and deep enough to reach every need. Got wants to save us from every foolish habit, from despondency and despair. If he can keep you from committing sin for a day, he can keep you for all days. In the evening the speaker drew a tragic picture of Samson, "The Sandow" of the Bible, and his pitiable downfall from becoming a slave to his passions. Like Samson, many today do not realize that they have lost their spiritual power. But God knows and the people know. God is saying to many a man and woman in Roseburg: "You did run well. Who did hinder you that you should not obey the truth?" Profit by Samson's downfall and get right now. If your chum does not respect your religion he is not your friend. A true friend would not dwarf your soul. No man can have peace without God. He is like the turbulent ocean pulled and tamed between the earth and the moon. His mind is a battle ground between God and the devil. His only hope is in surrendering his life to God.

The subject tonight will be: "A Band of Men Whose Hearts God Had Touched." Mr. Isaacs will conduct a lively song service, beginning promptly at 7:30, and will render one or more solos each evening. A count will be made to see if there are more men or women present. Some claim that the men have been outnumbering the women in this congregation as they did in Sellwood and Astoria, and we'll see.

Two nights of laughing. The Four Liars. Legion show, Antlers, March 13-15.

FOR COUNTY JUDGE.

To the Voters of Douglas County, Oregon: I herobly announce my candidacy on the republican ticket for the office of County Judge at the primary election to be held on the 15th day of May, 1922. I ask your support upon my record as County Judge for eleven months, and also upon my record as Sheriff and Tax Collector of Douglas County for ten years. If I am nominated and elected I will discharge the duties of my office faithfully and endeavor to conduct the affairs thereof as economically as is consistent with good business judgement, equalize the assessments so as to distribute the tax burden more evenly and see that one hundred cents' worth of work is received for every dollar expended in the construction of roads, and that the bond money shall be expended where it was voted by the people of this county.
