HALL MAY RUN AS INDEPENDENT

"Pop" Gates, of Medford, Also Likely Candidate For Governor.

KLAN IS RARIN' TO GO

Indications Point to a Lively Scrap at the November Election—Supporters of Hall Not Pleased With the Primary Results.

PORTLAND, June 2.—Senator Charles Hall, of Marshfield, if he follows the advice of some of his strongest political supporters and advisers, will demand a recount of the Olcott-Hall vote and, if that supports the contentions being made regarding the vote cast in certain precincts and sections of the state, subsequently will announce himself as an independent candidate for election as governor at the November election. This is the latest story seemingly from definite sources, floating around political channels, to challenge public interest.

So far as Senator Hall is concerned he is still maintaining his silence, contending that he has not yet determined what course he will finally pursue regarding the recount, but promising that he may have something to say tomorrow.

MURDER LIKE A SCENE IN MOVIES

(By United Press.)
KANSAS CITY, June 3.—Frank Anderson, department store superintendent, was found shot to death in a hotel room and Miss Marie Beal, shot in the side and with her undergarments afire, lay beside him. Newspapers with "eternal triangle" accounts lay scattered about the room, and a novel lay open at a chapter entitled "The Hall of Doom."

Miss Beal said Anderson was not her husband, but that he had promised to marry her. "Don't ask me why I did it. Ask him what he did," she gasped when questioned regarding the shooting.

Miss Beal shot Anderson as the climax of a passionate love affair, and then attempted to take her own life, the authorities declared this afternoon. A long list of names of women was found in Anderson's effects. Love notes, passionately phrased, signed by Anderson, were found. "Miss Beal told the landlady at the hotel that she and Anderson were married two years ago, but in a signed statement today the wounded girl said that she came here to marry Anderson but he told her that he was already married and had not completed his divorce."

EXPLORER STARTS ON LONG VOYAGE

(By United Press.)
SEATTLE, June 3.—The schooner Maude, bearing Captain Raold Amundsen's polar expedition, cleared out of Seattle harbor this afternoon on a voyage to last from five to seven years. Captain Amundsen will sail Sunday on the steamer Victoria to join the Maude at Nome. Captain Oscar Wisting commands the Maude. Vast stores are carried, fuel for the schooner and airplanes, goodies of all kinds, airplanes, and one big fruit cake weighing 100 pounds. Amundsen will allow the schooner to freeze in the polar ice and drift across the pole in an attempt to prove that the polar ice floes move across from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

SYMPATHY AND SUPPORT OF AMERICA ARE NEEDED IN CHINA, SAYS CHANG TSO-LIN

By EDNA LEE BOOKER,
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

(Copyright, 1922, by International News Service.)

MUKDEN, Manchuria, China, June 3.—Wearing his famous pearl-trimmed hat and a richly brocaded black satin robe, Chang Tso-Lin, one of the most powerful figures in China today, received me in the spacious salon of his palace, where, in different sections, live his five wives and their large families. I am the first woman reporter ever to be admitted behind the high walls surrounding his domain.

Tales of the great Mukden warlord, his reckless bandit days, his iron-hand rule, his calm appropriation of millions, the attempts made upon his life, the heads he has ordered lopped off had caused me to picture Chang Tso-Lin as a Chinese edition of the burly pirates in, say, "The Pirates of Penzance"—red sash, dagger and everything.

When the man who is the center of all eyes in China today entered the sitting room (with its carved lacquer furniture, satin hangings, rare porcelains, priceless scrolls and great bowls of fragrant peach blossoms) he resembled the polished scholar rather than the burly bandit.

Chang Tso-Lin, the governor-general of Manchuria, is a slim little man, with keen brown eyes, a kindly smile, long, slender hands and a gentle voice. As we sat around the richly-carved mother-of-pearl inlaid lacquer table (Mr. E. Carlton Baker, former American consul-general in Mukden and for the past three years advisor to Chang Tso-Lin; Mr. H. V. Kao, president of the Bureau of Foreign Affairs and translator—for Chang Tso-Lin does not speak English—also present) the governor-general spoke in the quietest manner of the present critical condition in China. He put his cards on the table. He stated that he was working with Sun Yat Sen and the southern government to bring about peace in China. He outlined his war policy, his program of unification and his plans for the future development of China.

Has Great Army.
Got on the band wagon of unification or fight, is the challenge the powerful war lord is sending thru-out the republic. Incidentally, he has an army reputed to number 300,000, equipped with the latest word in machine guns, Vickers Vimy, Rolls Royce and Handley Page airplanes, and some $20,000,000 to back him up.

"China is sick," said Chang Tso-Lin, as he sipped tea from the fragile teacup, "and, like a sick man, may need an operation. The operation is painful, but it is justified by results."

"The Washington conference has shown China that she must unite, establish a strong central government and meet her foreign obligations. I appeal to America to stand by China during the coming critical months, for China needs America's sympathy and support. America, of all nations, is the only one who seeks China's friendship and trade and not her territory."

"I have not presidential ambitions; I am working for the good of China, and, whatever my enemies may say, I am sincere."

(And the cynical old-timers are saying a plenty and wondering what Chang Tso-Lin is trying to put over on China now.)

This quiet little man—who, by the way, is a great admirer of Napoleon and assumes many of Napoleon's favorite poses—seemed so stiff, and his piercing eyes flashed fire.

Chang Tso-Lin may be a Manchurian militarist, a war lord, the most autocratic of "tychuns," but his orders are obeyed, and, although said to be ruthless, ruling with an iron hand, he gets results.

While Chang Tso-Lin lives in seclusion (he is said to be the hardest man in China to meet) in his heavily guarded palace and has the streets cleared fifteen minutes before he whizzes through them in 60 miles an hour in his bullet-proof motor car, costing a quarter of a million dollars—nearly every foreigner in Mukden is for him.

As he talked I watched him—his olive eyes, his long, thin face, his drooping black mustache, his long slim, ever-moving long-nailed fingers—and wondered wherein lay his power.

Lord Northcliffe felt it, and, after a visit in Mukden, declared Chang Tso-Lin to be "China's most powerful man." Every American, English and European business man in Mukden, men in diplomatic service, missionaries to a man back Chang Tso-Lin.

Foreigners Back Him.
No matter what you have heard against Chang Tso-Lin do not mention it in Mukden. The foreigners there resent having their hero called a war-lord; they stoutly deny that he is pro-Japanese. As for bringing up his past days, they will ask you what the doings of 25 years ago have to do with today; denounce him as a self-seeking politician; if you will, an insincere schemer, but make sure that your audience contains no sons of old Manchuria, for Chang is "the goods" here.

According to a leading American business man: "Chang Tso-Lin rules with an iron hand, but he gets re-

Crowd Expected to Baseball Game

The stage is all set for one of the snuggest ball games of the season at Laurelwood park tomorrow afternoon, when the Yoncalla team meets the Roseburg-Legion boys.

The local team is in tip top shape and "rarin' to go" for a victory. The Yoncalla boys have also whipped their aggregation into shape for tomorrow's contest and declare that they will go "over the top" and bring home the well known bacon in the first four innings. The fans had better be on time for when the game starts at 2:30 p. m. the "S. R. O." sign will be dangling from the tree tops.

MATHILDE'S ROMANCE IS SOURCE OF WORRY

(By Associated Press.)
CHICAGO, June 3.—The court fight against Mathilde McCormick's marriage to Max Oser, Swiss horseman, ended in less than two minutes proceedings in the probate court today when Mrs. Edith Rockefeller-McCormick, the girl's mother, withdrew her petition for a restraining order to prevent the union.

Friends suggested that the court action was started to keep Mathilde in America as long as possible in hope that she might voluntarily change her mind. Mrs. McCormick in her objection is said to be strongly supported by her father, John D. Rockefeller, senior.

Withdraws Consent.

CHICAGO, June 3.—(U. P.)—Harold F. McCormick today temporarily withdrew his consent for his daughter, Mathilde, to marry Max Oser, Swiss groom. McCormick announced that he will investigate the charges that Oser is a fortune hunter.

Mrs. F. Devlin, of Sutherland, was a visitor in this city for a few hours this morning. Mrs. Devlin returned to her home on the noon train.

MENACING PHASE MADE MORE ACUTE

(By Associated Press.)
CHICAGO, June 3.—The menacing phase in the railway situation, with the nation-wide strike easily within the bounds of possibilities, was made more acute by the informal but well-founded reports that the wage cuts for the shop craft workers, expected to be announced early next week by the railroad labor board, will reach a total of at least fifty million dollars annually.

LANDIS ASKS FOR EVIDENCE IN CASE

(By United Press.)
SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Judge Kenesaw Landis, baseball arbiter, will consider further evidence or data bearing upon the so-called "Kenworthy" case which has stirred the coast league, according to a wire to President McCarthy, of the coast league, here today.

Will Not Sell Stock.

PORTLAND, June 3.—In a message to the Oregon Journal, William H. Klepper, Portland club president, said he would not sell the stock of the Portland ball club, despite Landis' orders to do so. Klepper said he had received several offers for the stock.

DAINTY GARMENTS USED AS EVIDENCE

(By Associated Press.)
LOS ANGELES, June 3.—Dainty silk garments, one white and one purple, were introduced today as exhibits in the preliminary hearing of Rodolph Valentino on a bigamy charge. They were presented as the attire in which Valentino and his second bride, Winifred Hudnut, whom he married in Mexico May 13th, appeared in public at Palm Springs, California, during their honeymoon a few days after the marriage. The prosecution contended the suits were pajamas but Valentino's attorney said they were Chinese silk suits.

ROSEBURG COUNTRY CLUB STARTS WITH MEMBERSHIP OF NEARLY ONE HUNDRED

Ideally Located for Golfing, Tennis, Swimming, Fishing, Boating and All Sports—Site for Club House Will Be Selected Tomorrow Afternoon.

The Roseburg Country Club is now a reality and the wonderful golf links are in daily use by the enthusiastic members of the new organization. The Country Club is located on the Curry estate, fifteen minutes ride from Jackson street, and is the most ideal location for such a resort that could be found in the entire county. The members of the organizations have made the first payment on the land and are now contemplating the improvements on the grounds such as a water system, club house, tennis courts, completion of the golf course, etc. The board of directors have asked the members to be present at the club tomorrow afternoon for the purpose of assisting them in selecting a suitable site for a club house. Extensive plans are being made for the club and those in charge are determined to make it one of the best in the state.

A fine nine-hole golf course has been laid out. Other clubs have been forced to spend thousands of dollars in clearing their courses and creating fairways, greens and hazards, but the course of the Roseburg Country Club is a natural one and all that will be necessary is to run a mower over it, create the fairways, and construct the greens. The land has a 600 yard frontage on the North Umpqua river and adjoins a good road. Excellent places for tennis courts have been found and the members will also have an opportunity for bathing, fishing and boating. A large oak grove will provide an excellent lounging place for the tired golfers and spectators.

W. H. Nash, of the A. G. Spaulding and Sons sporting goods house of Portland, designed the course, which has a par of 36, that is, it is possible to go around the course in 36 strokes, although very few players will ever be able to make the course in that number. He has provided plenty of trouble and there is a wide variety of shots possible.

The first hole is 600 yards. It is guarded on the right by oak trees for a hook shot, and those who slice will be penalized by being in a ravine. This hole should be a good test for golfers, as it will take the average player four long shots to reach the green.

The second hole will be a 336 yard and the drive will have to carry over a natural hazard in the way of a ravine. This hole is a blind hole and the second shot will have to be placed to the green without being able to see it.

The third hole is a midiron shot of 180 yards with the green well guarded with oak trees which afford trouble for those who have a tendency to pitch over.

The fourth hole is a short mashie shot and it will be necessary to keep the ball straight or the player will be in trouble.

The fifth hole is 167 yards with trouble for the man who hooks. There will be two long shots to the green and for the average player 3.

The sixth hole is 325 yards with a long carry on the drive, the second shot is down hill with a very good chance of overshooting and being out of bounds.

The seventh is a beautiful hole of 400 yards, up through a semi-dogleg then through a ravine. The green is well banked on either side and in the back by a natural hazard.

The eighth hole is 325 yards down a ravine and over a hill, and affords a good test in holding the shot to the green.

The ninth hole is an excellent dog-leg of 450 yards. The shot from the tee will have to carry a ravine 100 yards away and the second shot will be over a ravine also.

The course has a total yardage of 3023 yards and provides natural hazards, which clubs in cities have spent thousands upon thousands of dollars to duplicate.

Only a limited number of members will be allowed in the Country Club, the following being those who have already taken out shares in the project: I. Abraham, Clair Allen, Roland Agee, B. W. Bates, D. S. Beals, Irvin Brunn, Bert G. Bates, Roy E. Bellows, J. P. Barker, I. G. Broadway, W. A. Bogard, O. C. Baker, J. H. Booth, Charles A. Brand, C. O. Baker, Harrie D. Booth, W. F.
