

CHEVROLET—Why not Pay $98.00 More and Get a Car Everywhere You Look You See a CHEVROLET

The Economy Car of Quality

GLENN H. TAYLOR

That uses about 25% less gasoline. That uses from one-third to one-fourth as much oil. That is easier to guide. That is more comfortable to ride in. That has a Stewart speedometer connected on transmission. That has an oil gauge on dash. That has a one man top.

That has a gypsy style back curtain. That has a water pump. That has a radiator that will not freeze when motor is running. That has a slanting windshield. That has movable windshield glasses for summer comfort. That has the Willard Rubber Thread

Battery, guaranteed two years. That has a low theft insurance rate. That has pockets in all four doors. That has a hand shift lever. That has both a hand and foot gas accelerator. That is easy to start in cold weather. That is noted for its great pulling power.

That has a fine appearing body. That has a triple baked enamel body and fenders that will last for years instead of paint that soon needs another coat. That has a new spiral gear differential (rear end) that carries a $50.00 reward for anyone that will break the ring or piston gear on a test.

That has an organization back of it that is not trying to see how cheap they can build it but how good they can build it. That has a host of satisfied owners that are very much pleased that they paid a "little more." Don't take my word or someone else's.

But ask the owners. Everywhere you look you see a Chevrolet. There is a reason—it is the lowest priced and most economical fully equipped car on the market and the best automobile buy today.

Beaded Robe Is Star of Season

THE beaded robe is the shining sartorial star of the season. It leans more toward formal wear than informal, and when made along straight lines, it has a certain dignified charm that always comes from the application of rich material along simple lines.

The robe in white, of shining crystal and strass, is the last word from Paris, although robes in mauve-pink, orchid, and salmon pink are the most highly favored when color is wanted. In the photo above is a salmon pink beaded net robe over a tulle top. It is along the straight Greek lines so absolutely suitable to the slender woman. For this reason it was undoubtedly chosen by Miss Lois Wilson, Paramount star, to be worn in "The World's Champion," in which she appears with Wallace Reid. The robe, as it has been made up for her, suggests the ingenious most properly by the addition of a broad sash tied in a bow at the back, toward the right side. The fringing of curled ostrich along the slit at the side is another youthful touch.

Quite in contrast is the sketch of the gown at the upper right. This gown is draped to the figure, and is quite décolleté, a more formal treatment of the robe. It is draped toward the left hip, and is fringed with strass; the body of the robe is of crystal and pearls. A long glittering beaded net fan is the picturesque accessory.

On the head in the sketch below, is shown a beaded band that has an almost regal look—an effect that is coming rapidly in favor. This sort of headress is rather splendid for the woman that successfully affects the plain black velvet evening gown, or draped, but untrimmed satin gown.

KLANSMAN UNMASKED

DENISON, Texas, April 3.—A deacon of the church arose and snatched the mask from the face of a Ku Klux Klansman when members of the Klan visited the First Baptist church here last night. The Klansman hurried out and other persons quieted the affair. Someone in the audience struck the deacon in the face.

The Klansman was a Denison business man, persons attending the service declare. Fifty men robed and masked visited the Baptist and First Presbyterian churches. Talks on morality were made.

CLARENCE STILL BOSS

Many baseball fans will be surprised to learn that one of the names given Kid Gleason, the scrappy manager of the Chicago White Sox, was Clarence. So far as history records the Sox are the only club in existence that has been managed by successive men named Clarence—Clarence Rowland and Clarence (Kid) Gleason.

UMPIRES SOMETIMES JOIN IN BONE PLAYS

Critic Relates Incident in Game at Cincinnati.

Fly Ball Intentionally Muffed to Complete Double Play Ruled as Being Held Momentarily and Batter Declared Out.

Jim Scott.

One of the best little home plays of the season in the National league was pulled in the game of October 1, between Reds and Cubs, according to the account of Jack Ryder, and as has been the habit of National league umpires last season the arbiters, Quigley and Roberts, managed to get in on it. This is what happened as Ryder writes it:

There were Cubs on first and second bases to the ninth inning, with one man out, when Killefer lifted an easy fly to center. Roush came in for it, and it was so evident that he was going to reach the ball that the runners hugged their bases tightly.

Out of the corner of his eye Killefer observed a cheer for a double play that would end the game in a hurry, so he intentionally muffed the ball, which fell at his feet. Picking it up instantly he threw to Larry Kopf who was covering second base. Larry did not make the play right, or as Roush intended him to do, or the play would have gone through. Instead of touching Barber, who was standing on second in a beelined drive, and then stepping on the bag, Larry first stepped on the bag, forcing Killefer, and then touched Barber. But as soon as he touched the bag with his foot the force on Barber was relieved, and therefore he was not out.

This is the only man who was really out was Killefer, who was forced at second, but Larry Quigley appeared to be confused by the play, and he finally, without any yelling, Killefer out at first instead of Killefer. When pressed for a reason he said that Roush had held the ball momentarily, or long enough to complete the out on the batter. This was purely an wild for Roush had muffed the ball dead, and if it had been on one or one base, Killefer would have been safe in time. The umpire, convinced to gather, and then allowed the incorrect decision to stand. It made no difference, for the double play had not gone through as intended, and

ISN'T IT FUNNY--

How can a man sleep on an advertised mattress, in advertised pajamas get up in the morning and shave with an advertised razor and soap, put on advertised underwear, shoes, socks, garters, shirt, collar, suit and watch; sit down to his breakfast of advertised bread, advertised breakfast foods and coffee, read the advertisements in the morning paper. He then puts on an advertised hat, lights an advertised cigar, drives to his place of business in an advertised auto and then has the NERVE to say "advertising doesn't pay."

The commencing train was crowded and the Woman felt fortunate at securing a seat. This feeling began to dissipate when she realized that a crying baby was in the seat ahead. His tired mother danced him up and down in a vain endeavor to quiet him. Then she stood him up so that his tiny red face peered over her shoulder at the people behind. His wailings subsided into sobs as he looked around. He was particularly attracted by a young man sitting next to the Woman, whom he gazed at intently. Encouraged by her baby's silence he mother patted him gently on the back and murmured in soothing but very audible tones:

"There, there! That's a good boy. Now look at all the funny faces."—Chicago Journal.

Lincoln Shrewd Lawyer.

It was in the old Melmore (Ill.) every house that Lincoln won a case for a man who was suing another for fraud in a horse trade. Lincoln's legal opponent had on a new and stylish shirt with a long, pointed collar attached and, contrary to the usual custom, opening in the back. The worthy gentleman was wearing the shirt for the first time and had put it on wrong side foremost with the points of the collar sticking back. Lincoln in his defense had said that his opponent was wise and knew many things, but probably did not know all about a horse trade, and "gentlemen of the jury, there are some trifling things he does not know; you will perceive that he doesn't know when he has his shirt on right," and Lincoln won the case.
