

WHY CHEVROLET LEADS IN SALES

Chevrolet New Superior Model is a completely modern, fully equipped car, built to deliver all the real service you can get from any automobile, at the lowest price for which you can get it. In every line, people pay different prices for the same thing, or what is essentially the same thing. You can hear an opera for from $1.00 to $50.00. You can buy a square meal at from 50c to $25.00. You can take a ride for from 1/4c a mile to $2.00 a mile.

In this year of common sense, 1922, people are weighing values. They realize how much they have been spending for show, for vanity, and for non-essentials; and now they are making each dollar WORK. THAT IS WHY CHEVROLET IS FIRST IN SALES OF STANDARD FULLY EQUIPPED CARS.

Tenor, with Voice=Box Like Caruso's, to Drop Flat-Iron for Concert Role

Finder to Develop Voice of Argentino, Who Can Take High "E" Easily.

By KENT WATSON (International News Service), Correspondent.
NEW YORK, April 10.—Big-chested Giuseppe Argentino, Brooklyn laundry worker, is going to lay down his flatiron for good. Giuseppe is happy as a lark—because he sings like one.

A new Caruso is in the making, declares Professor Jascha Bourg, who "found" Argentino trilling high "E" notes to his fellow flatiron wielders.

"I believe," asserted Prof. Bourg, "that, with two or three years of training, Argentino will be the logical successor to Caruso. He can reach two notes higher than the highest known pitch ever taken by the human voice. Caruso only went to high 'C,' but Argentino can take high 'E' without apparent effort and sustain it as long as one could wish. Yet, with all this marvelous strength of voice, there is in it that same lucid, full-throated, golden quality that was characteristic of Caruso's voice a few years before his death. It is just as full and ringing at its highest pitch as it is at the lowest note of the scale.

"Throat Like Caruso's." "Strangely—and the fact is explained by the unusual construction of Argentino's throat, which is similar to that of Caruso—the higher note he takes the broader his voice becomes, despite the natural tendency of the voice to sharpen and become thin as it mounts the scale."

Giuseppe, smiling broadly, stood by as Prof. Bourg thus eulogized him. "I sing all the time," he said, "but this is first time anybody tell me I sing good. Always I like to sing, but everybody tell me: 'Shut up, Giuseppe; you holler too much!'"

Argentino isn't fat, but he weighs 190 pounds. He is six feet tall and heavily built about the shoulders and neck. He is 23 years old and has a wife and one daughter.

"Can Expand Eight Inches." "It's his build," continued Prof. Bourg, "especially his throat, which gives him his remarkable voice. Caruso's chest expansion was five and a half inches, but Argentino can expand eight inches, showing the lung power which enables him to sustain a phrase for a long time, even longer than the remarkably long time Caruso could sustain one."

Setting aside his flatiron, with which he had been ironing the white bosom of an evening shirt, this robust tenor pitched high in impassioned notes of a Neapolitan love song which rose above the clanging of laundry machinery and the noises of the street.

High, clear notes welled from him and filled the little laundry room, floating out to the street. His voice, a curious combination of sweetness and strength, soared to high "C" without apparent strain. There was, however, a certain "harshness" in the full-throated quality of his notes.

Lecturer Will Speak on Emerson

An intellectual treat is in store for the literary students of Roseburg tomorrow afternoon, in the lecture to be given by Charles J. Woodbury of Oakland, California, who was a personal friend of Emerson's and who will talk on the subject "Emerson as I Knew Him." Mr. Woodbury is on his way to Eugene where he is to speak to the students of the University of Oregon. He is to stop in this city for a short time, and has consented to deliver his lecture to the students of the high school and to the public. Because of the fact that the lecture was not definitely scheduled until today it was impossible to announce it at an earlier date. Mr. Woodbury, who is a writer of national repute and a famous lecturer was a personal friend of Emerson, and was with him a great part of the time between the years 1865 and 1875. The lecture will be largely devoted to personal reminiscences of the great writer. There will be no charge made for the lecture which is being given as a part of the literary course maintained by the school. The public is invited and urged to attend.

FLAPPER IS O. K. SAYS WOMAN LEADER

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 10.—(United Press.)—"Today the public calls the active young American maid a flapper, but upon close observation we find that the flapper is not different from her older sister, her mother, grandmother or great-grandmother."

Miss Annie Ryland Smith, general secretary of the Connecticut Y. W. C. A., made this statement to the United Press in upholding the modern girl.

"Unfortunately, as is often the case in America, the word has been misused and its misuse has stimulated license. Today the word flapper is a careless and flippant expression of the reaction of war, economic conditions and modern inventions, upon the young maiden," Miss Smith said.

"Flapper, originating in England, was a charming manner of describing a decidedly proper young lady who amused one by thinking she knew lots more than she did, but flapped her wings before she knew how to fly."

"The American flapper of today is original, creative and courageous, and also independent—but are not these all qualities which her ancestors at least desired to attain? If each generation followed only in the steps of the preceding one, the world would not progress very far."

"Health and vitality are personified by the young maid of today. She has a great stock of energy which will be a great contribution to prosperity."

"Opportunities have been granted our present day youths which have made them grown-ups—before they had an opportunity to realize the joys of youth. The young people of today have been robbed of their girlhood and boyhood."

Miss Smith then compared the modern girl to see if the flapper does not measure up to being "the little lady that her grandmother was."

"Our grandmothers taught their daughters to sew and cook. Today our schools teach the maidens lessons in domestic science. For years the young wife has been held to the standard of 'What mother used to bake.' If domestic science of today shows results, the young wife of coming generations will be questioned as to whether what she serves is a balanced diet or not."

"Mothers complain of lack of interest on the part of their young daughters in helping them keep house. Isn't there a question as to whether there is enough work for the mother and daughter both to do in Word was received here this morning from Charles Wilson Baker, formerly Episcopal minister here but now of Orleans, California, telling of many cases of influenza at that place. It was stated that whole families were down and that there were no doctors or nurses in that section. They called on the Red Cross for help and obtained nurses at once. They believe the worst is now over.
