

An Arch Support Shoe

BASED ON A NEW AND UNIQUE PRINCIPLE.

In the arch, this shoe has muscles of spring steel, which support the PLANTAR LIGAMENT, also CALCANES-SCAPHOID LIGAMENT. The weakening of these ligaments allows the arches of foot to sag, causing you pain or arch trouble. Very flexible sole.

Don't miss these if you work on your feet

10 YEARS OF ACCOMPLISHMENT

This week closes the tenth year of county agent work in the northern and western states. It has been a decade of wonderful accomplishment. The full scope and value of the forces set in motion by the county agent cannot be gauged now; that is a task for history. But in the wide application of better methods of production and distribution, the realization by farmers of the importance and the needs of their industry, we can see and credit the hand of the county agent.

The stimulus the county agent has given to farm cooperation would justify all the expense and labor involved in county agent work. Business by cooperative organizations, which the county agent has done in the northern and western states, grew from $2,764,783 to $275,714,660 from 1915 to 1920. And it is estimated these cooperative organizations save the farmers more than $20,000,000 a year.

But better even than the direct saving has been the sense of self-help this cooperative work has engendered in the farmer. The county agent has unlocked the power within the farmer himself to solve many of his problems. Moreover, he has caused farmers to see that they, as well as other business men, can afford to hire a skilled man to do for them the things they haven't the time or training to do themselves.

We might go on for many columns telling of the beneficial work of the county agent. It can be found in increased soil fertility, seed improvement, better farm management, elimination of scrub acres, boys' and girls' clubs and community betterment.

The county agent has measured up to the task to which he was assigned, that of helping establish "a profitable, economically sound agriculture and a satisfactory home and community life." He has been one of the most useful Americans in the decade just closed.—Country Gentleman.

Government Gives Dental Examination

Dr. R. L. Bathrick, dental examiner, who is appointed and qualified to make examinations of any men honorably discharged from the government army or naval service, has received a letter stating that all ex-service men or women, who have not had dental examinations since their discharge from the service and who are entitled to the same, can make application through the district manager's office. For dental injuries sustained during the service the government gives examination, compensation and treatment, if the case is a proper one, and anyone holding an honorable discharge is eligible to make application.

SUSPECT HELD

L. T. Foggerty, a young transient, was picked up here today. He completely answers the description of a young man wanted in Kentucky for murder. He is able to give a very good account of his actions but the officers are holding him for an investigation although it is doubtful if he will prove to be the man wanted.

The South Atlantic league at its meeting at Columbia on January 24, decided to open its season April 17, and close it September 4.

Atayannax Douglas, college catcher who sat on the Cincinnati Reds' bench all last season, has been appointed coach of athletics at Amarillo, Tex.

The club that seems most disheartened over the latest big trade in the American league is Detroit, which wanted Dugan or Scott or somebody.

Pat McNulty, captain elect of the Ohio State baseball team, has been signed by the Cleveland Indians. He is an outfielder and bats left-handed.

Six collegiate football games are scheduled at the Polo Grounds New York, beginning with the Fordham vs Georgetown game October 21, and concluding with the Columbia vs Dartmouth battle November 18.

Thanks Red Cross For Aiding Him

Morris Dworkin, disabled veteran of the world war, who suffered from a mental and physical breakdown on his little homestead near Boomer Hill over two years ago and who was taken in charge by the local chapter of the Red Cross and sent to a hospital, returned to Roseburg today a new man. He entered Secretary Heinlin's office this morning, extended his hand, and with a smile of appreciation for the services of the Red Cross said: "Is there anyone I can help now?" Secretary Heinlin was astounded in the change of the veteran. When he was sent away to the Cushman hospital in Tacoma for treatment, he was a nervous wreck, suffering from wounds in his legs and the effects of gas in his lungs. His brain would not function and he was trembling as a result of shell shock. He received attention from the Red Cross, compensation from the government was secured and he was placed in a hospital for treatment. He is here on a short furlough from the hospital and will soon return for further treatment. He will later be sent to Sawville, California, for lung treatment. Dr. Dworkin is a very grateful young man and this morning tears brimmed in his eyes as he asked Mr. Heinlin if he could not assist some one else in need. When he left here he was without a penny and now he has saved his government compensation and purchased Liberty bonds. His homestead title is clear and he intends to sell it soon and purchase city property.

JACK SCHLENKER'S FATHER DEAD

Word was received here this morning from Jack Schlenker, who was called to Minneapolis Thursday by the illness of his father, W. S. Schlenker, that the death of the elder Mr. Schlenker occurred on Saturday, the day before the son reached the old home. Jack Schlenker will remain in Minneapolis for a short time before returning to his home in this city.

Sporting Squibs of All Kinds

Jack Coombs, the veteran pitcher, is to coach the Williams college team again.

Considerable baseball propaganda is beginning to percolate into ordinary conversation.

The Yankees will try out Glenn Killinger, a Penn State football star, at third base, this season.

The Appalachian league will open its 1922 season on April 27 and close September 8, playing 120 games.

With the exception of half a dozen young pitchers the New York Yankees will try out very few rookies this spring.

At the recent Texas league meeting it was stated that the transportation cost for each club last season was about $6,000.

More real baseball and fewer mechanical stunts in training session is the objective of Pat Moran, manager of the Cincinnati Reds this year.

Cleveland fans who bemoaned the fact for a time that Stuffy McInnis was to play first base for the Indians instead of Burns or Doc Johnston, have become somewhat reconciled to Stuffy.
