The California officials requested that the men be held here until extradition papers can be procured and an officer will then come for them. Although a charge could probably be placed against them here, District Attorney Neuner stated this afternoon that the men will be surrendered to the California authorities as there is a better case there and more of a chance for a long sentence. It is quite probable that the government will also enter and bring charges.

The telegram received by Miss Pitchford also requests that the girls who are runaway minors be held. They have been placed in a private family where they will be cared for until an officer can reach here to take them back. The girls have discussed the case quite readily with Miss Pitchford and this afternoon were taken to the office of District Attorney Neuner where they made a complete signed statement.

MAY BE FORCED TO PAY ROYALTIES

(By Associated Press.)

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 10,—The American government finds itself under the revised patent treaty with Germany faced with the necessity of paying royalties which may reach five million dollars to the Krupps firm on patents based on the discoveries of American engineers. Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian, deciared today. Miller said that among the 201 German patents filed since July 20, 1919, at least eight deal with mobile artillers, which "embody many mobile artillery, which "embody many of the principles of the American railroad artillery." The American officials believe sketches of the American plans were surreptitiously removed from the war department and tracings made.

SENATORS ALLOWED SPEND CAMPAIGN CASH

(By United Press).

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Attorney General Daugherty's opinion rendered today that the senators may spend unlimited sums in the primary and seneral elections this year on the basis of the supreme court's Newberry ruling, will probably lead to an early amendment to the corrupt practices act, with its provisions to apply in the fall elections, the senate leaders intimated today.

Miss Pitchford and the city and county officers are quite elated over the capture of these two men. The men, it is charged, enticed the two girls, aged 16 and 14 years, away from their homes and brought them into this state for immoral purposes. The law violation was most flagrant, it is claimed, and the officers are greatly pleased that they have been able to bring the law violators to justice.

Rancher "Soaked" For Buying Here

An Umpqua Valley rancher drove into Roseburg this afternoon, parked his car on Jackson street and proceeded to make some purchases from local merchants. He loaded the rear of the car with packages and had almost completed his buying when he noticed the city copstanding near his car writing a a slip. He approached and was informed that he was arrested for violating the half hour parking ordinance. He was ordered to drive to the city hall where he was "soaked" a dollar.

That is the unjust part of the ordinance. One of the merchants with whom the rancher was dealing paid the fine.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The river and harbor legislative bill which, i is assumed, will pass the house practically as it was reported by the compittee, covers projects which aggregate $31,441,000, and includes for Oregon two principal projects, $3,310,000 for Coos Bay harbor and Isthmus slough, and $1,750,000 for the Columbia and lower Willamette only and should not be confused with the appropriations for existing pro-jects, which are made in the army bill. This is the first bill carrying new projects since the war. This bill does not provide for the Umpqua river improvement, which was reported on favorably by the army engineers several years ago and on which local interests have expended approximately $225,000, patiently awaiting the day when the government would match its dollars in the sum of $265,000 to carry out the work on the lines approved by the engineers.

mute story of West Virginia's industrial tragedy.

trial tragedy.

These pathetic victims of the "war between capital and labor," who for two years have lived in indescribable misery, are now to be evicted from the squalld homes under an injunction of the federal court.

Eight hundred women and children, scattered through a half dozen coionies tucked away in the West Virginia mountains, must, abandon their leaky tents and seek new homes because their presence, so the court held, is a menace to the operation of coal mines in Mingo county.

Nearly two years ago, July 1, 1920, miners in the Mingo fields quit work because, they said, the operators would not recognize their union. They took their families to live in tent colonies. The men were fighting for a principle—that of the right to organize into a union whereby they might collectively deal with the big coal associations.

collectively deal with the big cost associations.

Women Paid Penalty.

But the women and the little children, who had nothing to do with the industrial war, paid the penalty.

The women, from the time they went to live in the tent colonies, were the real victims of the strike. Some of them have been deserted by their husbands. Tuberculosis, contracted as the result of exposure, has afflicted many. All are poverty stricken, living in fifth and under appalling hardships.

improvised cradle. The babe had been born a week before.

The woman looked at me with a vacant, hopeless sort of a stare which told its own story of cruel privation, of misery, of want and of squalor.

She was a "woman in unwomanty rags" and she sang the song of every other woman in the tent colonies.

"Where are you going when the law puts you out of your tent?" I repeated.

A fit of coughing shook her frail body—the bacon burned, and the infant cried pitifully.

Interview Brief.

That was all of the interview, but the few words expressed a volume of tragedy. She didn't know where her family would go, where the little children—there were six of them—could be taken. And, resigning her self to the inevitable, she didn't care very much.

David Fowler, international organizer of the United Mine Workers of America, who has been permitted, under the martial law edict which rules Mingo county, to furnish supplies to the tent colonies, admitted he didn't know what would become of the colonists.
