2,000,000 Chinese Face Starvation, Due to Flood

Break in Dykes, Following Famine, Now Creating Much Misery In Shantung

By EDNA LEE BOOKER (International News Service Staff Correspondent)

SHANGHAI, China, March 21.—More than 2,000,000 people are facing starvation in Shantung Province, having been rendered destitute by the floods caused by the Lellow river, according to reports of the Shantung International Famine Relief committee, just issued.

The Shantung farmer—and the people of this province are simple-minded, peace loving, unprogressive people—is worrying more about driving the wolf from his door and locating his next meal than he is the "Shantung Question."

Last year the terrible famine in China was caused by drought—this year by floods. The Yellow river—China's Sorrow—was on a rampage during the summer and early fall, broke its dykes and, like a great octopus, reached out its arms and sucked in the winter crops of wheat millet and kaoliang (grain).

During the heavy fall rains the Yellow river broke through the dykes which are in very bad condition, in several places; the water in the Grand canal overflowed, and then came the two-mile break in the dyke at Leching.

Sought Refuge on Roofs. The angry water swept unchecked over the low, flat country, and the farmers, who were not yet on their feet from the terrible drought of last year, sought refuge on the roofs of their houses or escaped by boats, helpless before the coming water.

The Yellow river ruined the millet and wheat crops, but the long-suffering farmers harvested the kaoliang crop by going out in boats and cutting the tops—which grow very tall—that reached above the water. Now Shantung is covered with snow and ice, and the stretches of water which did not freeze are frozen and the spring crops cannot be planted.

According to reports of the Shantung International Famine Relief committee, Shantung is facing one of the worst famines in her history this spring. Reports show that seven million people have been affected by the floods and that approximately two million will be in dire need in the spring.

Last year three million dollars—local currency—was spent in famine relief work. Two-thirds of this came from the American Red Cross and the famine drive launched in America.

Relief Fund Small. This year the committee, which is composed of consular officials, business men and missionaries, has only $450,000 for relief work, but additional funds will be secured from the Maritime Customs surtax and a famine drive to be launched in China shortly.

Wheat depots are being established under the direction of the district workers, chosen by the committee, and the hungry, shivering peasants, from their cheerless, cold little mud houses, walk miles to the depot for a portion of food.

The country is desolate and barren. Miles and miles of dead white snow stretch on and on, without the brightness that comes with the sunshine. Across the frozen "no man's land" come the starving, riding their donkeys, or walking as they push their wheelbarrows containing bedding and, perhaps, their womenfolk, along the path toward the nearest wheat depot.

NEW YORK, March 21.—In a few particulars men have something in common with horses. Some of them even have horse sense. Yet the parallel never is carried to a physical equation. You can drive a horse all day and the average man about 9 4-5 seconds, all three watches agreeing.

That is one reason the writer is disposed to fear the worst in the case of Ty Cobb, a gentleman of dynamic impulses that prompt him to wax caustic when any of his ball players decide that enough is sufficient and attempt to ease off the pace a bit.

Cobb is driving his Tigers at Augusta as ball clubs have seldom been driven before. His tongue might be known under the name of Simon Legree, Jr. He certainly wields it for all the world like a verbal whip.

Wisdom Awaits Trial. The wisdom or fallacy of his policy remains to be seen. If some one loops around the bases in batting practice Cobb immediately lifts his head and gives tongue to a wail of protest. "Hustle it!" seems to be his idea of speaking as one man to another.

It is my impression that it is very bad business to race men around the bases in a minor league park in the early spring. With both ground and muscles soft, a ball player can contract Charley horse with the facility of a gambler contracting four aces at the essential moment.

We watched the infield work out, and here again was an utter absence of conservative movement. No infield warm-up before a world's series game ever witnessed more hectic, wild-eyed dash and hustle, with the sound of Cobb's approving voice sending them on for more.

Cobb Likes Action. That kind of thing is gravy for his file of sole. Unlike most southerners, Cobb is the soul of action and expects to see it in others. But what he seems to forget is that he could do a great many things that other players could not. He can still do some of them for the simple reason that, old as he is in baseball years, his great natural talent for ball playing allows him to carry on.

But why all the excitement at this early stage of the proceedings? It is all very well to bring your team back north with the idea that it is going to hustle from first to last through the league race. Hustling in the south gets you nothing but pains, aches and a definite distaste for the task at hand.

Funds Provided for County Band

Finances to carry the Douglas County Concert band through the remainder of this year, were furnished by the city council last night, when it voted unanimously to increase the band's allowance from the city treasury to $600 per year, to be paid in monthly installments of $50 as long as the band remains well organized and in readiness for concert work. The allowance also is made on the basis of ten concerts to be given during the summer months, following the same plan as was adopted last year when the band gave some very interesting entertainments which were greatly appreciated by the people of the community. This money will enable the band to go ahead with its plans and will eliminate the danger of the band breaking up for lack of funds. At the present time the band is well organized and with the knowledge that the city is behind it financially it will doubtless make even larger plans for its future work.

Lewis Resigns From Oregon Growers

C. I. Lewis, who has been identified with the horticulture of Oregon for 16 years, has resigned as assistant general manager of the Oregon Growers Cooperative association, effective May 1st, and will take up new duties in Chicago. For 13 years Mr. Lewis was chief of the division of horticulture at the Oregon Agricultural college, and vice director of the experiment station. During his administration there it was generally recognized that one of the strongest departments of horticulture in the United States was built up at that institution. Mr. Lewis helped the Oregon Growers Cooperative association from the first day they started. During June and July, 1919, he toured the state in the interests of the Oregon Growers. August 1, 1919, he was chosen organization manager and carried on the preliminary work and built the organization up to its present membership of 200 and 22,000 acres. A year ago he was made assistant general manager of the organization.

Mr. Lewis has been very active in constructive horticulture work. His activities include nearly every committee organized for the interest of horticulture, such as the Export Corporation, the Des Moines League, and the National Apple Shows. He was chosen to represent the northwest in a plea for lower freight rates before the Interstate Commerce Commission; is chairman of a committee of northwest fruit growers working on a plan for nationally advertising the apple. He has greatly assisted the fruit industry of the state by encouraging state and national legislation.

Mr. Lewis has national recognition as one of the committee of 21, appointed by the American Farm Bureau to work on fruit marketing problems. He is also a director of the American Pomological society and was one of five men from Oregon to represent the state at the agricultural conference.

During the past year Mr. Lewis has had many offers but has finally accepted a position with the International Trade Press company of Chicago, who now controls the American Fruit Grower, the largest fruit paper in America. He will be managing editor of this publication.

Arrest Follows Noisy Game

Ed. Lough was arrested yesterday evening and ordered to appear in the city court this afternoon to enter a plea to charge of disorderly conduct. Lough, it is charged was a member of a group of card players who had a rather noisy game in the Roseburg hotel Sunday. The game was interrupted and a bottle with a small amount of moonshine confiscated. It is claimed that Lough fell down the steps in escaping the city officers. He appeared in the city court this afternoon with Attorney Albert Abraham in charge of his case.

Mr. Lough, following his appearance in court, entered a plea of not guilty to the charge. He will fight the case and the date of his trial was set for Monday, March 27, at 2 o'clock.

Isn't It Funny—

How can a man sleep on an advertised mattress, in advertised pajamas get up in the morning and shave with an advertised razor and soap, put on advertised underwear, shoes, socks, garters, shirt, collar, suit and watch; sit down to his breakfast of advertised bread, advertised breakfast foods and coffee, read the advertisements in the morning paper. He then puts on an advertised hat, lights an advertised cigar, drives to his place of business in an advertised auto and then has the NERVE to say "advertising doesn't pay." Funny, Isn't It?
