

Solving A "Knotty" Problem

Expert Weaver, Gilves Instruction to Fellow Patient in Reconstruction Hospital

L. ANDERSON, a sailor with a broken hip, wore 150 lbs. of bandages in 1918. His bones were re-setting. He is now a patient in the Reconstruction Hospital. He is a pretty good chap to work with on his back, and he is a champion weaver. He is an industrious, Carl always helps other patients solve their knotty problems in knot-weaving. Patients are given occupation therapy—prescribed, interesting and light work to keep them cheery and in trim while convalescing at the Reconstruction Hospital—the first hospital to be wholly dedicated to the rehabilitation of sufferers from industrial injuries and diseases by use of methods developed during the war.

Five Brilliant Artists, Each With a Record of Eastern Concert Successes, to Present "Ruddygore" and Gems From Other Light Operas

Famous scenes from standard operatic gems feature the concert of the Gilvan Light Opera Company, to be heard at Chautauqua in an afternoon prelude and also in a full evening program on the closing day. This clever organization, composed of five brilliant artists, each with an enviable record of concert successes in the East, has won popular favor everywhere. It is in every sense a high-grade musical organization. The personnel: Hazel Huntley, contralto and manager for several years soloist in the First Congregational Church of Evanston; Martha Cook, Soprano, who made her debut a year ago at Orchestra Hall, Chicago, in a recital that won unstinted praise from Chicago musical critics; Thelma S. Jobe, brilliant tenor, well known in Chicago's musical circles; Tom Morris, brilliant concert baritone of Pittsburgh, and Harrison Burch, one of the best known of the younger artists of the piano throughout the Middle West. Their evening's program features the presentation of "Ruddygore," Gilbert & Sullivan's delightful comic opera. Their miscellaneous offerings include the famous selections from standard operatic and concert works—familiar scenes from the old operas that you long to see and hear AGAIN.

NOT ALL BEER AND SKITTLES

Englishman Has Somewhat Lengthy List of Drawbacks to Life in the Turkish Capital.

An English business man bucked me into a corner in a Constantinople club, looked at me sternly over the top of his brandy and soda and addressed me as follows:

"When you write about this town, old chap, I hope you'll tell your people what a beastly place it is, what? A chap can't make a move, you know, without some one asking him to have something. Look here, old chap, in a court of law, you know, a chap is ordinarily supposed to be sober after 9 o'clock at night, what? Here it's the opposite, by Jove! A bit thick, eh, what?"

"Look here, make a note of this, what? They celebrate five Christmas and five New Years in this rotten town. Oh, at least five. On my honor, old chap! English, Armenian, Greek, Russian, Turkish, Jewish, really, old chap, I become fearfully incoherent when I try to remember what they are. By the time the last New Year is over one can just totter around. Oh, absolutely, I give you my word! And then there is the Russian Easter, which is fearfully nerve racking. It lasts from one to two weeks, and one is obliged to do a fearful amount of drinking. While it lasts one goes up to any one and says 'He is risen' and kisses him three times. It's done that way, old chap, I give you my word, everybody does it. One hunts for a pretty girl and says 'He is risen' and kisses her three times, and, by Jove, in a way, old chap, it beats egg rolling on a lawn all hollow, what? A bit thick, by Jove, but a bit of all right, what?"

"But of course there's a fearful lot of good feeling and one must everlastingly be buying a drink for some one. It cuts into one's work fearfully. You just tell all that to the claps at home, and they'll see that living in Constantinople isn't all beer and skittles, by Jove! What?"—Chicago Daily News.

Daughter Succeeds Mother. Mrs. Ferris, the new majorette of the town of Devozes, in Wiltshire, England, is filling the same office as her mother did 20 years ago, thereby creating a most unusual record. Also interesting is the fact that Mrs. Ferris' grandmother is still alive and has thus had the unique privilege of seeing both her daughter and her granddaughter occupying the highest office positions.

Students Enjoy Picnic Dinner

About 150 of the boys and girls who are attending the Vacation Bible school, being held under the auspices of the First Baptist church, spent the afternoon hours in a most enjoyable picnic Thursday. The regular session of the school was held and after school hours cars took the pupils and their teachers to Bellow's Park where they partook of a tasty picnic dinner. The afternoon passed quickly with the playing of games and the telling of stories. One of the special events was the baseball game in which the boys took part. Keen spirit of rivalry was shown and a lively game ensued. The Vacation Bible school is proving a success in Roseburg and is reaching a large number of children who are learning of the Christian ideals. One phase of the school that particularly pleases members is that of the craft period, at which time the boys and girls do handwork that is especially suited to them.
