Prune Dickin's
 By Bert G. Bates

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—
 The gentle spring will soon be with us.
 There is evidence galore.
 'Tis now kites and tops and marbles,
 Skates and sleds no more.
 Wild geese are flying northward,
 The baseball season's near;
 But an erstwhile sign is misleading—
 "Tis one that read "Bock Beer."

PROFFABLE LIFTS.
 "I notice you frequently pick up people and take them to town in your car."
 "Yes," said the enterprising citizen, "I've sold quite a number of life insurance policies in that way. A man can't very well refuse to hear what you have to say when he's getting a free ride."

TRUE TO TYPE.
 "Say, this blasted car you stuck me with I should think was meant to stall, judging from the way it acts."
 "Well, what are you kicking about? Didn't you buy it on the installment plan?"

Out in Omaha a gas meter reader turned out to be a burglar.
 Sometimes it does seem rather hard to make the distinction.

Two postmasters in one office is the unusual plight of Pleasant Valley, N. Y. What chance has a post card there, we ask you?

THE JUST AND THE UNJUST.
 Lavender stockings, speaking in generalities, are reminders that good and evil walk on equally comely legs.

ON HER.
 I went to a fountain with Mary
 And met with an awful mishap;
 For I awkwardly emptied a bottle
 Of soda all over her lap.
 But Mary was gentle and gracious
 (For none is so tactful as she),
 And smiling with perfect composure,
 Said sweetly, "The drinks are on me."

THE CHANGE.
 Wife—Before we were married you used to swear you would love me always—now you only swear.

SOMETHING WRONG.
 Bobby's dog was limping along on three feet.
 "Look, Daddy! Tag's not hitting on all four cylinders."

Success often brings poise, but more often avoidspits.

PRECISELY PET NAME.
 "Guess I'll have to stop calling my wife 'Toots.'"
 "Why so?"
 "It always reminds her that she wants an automobile."

TRAGEDY RECIPE.
 Take one reckless, natural born fool.
 Two or three drinks of bad liquor.
 A fast, high-powered motor car.
 Soak the fool well in the liquor, place in the car and let him go. After due time remove from the wreckage, place in black, satin-lined box and garnish with flowers.

It oughtn't to be any trouble to work the mails with Work on the Job.

Occasionally we run across a contented man or woman, but we haven't yet been able to figure out whether the contentment came from a lack of envy or lack of enterprise.

It may be true that a faint heart never won fair lady, but not every man wants a fair lady; some are satisfied with brunettes.

NOT UNLIKELY.
 Wary Willie—"I may be poor now, but when I was young I had my own carriage."
 Leary Louis—"Yep, and yer may pushed it."

If they keep on cutting things out of the Roseburg schools we'll soon have to be sending the kids to correspondence schools.

Al Creason appeared on the streets this a. m. with a brand new toothpick.

One of the Twilight League scouts had a new ballplayer lined up for the coming season, but the Ku Klux Klan spoiled his plans and drove the critter from our midst.

LAFE PERKINS SEZ:
 "It's no disgrace to be bald-headed unless the baldness is on the inside."

Judge Finds Couple in Crisis At End of Year

By JUDGE THOMAS F. GRAHAM, Judge of the Superior Court, San Francisco.
 (Written for the International News Service.)

SAN FRANCISCO, April 5. There is a crucial period in the life of every married couple that even novelists recognize. It comes about a year after the ceremony, when the husband and wife lay off the characters falsely assumed in courtship days. Usually married life adjusts itself on a new basis when this period is passed and all goes serene. It proceeds with less romance and more companionship. To show just how these misunderstandings arise in this period, so often brought into the divorce court, we may look into the lives of Mary and John:

We all know Mary and John. Mary is a sweet young girl who has learned all about husbands from the latest novels. She knows just how to manage a man to remain enthroned in his life. So when John falls before her charms she accepts it without question. We don't blame John, but we can see things about Mary to which John is blind.

"We Know Mary's Thoughts."
 We know, for instance, that Mary's thoughts are mostly about herself and that she is fond of John largely because he is crazy about her. She has a habit we don't like of getting up at 10 o'clock, while her poor mother turns out at 5 o'clock to get breakfast for the boys. She won't sweep, because it makes her hands too stiff to play the piano. It also hurts her back to make beds, while dishwashing cracks her nails.

John, for his part, appears to us quite an average young man, not overly ambitious and rather fond of idle pleasures and quite well liked by men. They marry, and a number of things may happen.

Nothing is harder to find than the first little vexation that opens the wedge between the young pair. Maybe John, as a change from the company of his wife, likes occasionally to go out with his old school day chums. He drops in on them in their homes, we will say, and talks over old times and exchanges views on matters of common interest.

Mary knows exactly what he is doing, yet she regards it as a personal affront that he can leave her even for an evening, when he used to fairly haunt her footsteps. She knows that he is not drinking or gambling, but she personally doesn't care for John's chums or their families. She makes demands on John that make him feel like a prisoner, and he retaliates by running away from home. Then he absolutely neglects his moping wife, receiving a hard name from the neighbors.

"Mary May Have Just Cause."
 But Mary may have a just cause for complaint. Perhaps she is the kind to fear her husband's anger. She sees his fondness for other company grow stronger and home life weaker. Finally she turns to companionship with her girl friends and goes on visiting trips to solace her grief and one day learn in her heart of hearts that she has ceased to love John at all. Finally she takes a trip east and stays with her brother's family for a year without asking money from John, then lets him sue for divorce, on the ground of desertion, after some correspondence to that effect.

These situations and similar ones scarcely necessary to mention, are what the divorce court should seek to remedy. Neither Mary nor John is likely to get any better lifemate, and there may be still a strong bond of union between them particularly if they have children.
 But law is effective only to a certain point. The law is cold and unsympathetic. The same element is here necessary that prevails in the juvenile courts, so effectively administered in Denver by Judge Lindsey and here by Judge Murasky. It is the element of humanity.

ROSEBURG MAN'S LUCKY FIND

Will Interest Readers of the News-Review

Those having the misfortune to suffer from backache, urinary disorders, gravel, dropsical swellings, rheumatic pains, or other kidney and bladder disorders, will read with gratification this encouraging statement of a Roseburg man.
 Geo. Heuser, 730 W. Masher St., says: "I can highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. I used them when my kidneys troubled me and they promptly relieved me. My kidneys were out of order and I had a soreness and dull aching across my back that made it hard for me to stoop. My kidneys acted irregularly, so when I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills helping others I used them and they relieved me of the aches and pains and put my kidneys in good condition."

The Danger Point
 in trying to save on painting
 Repairs Cost More Than Paint

WHEN the paint on your property begins to check and crack, it is time to paint again. Unless your house is protected by a smooth, elastic film of durable paint, decay will set in and rapidly depreciate it.
 Decay is expensive and wasteful. Price lumber alone, to get an idea of what it will cost to repair or rebuild. Paint saves this cost.
 The best paint is the most economical in the long run. It spreads easily—saves labor cost. It covers a larger area per gallon than "cheap" paint.
 But most important, the best paint serves five or more years longer than "cheap" paint.
 We have been making the best paints for 73 years. They are scientific in formula and preparation. They meet the weather conditions in the West.
 They contain the finest materials—PIONEER WHITE LEAD, pure linseed oil, pure zinc and pure colors—combined scientifically in exact proportions. They are the best paints we know.
